Leaders recall Gettler's level of civic service

Cody Gettler's work for city and local groups began when he was in high school

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Garnett City Commissioner Cody Gettler, 25, passed away Thursday morning at his home from organ failure as a complication of a prolonged illness.

Gettler was believed to be the youngest ever elected city commissioner in the town, elected to the Garnett City Commission in 2020 at the age of 24 after having served a number of volunteer posts in local civic and municipal service while in high school and college. He graduated in 2014 from Anderson County Junior Senior High School and helped create the city's Youth In Government program, in which a high school student is posted with city commissioners at the city's regular meetings as a liaison between city government and local high school kids. He told the Review in a 2020 city commission election announcement his love of the community drove his desire to be involved.

"Garnett has always been home and I thoroughly enjoy the friendships I've made in this community with so many people," he said. "That's the reason why I've always had an interest in the governing body of the City of Garnett."

He graduated from the University of Kansas in 2018 with a degree in Business Management and Entrepreneurship.

He served on the Anderson County Development Agency and was a member of the Garnett Volunteer Fire Department when he was in high school until it was determined he didn't meet the age requirement for the department. He was active in Anderson County's Local Emergency Planning Committee and became a Red Cross certified emergency shelter manager a few months after graduating high school. After college he was employed by Baker Group, a mergers and acquisition company with a satellite office in Garnett.

Gettler's civic involvement and interest from such a young age impressed many of those with whom he served. Former Garnett city manager Joyce Martin said Gettler took the first post as the high school student representative to the city commission and embraced it with gusto. "I was always pleasantly surprised at how hungry he was to learn about city government," Martin said. "He

Meeting set for daycare entrepreneurs

Officials want locals to open home-based service to help free up workers

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — The county's economic development agency hopes to encourage locals to open their own in-home childcare operations to help alleviate a shortage in local childcare that officials nationwide say discourages workers, particularly women, from rejoining the workforce.

The Anderson County Development Agency is inviting anyone interested in starting their own in-home Childcare business to a meeting on Thursday, November 18, 2021, at 5:30 p.m. in the K-State Extension Office at 411 South Oak Street in Garnett.

Representatives from local childcare providers, Childcare Aware and K-State Extension office Community and Family Wellness director will be on hand to talk with potential new business owners. These providers will give firsthand information about how an in-home childcare business works.

"We will also have handout information about starting a childcare business in your home," said ACDA Executive Director Julie Turnipseed. "If you have a passion for caring for children, would like to work from home and own your own business — we hope you will attend."

In a survey conducted in July by the Workforce Center of Kansas, respondents said the fourth biggest obstacle to them rejoining the workforce was lack of childcare.

But board members of the area's last commercially operated daycare center said it was competition from other sources and a problem collecting bills from some client parents that caused it to fold in December 2016. Little People's Learning Center operated a preschool facility in conjunction with Garnett's United Methodist Church for some 42 years, but enrollment eventually dropped below the break-even number for the facility.

Landis said at the time the center had tried unsuccessfully to collect some $14,000 owed in delinquent fees. Board members estimated in 2016 that nine daycare or preschool

A cure for restlessness

WEEKLY DEVOTIONAL

BY DAVID BILDERBACK

In Matthew 19:16-22 Jesus has a conversation with a young man who is a student of the law. The young man attempts to use the Mosaic law as justification to receive eternal life. This young man represents many people today who believe they can gain eternal life by keeping a certain lifestyle. The young man asks Jesus what he must do to receive eternal life? Jesus provides him a direct answer, "obey the commandments." The man then asks, "which ones." Jesus lists the commandments for the man and the man responds, "all these I have kept." Then the young man gets that uneasy feeling we all get when we think about the daunting task of keeping the commandments and the question every person asks when they come to this point. "What do I still lack?"

Jesus then tells the man the very thing he doesn't want to hear. "If you want to be perfect go sell your possessions and give to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven. Then come follow me." We read when the young man heard this he went away very sad, because he had great wealth. You see the law demands perfection. That is why God set up the temple and the sacrificial system and the Day of Atonement. Because the law demanded something that could not be done, a way had to be provided to atone for the sins of the people. This looks forward ultimately to the coming of the Messiah who would save the people from their sins. When Jesus said, "Then come follow me", he was referring directly to what would be referred to as the New Covenant. The end of the era of law and the beginning of the age of grace.

Today we find ourselves in this age of grace with the same dilemma the young man faced. Our hearts like the young man's heart realize we need something we cannot supply ourselves. The degree to which we are attached to this world and its attractions conflicts with our heart. It was St. Augustine who once prayed, "Thou hast made us for thyself and our heart is restless until it finds rest in thee."

You see it is that very restlessness that God uses to bring us to himself. Jesus answers the why follow him question in John 14:6 when he tells the disciples, "I am the way and the truth and the life. No one comes to the Father except through me." If your heart is restless maybe that is God drawing you to himself. Consider that before you try to fill the restlessness with something else.

Russian collusion: Will Trump ever get an apology from the press?

According to recent surveys, Americans don't trust the federal government nor do they have much faith in the press. Whether the topic is the 2020 presidential election, or the Covid vaccine, or spending billions of taxpayer dollars to stop global warming, suspicion reigns.

And that skepticism is well placed. Back in 2016, when Donald Trump began succeeding in his quest to become the 45th President, a nasty scheme emerged to destroy him.

The media dubbed it "Russian Collusion" and, for years, ran wild with speculation that Russia was either helping or blackmailing Donald Trump. Perhaps both.

...the New York Times won the most prestigious journalism award in the world for essentially spreading false information.

Here's how it worked. The FBI was fed phony accusations by "operatives" that led to the Bureau launching a formal investigation. Using unverified information which turned out to be fictional, secret federal warrants were obtained that allowed spying on the Trump campaign. Along with that, untrue information was leaked by "anonymous sources" to the leftist media led by the New York Times, the Washington Post, CNN, and NBC News.

The Times even won a Pulitzer Prize for covering the phony story. Not for exposing it as bogus, but for printing the falsehoods without attribution. One Times reporter, Maggie Haberman, reportedly wrote more than 100 stories critical of Trump using anonymous sources.

Let me repeat: the New York Times won the most prestigious journalism award in the world for essentially spreading false information.

The American taxpayer then picked up a $35 million dollar tab for a "special investigation"

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

BILL O'REILLY, Guest Commentary

headed by Independent Counsel Robert Mueller.

The probe found there was no verifiable collusion with Russia. But it took two years for that to be determined. In the meantime, Donald Trump was savaged daily in the press.

Now another investigation, this one headed by US Attorney John Durham, is finally issuing indictments in this incredible situation. Three individuals have been charged and the emerging picture is that the bogus Russian Collusion story was concocted and financed by Hillary Clinton's campaign.

If true, that would be one of the most corrupt political actions in American history.

Mrs. Clinton will, of course, deny any knowledge of criminality. And she is entitled to the presumption of innocence that Donald Trump did not receive. Mr. Trump, himself, is rightfully furious over this whole thing and has called for the Pulitzer committee to revoke the prize. That will never happen.

Why? Because the media industry is so corrupt that false stories no longer matter. Not one news agency has apologized for dereliction of duty in using a fabricated scenario to vilify and smear the Republican presidential candidate.

The lesson here is frightening: when the national press is corrupt, devious political players know they can get away with outright fraud and massive deceit.

And that's where we are in the United States today. Ronald Reagan once said: "trust but verify." But verification no longer matters to a national press infected with an ideological virus.

Thus, there is no trust.

What a shame it is in this country when a 17 year-old boy has to defend his neighbors' property from a bunch of BLM criminals and thugs all because the adults won't direct the police to take adequate steps to ensure peace.

Please unlock the restrooms on the rail trail at the depot. They've been locked and it's not very handy for the trail users. Thank you.

I've been watching the news about the trial of the Rittenhouse boy up in Wisconsin where he shot those protesters that were trying to kill him in the streets at one of the riots where they were setting fire to those towns back summer before last. I want someone to explain to me what kind of a country it is that we live in where those (deleted) can go on television and on the Internet and threaten the jurors with exposing their names to the public and taking pictures of them and so on and outright trying to intimidate them and tamper with the jury and yet no one declares a mistrial or no one even goes and arrests them and throws them in jail for trying to intimidate a jury. We ought to all go out and take pictures of the people who are taking pictures of the jurors and see what we can do with them. I can't believe the way this country has gone down the tubes and what we let people get away these days that is more than criminal. Thank you.

I am not unvaccinated. I do not exist in relationship to pharmaceutical products, especially ones that are gene therapies being falsely advertised as vaccines. I am an independent and free human being, and that is the end of it. No medical disclosure is needed, no explanation, no participation. Beware of the framing trap. Thank you.

Hey everybody I thought I would share. I took my first airplane flight last week or I mean the first one since Covid. I didn't know what to expect because they're all talking about all the crazy stuff going on on the airplane flights. Hey, mine was no problem but here's what I saw. Just about everybody was wearing their mask under their nose. I thought it was silly but I figured if you took it off they'd throw you off the plane or something so I just did what they did. Everybody did the same thing and there wasn't any trouble, nobody even mentioned it. I just thought it was worth telling about. Thank you.

Maine enshrines 'right to food' to grow, harvest, consume

The state of Maine has made headlines in the agricultural world by declaring its citizens have a right to food.

November 2, Maine approved a "right to food" amendment to their state's constitution. This is the first of its kind in the nation. It states that 'All individuals have a natural, inherent and unalienable right to food.'

This amendment provides Maine residents with the constitutional right to grow, harvest, and consume their own food. It even gives them the right to save and share seed with other producers.

This began as a referendum from the people. It advanced to the legislature, where two thirds of its delegates voted to affirm the right of a citizen to feed, grow and raise the food they need for their family.

Hopefully, this is the first of many state and federal changes to ensure that family farmers have a prominent role in American agriculture. Last year, when COVID-19 was just beginning to shut down much of the country, we all remember shortages at grocery stores. First, it was toilet paper, then shortages moved to the meat counter because of processing plant closures. Farmers were not harvesting vegetables in March and April of 2020 because of the loss of wholesale markets catering to restaurants. Milk was dumped in every corner of the country. Our food system has grown to be nationalized and run by a very few multinational companies.

COMMENTARY

Today's consumers have only experienced a large industrial food complex. But, Americans are now seeing the importance of buying local and supporting family farms.

The idea of consumers focusing on local farmers to produce their food is certainly not a new idea, but to many it was all but forgotten. In the past decade we have seen farmers markets grow in popularity.

My wife and I have a friend who operates a vegetable subscription business. For several years, we subscribed to receive weekly boxes containing a variety of fresh vegetables. Now, my wife and I have our own garden which seems to grow larger every year. We have always raised our own beef, but as friends have asked for meat, we began selling them an animal to butcher for their families. This is becoming more popular all the time. Prior to COVID, we could call our local butcher and schedule an animal for a few weeks out. Then it became six months. Now, we must schedule a year in advance.

To help with this demand, Montana Farmers Union has invested in a mobile processing facility which they are locating in Havre, Montana. MFU has partnered with the state of Montana to develop a meat cutting curriculum at the Montana State University in Havre. The mobile processing facility will be federally inspected, so we will have greater flexibility to market our meat to the public. My wife and I have invested money in this for a few reasons. First, the guarantee of more available animals which we can sell direct; the second reason is to foster the new program which we hope leads to more local butcher shops. Third, we want to provide consumers with more buying options.

This country's food system needs to change. Weaknesses of the system were front and center during 2020. Smaller, local processing of our agricultural products is what we need.

Biden wants to do for childcare what he's done for everything else

President Joe Biden wants to bring the same discerning, common-sensical governing style to American child care that has his job approval rating in the low 40s. In other words, look out below.

The child care proposal that House Democrats have written into Biden's Build Back Better "human infrastructure" bill may be the worst feature of the nearly $2-trillion legislation, and that's saying something.

It is high-handed and prescriptive, constitutes a new front in the culture war via an expanding welfare state, will likely increase the costs for middle-class and upper-middle-class parents, and may have an unconstitutional provision to boot.

The proposal reflects the preferences of two-earner, professional couples in the Acela corridor inclined toward expensive, formal, all-day child care, and would make a large step toward enshrining them as the national norm. There is no doubt that there is a significant demand for child care. Roughly half of married and single moms with children under 5 work full-time, and about 40% of working moms pay for child care. But it's a mistake to believe that all parents want to be in the work force, with their kids in standardized child care programs.

According to a 2019 Gallup poll, 50% of mothers of children under age 18 would prefer to stay at home taking care of family over having a job. A survey from the populist think tank American Compass found that 53% of married mothers prefer the model of one parent working and one parent staying at home in families with children under age 5.

Those parents who have to work or choose to work use all sorts of child care options, from relatives to smaller home-based day cares, to non-profit or for-profit day care centers.

There is a pronounced class divide here. As Patrick Brown of the Ethics and Public Policy Center points out, white children of parents who don't have a college degree spend most of their hours per week with their parents; only 30% of children with college-educated parents do the same.

What the Democratic proposal would do is put an enormous thumb on the scale toward for-profit centers. It would pour hundreds of billions of dollars, not into supporting the varying choices of parents, but into pushing the current archipelago of diverse options into a one-size-fits-all system defined by the government.

The proposal would boost the pay of child care workers significantly, seeking to make it equivalent to elementary school teachers, and add new regulations best sustained by for-profit centers. It would thus bring the progressive model of constricted supply leading to increased cost that characterizes the housing, education and health care sectors to child care.

The left-wing policy analyst Matt Bruenig caused a stir when he warned of spiraling costs from higher pay and new regulations. He noted that the proposal's subsidies to families are phased-in based on income. This means that, depending on the proposal's final design, unsubsidized families could be exposed to increased costs without getting additional government help. He cited the hypothetical of a dual-earning family that feels the squeeze of increased costs, so one spouse quits to lessen the household's income and qualify for subsidies.

"Normally people who quit jobs to take care of their kids do so in order to save the money they'd have to spend on child care," he wrote. "Under this plan, they have to quit their job in order to afford child care!"

On top of this, the House proposal prohibits government funds to upgrade child care facilities from being spent on facilities "used primarily for sectarian instruction or religious worship." This is a clear shot across the bow of church-based child care, one unlikely to pass muster with the Supreme Court.

Beginnings of a new excavation site 20 years ago...County looking into new jail facility

DIGGING UP THE PAST

Henry Roeckers
Call (785) 504-4722 for local archeology information.

About two weeks ago I received a phone call from a gentleman asking if I was still looking for a new excavation site. He told me he had an old house, where the house had been moved off of years ago, however the foundation and sidewalks were still visible. You know me, I jumped right on that opportunity.

While there I started my new excavation project along one of the sidewalks.

Pictured are a few artifacts I found. Remember, I just opened this site. Besides what is pictured here were the regular items found like nails, window & bottle glass shards, etc.

Pictured are: large iron pin, 1/2 horseshoe with nail in it. (Have you ever tried to break a horseshoe in half?), 22-Rifle casings, two crockery shards, large glass button, a very small little girls' ring (stone is missing), shards of what appears to be a little cup or bowl from a child's tea set or etc. and a glass shard from a fruit jar.

From the third-floor apartment above his restaurant in downtown Garnett, Kevin Maloan said Saturday night's earthquake tremor was several seconds of terror. The higher your elevation the more likely you were to have felt the tremor centered at Sparks, Okla. Which registered a magnitude of 5.6 on the Richter Scale. It was the biggest in Oklahoma history, and scientists have been puzzled by the number of quakes in Oklahoma which averaged about 50 a year until 2009, but spiked to over a thousand last year. Still most were small, but Saturday's rattled dishes well into Kansas.

Anderson County Sheriff Darin Dalsing is expected to propose a feasibility study to propose a feasibility study to county commissioners today which would explore the potential for cost savings and revenue generation for construction of a new jail facility in the county. Dalsing said he planned to ask commissioners to approve $1,500 to $2,000 in funding from the county jail budget to hire a firm to complete the study which he said would yield answers and information as to the potential cost savings and revenue generation if the county constructed a new jail. The county's present 1927 vintage jail can hold 16 male prisoners, and until the past year or so has been a revenue generator for the county

A band of robbers believed to have used a motor truck in getting away with their loot broke into the R.S. Brooks drug store and Wayne Taylor dry goods store at Colony and secured property valued in excess of $1,000. At the Brooks store, the robbers took all the watches in the jewelry stock and all good cigars. The Wayne Taylor dry goods and clothing store was robbed of 15 or more suits of clothes, and an inventory was being taken today to determine what other articles had been stolen. Both stores had been gone over thoroughly by the thieves in their quest for movable and valuable loot. Officers believe the robbers used a motor car or truck in getting away with the goods, as the stolen articles were of such bulk as to make transportation difficult unless some power vehicle was used.

Biden's presidency so far has been a long exercise in ideologically driven governance removed from reality. The child care proposal is no different.

P.E.O. met in November

Jim Manning and Lucas Hertlein, Naturalists and Rangers for the Kansas State Parks presented highlights of the 28 State Parks to the members of the P.E.O. Chapter Y on November 1st at the home of Lucille Holderman. All of the Kansas State Parks have unique features from our own Prairie Spirit Trail that stretches fifty-two miles, Pomona State Park where the eagle count has grown to large numbers, Milford State Park the largest at 1600 acres, Mushroom Rock State Park the smallest and Little Jerusalem Badlands State Park that doesn't look like Kansas at all.

They also shared information about the AmeriCorp Program for young people 17 and older for summer work.

The business meeting was conducted by Bonnie Deiter. Members will continue to bring items for ECKAN donations. Lucille Holderman and Deanna Wolken served refreshments.

The next meeting will be held at the Garnett Library on November 15, 2021.

Soybean Weed Management meeting

The Frontier Extension District will be hosting a mid-morning meeting on Soybean Weed Control on December 10th starting at 9:30 a.m. The meeting will be held in the Ottawa Commission Chambers, 1418 South Main Street, Ottawa, KS.

Sarah Lancaster, K-State Weed Specialist, will join us to discuss weed control options, changes that may be coming concerning herbicide application, what can be used for weed control in double crop beans, and more.

Aside from knowing how to control those pesky weeds, taking a soil test could really help your fields reach their full potential. A simple soil test can tell us what our pH is and also alert us to our nutrient levels starting to slide downward. Each bushel of Corn you harvest removes .33 pounds of phosphorus and .26 pounds of potassium while each bushel of beans removes .80 pounds of phosphorus and 1.40 pounds of potassium. So, if you are thinking of planting beans after beans due to high fertilizer prices it may be beneficial to soil test to make sure that you have not removed too many of your nutrients.

If you are planning to plant beans next spring, I hope you will join us Dec 10th at 9:30 for coffee and donuts, and information that may help you with weed control next spring. If you need any special accommodation, please call Ryan Schaub at 785.448.6826 or by email at reschaub@ksu.edu.

BLACK NOVEMBER CONTINUES AT BAUMAN'S

not only attended the meetings each month but would come to my office with a bucketload of questions. After being elected as a city commissioner, Cody would call me to ask questions about things that had taken place when I was city manager. He was always wanting to learn more; to make sure that he understood what had happened in the past so he could make good decisions."

His colleagues on the city commission knew him to be formidable on city issues and directed in the goals he wanted the city to attain.

"Cody had a big heart for our town and it showed in the way he applied himself to this job," said Garnett Mayor Jody Cole. "He did the reading and he did his research and he asked questions. He had a conviction for the issues that really mattered and he wasn't afraid to go toe-to-toe with someone twice his age in a debate if he believed in his point."

"He loved this town, and it showed," Cole said.

"Cody was very community-driven and was very interested in seeing Garnett move forward and succeed into the future," said fellow commissioner Greg Gwin. "He was a good advocate to be citizens of Garnett and he'll be sincerely missed."

But it was his interest in civic affairs at such a young age that made one of the most notable impressions on those with whom he worked

"Cody was a true public servant at heart," said J.D. Mersman, director of Anderson County Emergency Services. "He came from a long line of firefighters - his dad, grandfather, and uncles all served the community. In high school Cody was always ready to go and assist our auxiliary with firefighter rehab or help at fundraisers. He truly cared and wanted to help with anything."

With Gettler's passing, Cole and Gwin will now have to set about the process of appointing the vacancy for his possession. Commissioners were interviewing candidates for the vacant city manager's position. Gettler had participated in recent Zoom meetings in that process while he was ill.

Memorial services are set for 10:00 AM on Thursday at the First Christian Church in Garnett.

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 11-16-2021 / GARNETT FIRE DEPARTMENT

On Saturday, November 13th just before 11:00 A.M. the Garnett Fire Department along with Law Enforcement, Emergency Medical Services and other members of Anderson County Water Rescue were dispatched to the City of Garnett's North Lake for a vehicle in the water. Upon arrival it was discovered the car's driver had been able to self rescue and was safe. Driver Nghia Nguyen, Olathe, reported mechanical failure as to the cause of the accident. Members of the City of Garnett's Dive Team and Anderson County Water Rescue were able to successfully assist with the recovery of the vehicle. The countywide water rescue team is comprised of specialty trained and equipped personnel from Colony, Harris and Garnett.

Giving thanks to farmers and ranchers

Glenn Brunkow, Pottawatomie County farmer and rancher

In a few short days we will all sit down and celebrate Thanksgiving. The holiday that is meant for us to reflect and decide what it is for which we are thankful. We have a lot to be thankful for in this great nation, not the least of which is our farms and ranches. This is so appropriate because Thanksgiving is associated with food.

My guess is most of us will have the traditional feast of turkey and all the fixings, right down to the pumpkin pie. No matter what you include for your Thanksgiving dinner, without a doubt it will be one of biggest feasts of the year. All of this great food is brought to you by a fellow farmer or rancher, even the yams.

While I do not know any yam farmers and, to be honest, I am not even sure what a yam is. I do know the people who grow them are good. Those of us involved in agriculture are part of the fabric that is the foundation of this great nation. At the core of every great society is a robust, self-sufficient food supply.

We are so blessed in the United States to have the safe, abundant, wholesome food supply within easy reach. Most of us have never really faced empty shelves. Sure, there are times like right before a predicted snowstorm the shelves may be a little low. But very few of us have ever faced a real shortage of food. We got a little glimpse of this during the pandemic, but any deficits were short lived.

We are also fortunate to spend a relatively small portion of our earnings on food. We are used to having the shelves full and the prices at a reasonable level and that is all because of the hard work we put in as farmers and ranchers. The price of this year's Thanksgiving dinner has undoubtedly gone up because of inflation. But it is still a feast that comes at an amazing bargain, and one we do not take enough credit for.

This coming week is when we, as farmers and ranchers, should be sticking our chests out with pride and letting the world know about the remarkable things we do to put food on tables around the world. This is true every day but especially the day when we are to give thanks, and our way of giving thanks is centered around a great meal. See what I mean about food being at the center of our society?

We have a lot to be thankful for in this great nation, but at the top of that list is our food supply. It is OK to take pride in the fact that all of us do our part to provide the safe, abundant, wholesome food we all need. That is also something to be thankful for, and I wish you all the happiest of Thanksgivings.

"Insight" is a weekly column published by Kansas Farm Bureau, the state's largest farm organization whose mission is to strengthen agriculture and the lives of Kansans through advocacy, education and service.

PSRT met in Nov., no meeting in Dec.

Twenty-one Prairie Spirit Rail Trail members met Nov. 10, 2021 at 7:00 pm at the depot. Three guests were present.

President Denise Weber welcomed all present and guests Jim Johnson, David and Deanna Hedrick and guest speaker Jenelle Klehammer.

Jenelle Klehammer shared her story of how the rock in memory of Dr. and Mrs. C.B. Harris placed at the depot came to be placed there. She explained her inspirations for the sculptures she did on the rock. President Weber thanked David Hedrick and Bill Ratliff for power washing the rock and sprucing it up.

Ruth Theis gave an update on the trail signs. The lettering on the back of the signs has been completed and donated by a lady in Emporia and has been installed.

The trail members will be decorating the Christmas parade float Wednesday, November 17th at 1:00 pm.

Then the trail members will decorate the Donna Harris Park for Christmas on Friday, November 19th at 1:00 p.m.

There will be no December meeting.

The next meeting will be January 11, 2022 at the depot at 7:00 p.m.

providers were operating in the local area, including programs at USD 365 and Head Start.

Still, available daycare has been a recurrent issue nationwide and in Kansas in regard to womens' employment and in terms of critical assets particularly to rural communities. The U.S. Department of Commerce estimated in 2019 child care issues impacted the U.S. economy to the tune of $57 billion in workplace distractions and lost work days due to parents struggling with childcare issues.

At a roundtable workforce development conference in 2019 in Finney County, then-Congressman Roger Marshall cited Kansas figures that said some 44 percent of Kansas kids live in childcare "deserts" where children in need of care outnumber available slots 3-1 or worse. Those found care paid dearly for it, attendees discussed, with center-based infant and toddler care in Kansas costing more on average than in-state public college tuition on an annual basis.

Turnipseed said Thursday's meeting would provide an encompassing view of starting and running a private daycare and would connect interested individuals with resource people to help along the way.

Light appetizers will be served throughout the evening. For more information or to RSVP please contact Julie Turnipseed at julie@garnettks.net or 785-504-4265.

Garnett. This year's GACC Christmas Parade will run November 27, 2021, at 6:30 p.m. for the 50th Annual Christmas Parade & Lighting Ceremony. Last year's event was cancelled due to Covid-19. This year's theme is "Golden Christmas Memories: 50 Years of Joy."

Parade grand marshalls for this year's parade are Chris Goetz, pastor at First Christian Church in Garnett, his wife Natasha and family.

Entry forms for floats and other parade entries are available online at www.garnettchamber.org, or at the chamber office. Whether it be a float, a vehicle, or walkers, GACC is inviting everyone to participate and celebrate 50 years of Christmas in Garnett! Entry deadline for the parade is Friday, November 19, 2021.

This year's festivities will include carolers, popcorn, hot cocoa, Frosty the Snowman, musical entertainment, and more!

And while you're waiting for the parade to begin, stop by the Garnett Fire Department for their Soup and Chili Supper which begins at 4:30 p.m., then head downtown to shop, as some businesses will remain open late that evening. The countdown to lights will culminate with all downtown Christmas lights being switched on at 6:30 p.m., signaling the parade kickoff.

"We can't wait to light up the town," said chamber director Kris Hix.

Saturday is also the kickoff for Small Business Saturday, and the promotion of supporting small local businesses first before shopping out of town or online.

"Shopping small does a lot for your community," Hix said. "For every $1 you spend at a small business, $ 0.67 remains within the local community. This allows businesses to support local schools and groups, expand, hire more employees, and so much more."

For more information on the parade or Small Business Saturday promotion contact the chamber office at (785) 448-6767.

The Pfizer COVID-19 Vaccine for 5-11 year-olds is now available locally.

If a parent is interested, they would need to call their local health department to make an appointment. This is a 2-dose series and the 2nd dose is to be given at least 21 days after the first.

Only Pfizer has been approved for 5-17 year-olds. There is no recommendation at this time for a booster for this age group.
