Special prosecutor, be gone

Emerson attorney wants county's special prosecutor out, says appointment was improper

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT – After asking the court to throw out a district magistrate judge's warrant due to an alleged previous relationship with his client, the Wichita attorney representing Tommy Emerson is now petitioning for the removal of the special prosecutor pursuing the case, saying his appointment doesn't meet statutory muster.

After the postponement of the Dec. 8 previously scheduled hearing, the latest motions in the case are now set to be heard at 9:30 a.m. January 19.

Wichita defense attorney Jess Hoeme said in a motion filed Dec. 7 that the appointment of Stephen Maxwell to prosecute the drug case against Emerson doesn't meet the applicable Kansas law for replacing a sitting county attorney in the case, because in this case Anderson County Elizabeth Oliver was subject to neither "sickness nor disability," and as such wasn't qualified to appoint a special prosecutor to handle the case.

Oliver on Friday referred a followup call to Maxwell, who did not return the Review's email seeking comment.

Hoeme stated in the motion Oliver told him prior to Maxwell's February appointment she might claim a conflict if Emerson tried to get the warrant issued by District Magistrate Kevin Kimball thrown out, because she worked frequently with Kimball. Emerson, who faces 12 felonies ranging from methamphetamine possession to distribution with the aid of a telephone

Wilson hired as Garnett city manager

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT – City commissioners appointed Garnett native and present city clerk Travis Wilson to the post of Garnett City Manager last week, and set in motion a hunt for a new city clerk to take his position at city hall.

Commissioners offered Wilson the position with a resolution at Tuesday's city commission meeting. Wilson confirmed to the Review on Wednesday he had accepted the position.

Wilson, a 2001 graduate of Garnett High School who received a bachelor's in Business Administration from Ottawa University in 2005, joined the city in 2018 as municipal court clerk and took over city clerk duties in 2019.

Wilson's appointment follows the August departure of city manager

Wind storm was more tame here

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT – The local area fared better than a lot of other locations in Kansas in last Wednesday's windstorm.

Winds in excess of 50 mph buffeted Anderson County Wednesday evening in a narrow band of northeasterly moving thunderstorms – the remnant of a storm system that spiked earlier

The story of the first Christmas

Excerpted from the Book of Luke

And in the sixth month the angel Gabriel was sent from God unto a city of Galilee, named Nazareth. To a virgin espoused to a man whose name was Joseph, of the house of David; and the virgin's name was Mary.

And the angel came in unto her, and said, Hail, thou that art highly favoured, the Lord is with thee: blessed art thou among women.

And when she saw him, she was troubled at his saying, and cast in her mind what manner of salutation this should be.

And the angel said unto her, Fear not, Mary: for thou hast found favour with God. And, behold, thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and bring forth a son, and shalt call his name JESUS.

He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest: and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David: And he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end.

Then said Mary unto the angel, How shall this be, seeing I know not a man? And the angel answered and said unto her,

The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee, and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee: therefore also that holy thing which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God.

And, behold, thy cousin Elisabeth, she hath also conceived a son in her old age: and this is the sixth month with her, who was called barren. For with God nothing shall be impossible.

And Mary said, Behold the handmaid of the Lord; be it unto me according to thy word. And the angel departed from her.

And Mary arose in those days, and went into the hill country with haste, into a city of Juda; and entered into the house of Zacharias, and saluted Elisabeth.

And it came to pass, that, when Elisabeth heard the salutation of Mary, the babe leaped in her womb; and Elisabeth was filled with the Holy Ghost: And she spake out with a loud voice, and said, Blessed art thou among women, and blessed is the fruit of thy womb. And whence is this to me, that the mother of my Lord should come to me? For, lo, as soon as the voice of thy salutation sounded in mine ears, the babe leaped in my womb for joy. And blessed is she that believed: for there shall be a performance of those things which were told her from the Lord.

And Mary said, My soul doth magnify the Lord, And my spirit hath rejoiced in God my Saviour. For he hath regarded the low estate of his handmaiden: for, behold, from henceforth all generations shall call

Commissioners: No "30x30" in Anderson County

BY PATRICK RICHARDSON THE SENTINEL

GARNETT – Kansas counties are pushing back against President Joe Biden's "Conserving and Restoring America the Beautiful" plan — often referred to as the "30 x 30" program — which has as its aim to "protect" 30 percent of the nation's land by 2030 by creating "National Heritage Areas."

At least 11 counties in the Flint Hills Region have passed resolutions in opposition.

Anderson County is among them, in October, passing perhaps the most strongly-worded resolution in opposition to the 30x30 plan.

The resolution notes that Executive Order 14008 entitled "Tackling the Climate Crisis at Home and Abroad," — which was passed within days of Biden taking office, would allow the federal government to take control of private lands — ostensibly for the purposes of "conservation" and to tackle the "climate crisis."

As the resolution notes: The Executive Order is silent about what "conservation" means.

"The Executive Order is silent about where the Administration plans to get the 30 percent of American land to lock up.

"The report submitted in obedience to the Executive Order does not answer either of those questions, and Administration officials now say

Colony Christian Church - "Confused, Disturbed and Favored"

Darren McGhee gave the Communion Meditation this past Sunday about Jesus' earthly father, Joseph. He's not mentioned a lot in the Bible. What kind of man was he? We know he was quiet, gentle, soft spoken and God-fearing, and he was engaged to Mary. When he found out she was pregnant, he planned to quietly divorce her (when he could have had her stoned), until an angel came and spoke to him. When she was pretty far along in her pregnancy, they had to travel to Bethlehem for the census. It must have been a difficult and agonizing trip for Mary, and then to have no place to rest except for a barn. But, they had a healthy baby boy, and named him Jesus, just as they were instructed to do. Joseph helped raise Jesus spiritually, and we should be thankful for the trust and faith he had in God when he was chosen.

Pastor Chase Riebel gave the sermon "Confused, Disturbed and Favored" over Luke 1:26-38. Mary was the favored one, chosen by God to be the mother of his son. When the angel Gabriel spoke to her, she was confused and disturbed as to why she would be chosen. But she was also humble about God's decision, and accepted his decision for her life. Like Mary, the more humble we are, the more open we become to serve God. If we can move off the seat of honor that we've put ourselves on, then God can take that seat for himself, and he can use us for his glory. Mary trusted God. Even while confused with this decision, her trust in him never wavered. We often question God's will for our lives saying, "but, Lord". But Mary responded with the words, "I am the Lord's servant. May everything you have said about me come true." May each and every one of us accept, trust, and rejoice at the plans God has for our lives, even when they don't line up with the plans we made for ourselves. The manger and the cross are forever linked

Christmas signifies the birth of our Savior, but this event also ushers in a new age. The era of grace. Prior to the birth of Jesus the people were in the era of the law and the prophets. God had been silent for 400 years. The era of grace brought the first word from God since the prophet Malachi closed the Old Testament in 458-445 B.C. by prophesying a return of one like Elijah, which turned out to be John the Baptist. (Malachi 4:5)

The birth of Jesus was the fulfillment of what had been predicted long ago. (Micah 5:2 Isaiah 7:14) In John 14:6 Jesus addressing his disciples says, "I am the way and the truth and the life. No one comes to the Father except through me." The grace of God was supremely revealed and given in the person and work of Jesus Christ. Jesus was not only the beneficiary of God's grace but he was also its very embodiment bringing it to mankind for salvation. By his death and resurrection Jesus restored the broken fellowship between God and his people. The only way of salvation is "through the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ." (Acts 15:11)

The grace of God revealed in Jesus Christ is applied to human beings for their salvation by the Holy Spirit. We are saved by faith alone, through grace alone, in Christ alone. As we attend our Christmas Eve service this year certainly the baby Jesus will be foremost on our minds. However the manger and the cross are forever linked. In the span of time between them Jesus secured for us the grace required to make us acceptable to God. Grace is defined as God's unmerited favor, that is not of ourselves. Grace, however, must be accompanied by faith; a person must trust in the mercy and favor of God, even while it is undeserved. We must place our faith in the grace offered through Jesus Christ.

Christmas is for Christians

It's a point that deserves to be made: Beyond all the financial forecasts and pulse-taking of the nation's retailers and economic analysis and the co-opting of Christian ideals by non-Christians who yearn to feel good about themselves, Christmas is for Christians.

The commercialism of Christmas shouldn't be looked upon with the snobbery and disdain that many fundamentalists enjoy, however. There is no doubt that the sheer economic impact of Christmas buying does its share of good in the world. The association of commerce with the event of the birth of Christ is pagan, no doubt, but no more pagan than our affair with Santa Claus, Christmas lights and the Christmas Tree. Christmas buying means economic sustenance for those who give gifts and those who make them - no matter which corner of the world in which they may reside - and it's still better for the majority of us to be employed than not.

But the secularized Christmas falls far and away from the awesome gravity and magnitude of the birth of Christ. No other single event in man's history has had more political, social and spiritual impact on the living world and on succeeding generations. And yet 2,000 years of contemplation, consideration and debate of this event and its subsequent effects both inside and outside Christendom have been but tangents to its critical core.

That core value relates to Christians and Christians alone: that God gave his son to provide man a life after death and a guidepost for daily living; that "whosoever shall believeth on him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

Like every grand idea, it's been used to justify every realm of behavior. Great pain, misery and destruction has been done in the name of Christianity. But more so have phenomenal works of good been accomplished by Christians in pursuit of Christian ideals - including the general and accepted tone of morality of both Christian and non-Christian cultures across the globe. While it's wrong to ignore the ills done by some who laid claim to the faith, it's also nothing short of monumental ignorance and denial to ignore its good works.

The secular world has popularized the more convenient precepts of Christianity, and there's no better example of convenient convergence than a world society of non-Christians who focus their economic efforts around Christmas, or who claim principles of forgiveness and care for humanity as a means to emboss themselves and their mission to others or somehow ease their own conscience. Christian principles have been co-opted for centuries by those who thought they had something to gain by it, but who failed to embrace the totality of its meaning. Much of the Western World was civilized by Christians who infused the morality of their religion into the foundations of government but then struggled over history with its inclusion of doctrine as law. The embrace of belief comes through submission and faith, not force.

REVIEW COMMENTARY

DANE HICKS, Publisher

So follows the melba toast lack of authenticity in a "Happy Holidays" wish from a non-Christian individual, television network, publication or corporation - those who want to co-op the revenue potential but downplay any commitment to the main event because they fear offending those who homestead outside the faith.

Christmas is Christianity, and Christianity is the faith that Jesus is the Son of God, who walked among men and was persecuted and killed by them, arose after his death to forgive them and to offer mankind forgiveness and salvation if we believe. Christmas, cut from the trappings of the modern world, is a simple but fabulous promise.

In their seasonal clamor non-Christians try to pile on the Christmas bandwagon - but only Christians can ride it all the way home.###

The association of commerce with the event of the birth of Christ is pagan, no doubt, but no more pagan than our affair with Santa Claus, Christmas lights and the Christmas Tree.

Hey folks, I just wanted to say if you're listening to all the rhetoric about the Republican Party or some party wanting to destroy our democracy, I just wanted you to know that we don't have a democracy to begin with. We have a federal republic. Wake up America.

You want to know how messed up this town is? They'll give you a ticket for watering a stray cat, but they won't give out no tickets to people who are out buying cigarettes for children under the age of 18. That's (deleted) up.

I just wanted to say one thing about people who are still not getting vaccinated. They're sure not cowards. If they're wrong, they die. That's what I call having skin in the game. Thank you.

Merry Christmas to Joe Manchin. Thanks for standing up to the BS. You might be the only Democrat I'd ever consider voting for.

This just in. Polls are showing that Democrats Elizabeth Warren, Cory Booker and Jason

Crow all announcing that they've tested positive for Coronavirus after having been vaccinated and boosted is making a surprising number of Americans cheer for the virus.

Thanks so much for giving our turkey a snow cap to wear this winter.

Christmas lights, Christmas lights. How many hundreds or thousands or a million? As on the corner of 7th and Vine. What's your guess. There's a lot of them. If you haven't stopped by to see them, you need to drive by. Have a Merry Christmas.

At our house this Christmas we're having family over. Some of them from out of state that we haven't seen since this whole thing started. We're going to hug and kiss and all sit around the table and eat together. If the weather's good the kids will go out and play football in the yard and the old folks will just sit in the kitchen and visit. Them that wanted to get vaccinated did and them that didn't didn't. To each his own. Merry Christmas to all of you.

Why is it so many people are willing to just accept the term "breakthrough infections" instead of questioning the actual vaccine?"

Thank God for the wonderful ECKAN workers. They're always there to help out. The 12 Days of Christmas was greatly appreciated, along with everything else they always do. Thank you all so much. God bless you.

Why are Republicans the party of racism?

America has come a long way when it comes to racial relations, but we still have work to do. It is important that we continue to have conversations that lead to expanded freedom and fair treatment for everyone regardless of race, creed, color, sexual preference and religious beliefs.

But I'm not sure America is in the right frame of mind to continue the conversation until all parties are willing to have meaningful conversations rather than blame games and group think.

In a recent conversation with a college student at one of the largest colleges in Kansas, we were discussing how one class discussed how one party believes in serving all the different races while the other party doesn't.

"Everyone opposes racism," I said. "Conservatives do not support racism."

The response was a sign that we aren't ready to have meaningful conversations.

"Well, not all conservatives support racism," the student said.

That statement was an indictment of thought, prejudicial, discriminatory and bigoted, and the student didn't understand why.

Who told this student that conservatives support racism? Who told them that it is an exception when a conservative does not support racism?

According to two Gallup polls, 64 percent believe Blacks do not receive equal treatment, and 69 percent believe civil rights are improving.

Most Americans agree in both cases that are system is not completely fair but we are making progress.

The false idea that one party is trying to address these needs and the other party is not only false, it's dangerous.

It is true the parties differ on the solution, and we have historic evidence to use as to which approach might better serve minorities.

Take a look at the false premise that Hispanics support open borders.

A Wall Street Journal poll showed that 37 percent of Hispanic voters would support a Democratic candidate while 37 percent would support a Republican candidate.

Both parties have taken vastly different approaches to border security, and Hispanics who used to vote en masse for Democrats, who have supported open border policies, aren't flocking to that policy position.

To the contrary, Hispanic voters believe in the direction Republicans were moving, and if Republicans can split the Hispanic vote, that is mortal news for Democrats who have tried to convince Hispanics they support them by opening the border.

Republicans, on the other hand, have pointed out that open border policies hurt Hispanics the most by bringing in workers who suppress wages and compete for jobs other Hispanics already have.

Policies affecting Black families are also starting to be revisited.

Big government solutions have not benefited Black families like they were intended. Inner city schools are a disaster, and Critical Race Theory was a contributor to Democrats losing in Virginia.

Couple that with the recent attempts to empty prisons, eliminate bail and go soft on

Latinos throw "Latinx" on wokester bone pile

What the progressive culture elite wants, it usually gets. Single-sex bathrooms changing overnight to all-gender or non-gender bathrooms? Done. Illegal immigrants becoming known as undocumented persons? But of course.

So, when it was decided in the precincts of fashionable opinion that the term "Latino" would be retired in favor of "Latinx," one could have been forgiven for thinking that this hideous neologism would, like so much else in American life, go from a fringe cause to mainstream soon enough.

But a funny thing happened on the way to the Latinx ascendancy - Latinos have rejected the term, at the same time that a big swing toward the GOP among these voters has highlighted the perils of high-handed cultural politics for the Democrats.

Latinx may end up being a woke experiment that failed, showing the vast gap between the identity-politics-obsessed progressives earnestly talking to one another in seminar rooms and on social media and the Hispanics in whose name they presume to speak.

Latinx is a project cut from the same cloth as the endless extension of LGBTQ, which, as of this writing, is now more properly and comprehensively rendered as LGBTQIP2SAAA.

The alleged problem that Latinx was invented to fix is that Spanish has gendered nouns. This means that using the male Latino as an adjective to describe men and women of Latin American ancestry, let alone transgender and non-binary people, is supposedly exclusionary, hateful and downright dangerous. As a handbook on the terminology by a Princeton scholar explains, "To default to the masculine gender promotes interpersonal violence against women and non-binary individuals."

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

Latinx rose from the ashes of its predecessor neologism Latin@, an attempted amalgamation of the -o at the end of the Latino and the -a at the end of Latina. But no one knew how to pronounce the word. It was deemed insufficiently woke because the "o" was supposedly graphically dominating the "a" (yes, this is how some people think). And it caused confusion on social media where the at sign is used to tag someone.

Enter Latinx, which is only slightly less ridiculous.

As Giancarlo Sopo of The Daily Wire, who has been on a one-man crusade against the rise of the term, points out, Latinx is incomprehensible to any Spanish speaker without some knowledge of English. Most Spanish-speakers don't think there is something desperately flawed about their language, or that Spanish grammar is a proto-hate crime. The Real Academia Espanola, Spain's official institution charged with maintaining the integrity of the language, has ruled against the -x appendage.

Out in the real world, "Latinx" polls even more poorly than Joe Biden does. A Politico poll found that only 2% of Hispanics prefer the term, while 68% opt for Hispanic and 21% favor Latino or Latina. The term is considered offensive to 40% of respondents and 30% said that they are less likely to support a politician or group using it.

ep. Ruben Gallego, an Arizona Democrat, tweeted in reaction to the poll that he forbids his staff from using Latinx in official communications. "When Latino politicians use the term, it is largely to appease white rich progressives who think that is the term we use," he wrote. "It is a vicious circle of confirmation bias."

Still, elite media outlets and other institutions susceptible to progressive influence, as well as many elected Democrats, have dutifully defaulted to the term. It's one thing if an individual prefers to be called Latinx (or, the even more cutting-edge Latina/o/x or Xicanx), it's another thing to apply the term to a large group of people who have no interest in being called a name that makes no sense to them. The pushback is a heartening sign of the lim-

How to enjoy the holidays without overloading your New Year's resolutions

(BPT) - Face it, everyone's done it - abandoned wellness goals over the holidays, hoping to make up for it with New Year's resolutions. According to a recent study, half of Americans have broken a diet due to the holidays. In the fifth annual "Writing Off the End of the Year" survey, commissioned by Herbalife Nutrition, the average respondent expects to gain eight pounds over the holiday season. But most aren't worrying about the weight gain, and instead plan on enjoying the season without sticking to their diets. What's their solution? More than 60% say they will wait till the new year, making that extra weight next year's problem.

But it doesn't have to be that way. Putting those extra holiday pounds on your New Year's resolutions just makes it harder down the road. And unfortunately, the pandemic has compounded the problem. For 40% of respondents, the extra weight they anticipate is in addition to weight they've already gained during the pandemic. The stress of the past year and a half has spurred many to overeat, with 65% feeling like they "deserve" treats this year more than previous years. Between the pandemic and the holidays, how can you avoid piling on the pounds - and overloading your 2022 resolutions?

"Holiday celebrations don't have to destroy your healthy lifestyle," said Dr. Kent Bradley, chief health and nutrition officer, Herbalife Nutrition. "Focus on your long-term goals, so you can make more thoughtful choices."

Here are tips for staying on track over the holidays - and making resolutions you can keep all year.

Plan ahead.

Don't arrive hungry. Eat a high protein snack, to give you energy and keep you from over-indulging at a party. Snack on hard-boiled eggs, lean lunch meat, low-fat cheese, yogurt or a handful of nuts. Other great options are Herbalife Nutrition's protein Shakes or Protein Bites, a bite-sized protein bar.

"By focusing on proteins over carbs, slowing your eating pace and making sure you don't go to the party hungry, you can enjoy yourself and minimize weight gain," adds Bradley.

Stay hydrated.

The body can mistake thirst for hunger, which may lead to overeating. Staying hydrated with plain or sparkling water also helps you feel fuller. Sip on a glass of water between snacks to slow down and enjoy the day.

Pace yourself.

In the survey, 48% admitted they've eaten so much during the holidays, they had to undo the button on their pants or loosen their belt, and 45% have eaten more than one of the same meal in a day - such as multiple lunches or dinners. Others said they've eaten until they feel sick, unwell or full to bursting - or they deliberately wore stretchy clothes to accommodate overeating (both 39%).

If you're hosting a gathering, start a holiday singalong, set up a fun craft or suggest a walk outside. If you're at someone else's shindig, take breaks from eating treats by talking to people or playing games. Food doesn't have to be the centerpiece of every get-together.

Make your resolutions count.

In the survey, 2/3 of respondents (64%) said they're actively delaying attempts to be healthy over the holidays - and of those, 56% said they'll begin postponing their wellness efforts by mid-November. But many said they'll pick healthy habits back up in the New Year. The study found that 39% plan to make a New Year's resolution for 2022. The top goal? Exercising more (27%), followed by eating healthier (25%) and focusing on self-care (22%).

Make your resolutions concrete, realistic and attainable - so you can keep them well past January.

"The most successful New Year's health resolutions combine nutritious balanced diets and exercise, have specific, achievable goals - and activate a community of like-minded supportive people," added Bradley.

Here's how to make effective New Year's resolutions:

* Make them simple and concrete: "30 minutes of exercise per day" or "Add 1 vegetable to meals," for example. If you're starting an exercise program, check with your doctor first.

* Don't overload yourself: Start with only 1-2 goals, or you can feel overwhelmed.

* Use the buddy system: Find a friend or group of like-minded people to support you and help keep each other accountable.

Don't give up on your wellness before New Year's, and use resolutions to focus on small, reachable goals, so you can build on that success all year long.

6 tips for hosting a stress-free holiday

(BPT) - The holidays are quickly approaching and so is the stress that holiday hosts know all too well. But with the right preparation and kitchen essentials, you'll feel ready and excited to celebrate the season. Follow the tips below to throw the most festive gathering this season - without the guesswork!

1. Keep your ingredients "fa-la-la fresh."

Get inspired with tried-and-true recipes from Bosch and plan your full menu ahead of time, from appetizers to dessert. Start building your grocery list with each ingredient you'll need (and don't forget to double or triple the recipe, depending on how many it serves).

Grocery stores are busier than ever during the holidays, so make plenty of time for shopping in advance and bulk-buy ingredients to stock your refrigerator with everything you need. Utilize refrigerator features to help extend the shelf life of your food and keep everything in an easy-to-find, easy-to-reach place. French door bottom mount refrigerators from Bosch feature the FarmFresh System, keeping your ingredients fresher, longer. And, the customizable FlexBar allows you to rearrange shelves to make room for pies, long serving platters, wine bottles and more.

2. Create a schedule so every dish is cooked to perfection, and on time.

Keeping a timeline of when to cook each dish is key to a smooth holiday, so you're not trying to cook everything at once. For example, make the cranberry sauce the day before, put the prime rib in the oven day-of before noon, warm the rolls at 2 p.m. and get the coffee going at 4:30 p.m.

Once you have a set schedule, work with your oven for perfect results. Make sure you have an oven with convection for consistent, uniform cooking/baking, and if you're baking with several pans in the oven at once, make sure they are properly spaced to allow for even better heat distribution. When putting food in the oven, remember that cold/frozen items will impact oven temperatures that have already been pre-heated.

3. Let technology help you for a smarter holiday.

Smart appliances come with many holiday-saving features, like preheating your oven remotely from your living room, so you can get back to spending quality time with family and friends.

You can also set up the coffee playlist on the Bosch Built-In Coffee Machine so that you can make everyone's favorite cup of cheer efficiently, with no fuss. Simply enter multiple beverage orders from your smartphone or tablet, preparing one after the other with ease for the whole family via the Home Connect app.

4. Prep your appliances for the main event.

A few simple appliance hacks make them function flawlessly all through the holiday season. Clean your oven well before the holidays instead of the night before, so you're not overloading your appliance. It's generally recommended to perform a diagnostics test on your oven a few weeks before the holiday for optimal performance.

Clean your dishwasher filter to remove debris and help water drain properly, a simple task that should be done every few months. Replacing your refrigerator filter is important as well. Since you and your guests will be using the ice and water features in your fridge quite a bit, make sure your filter is fresh every six months.

5. Personalize your holiday with your guests' favorite drinks.

A wine-derful holiday is in your future with dedicated storage space for your favorite bottles. If you're in the market for a refrigerator, opt for one that doubles as a beverage center so you can offer your holiday guests their drink of choice - from beer to wine to soda - at the optimal temperature and humidity. The Bosch Refreshment Center refrigerator holds up to 17 standard wine bottles, featuring a glass-front beverage drawer with five pre-programmed settings. A customizable toast to the holiday and new year is key to the perfect celebration.

6. Dashing through the clean-up.

A simple way to cut down on dirty dishes is to use baking and cooking vessels that double as serving dishes. In addition, make sure you have a top-of-the-line dishwasher with technology that perfectly cleans your dishes as much as it dries them, for less manual steps like pre-rinsing or towel-drying. A simple holiday hack is to run the dishwasher before you bring the food to the table, so you can end your meal without a looming pile of dishes waiting for you in the sink.

STORM...

Wednesday in western Kansas and wreaked havoc throughout the afternoon as it knocked down power poles and blew semi trucks off highways.

Downed power poles ignited grass fires that were fanned by wind gusts of 100 mph across the flatlands, destroying at least three homes and a Clydesdale horse ranch in which one of the large breed equines perished. Smoke and dust from the storm was blown all the way to the Great Lakes Region and was visible in eastern Kansas as well before the storm arrived here.

Anderson County Emergency Management Director J.D. Mersman said no reports of major damage were received in Anderson County. Kwikom Communications, which provides wireless internet service in the area, suffered a widespread service outage which was apparently rectified by Thursday afternoon locally, though company officials did not return emails from the Review for comment on the outage.

Grain elevator equipment which housed a Kwikom transmitter at Corley Seed Farm near Westphalia was downed by the storm. The storm spawned a number of tornado warnings and diverted flights from Kansas City International Airport.

Kansas Department of Transportation issued a warning Thursday about missing road signs due to storm damage, particularly in central and western Kansas. Anderson County Sheriff Vern Valentine said Friday no such damage had apparently occurred in Anderson County according to deputies on patrol.

December's unseasonable warm temperatures are expected to continue this week with highs in the 50s to lower 60s on Friday.

Chris Weiner, who was hired in 2017 and left for a city manager's job in Monett, Mo., at a reported salary of $125,000. Weiner had been awarded a raise to $95,000 from $90,000 less than a year previous to his announcement. Wilson was hired at $81,000 annually.

Commissioners and citizens responded on a city survey on the topic repeatedly said they hoped to avoid a situation in which a newly hired city manager would use the position as a rung in their career ladder, and leave the post after only a few years.

Wilson's appointment set off a search to replace him at city clerk. An advertisement for that post appears in today's Review.

Preparation is key for a successful calving season

By Shelby Varner, K-State Research and Extension news MANHATTAN, Kan. – Kansas State University veterinarian Gregg Hanzlicek said being prepared ahead of calving season is the best way for producers to assure they will bring home the newborn calves successfully.

A key to having a successful calving and production season is for cows and heifers to be in the appropriate body condition, which according to Hanzlicek is a score of 5-7. He said he has seen many cattle in the 3-4 range in the past few months.

“We’re far enough away from calving that we can add condition to these cows and heifers without (creating) an economic burden,” he said. “It really comes down to having a formulated ration that is balanced for protein and energy.”

For those wanting to add scour vaccines to their prevention program, “it’s time to decide what vaccine they are going to use,” Hanzlicek said. “Look at the label and schedule on the calendar when they need to start vaccinating the cows and heifers.”

Hanzlicek said heifers will require two doses of the scours vaccine, while cows need one. The timing of those vaccines is “very, very important,” he said.

Also, Hanzlicek recommends establishing a clean calving area to help reduce the risk of scours. “There’s two major risk factors for scours,” he said. “One is the lack of colostrum consumption. The other is a contaminated environment that the babies are born into.”

Hanzlicek recommends having a location to move the pairs off the calving area to keep the calving facility less contaminated with the scour organisms.

Getting the calf here safely is another factor to consider, “Most operations are going to have to help at least one animal during the calving season,” Hanzlicek said. The last national survey indicated that 1 of every 100 heifers and 2 of every 100 adult cows will need assistance.

Being prepared to pull a calf is important. Hanzlicek said producers should have the following items on hand:

- Clean straps or chains.
- OB sleeves.

- Lube.
- Working calf pullers.
- Veterinarian’s phone number.

Intervening at an appropriate time is important. “If we intervene too early and the cow or heifer is not dilated, we can injure the tissues and hurt the calf,” Hanzlicek said. “If we intervene too late, a lot of times that’s when we end up with stillborn calves.”

According to Hanzlicek, once a cow has reached the second stage of labor, they should give birth within 30 minutes. A heifer should calve within an hour. Second stage labor is when the heifer or cow can be observed experiencing uterine contractions, or the water-bag or calf’s feet are visible.

If assistance from the producer is needed, and they are unable to extract the calf within 15 minutes, then help – either a veterinarian or someone with more experience – should be called.

Following calving, the calf should be up and nursing within two hours, Hanzlicek said. If not, a colostrum replacer can be given to help get the calf started.

“Colostrum-based powders are the best way to go, and I would recommend that every producer have one or two bags of powder replacer on hand during the calving season,” Hanzlicek said.

Fruit, nut gifts should be refrigerated to maintain quality

MANHATTAN, Kan. – If you’ve received a beautiful basket filled with fruit and other goodies for Christmas, enjoy it.

But, maybe not for too long. If you want the fruit to maintain its freshness, Kansas State University horticulture expert Ward Upham suggests you disassemble the basket and place the fruit in refrigerated storage.

“If all of the products in the basket are tree fruits – apples, pears, oranges, grapefruit, for example – you can place the entire basket in a cool place,” or about 40 degrees Fahrenheit, according to Upham.

If the basket contains bananas or other tropical fruits (with the exception of citrus), remove those fruits and store separately. “About 3-4 weeks is about as long as you can expect to store these fruits without some shriveling and loss of crispness,” Upham said.

Nuts for the holidays
Pecans and other nuts are another popular gift during the holiday season. Like fruit, Upham said nuts can quickly lose quality if not stored properly.

“Excessive water loss can lead to shriveled nutmeats, and the fats and oils in nuts can quickly spoil, developing an off-flavor or rancid taste,” he said.

Store shelled or unshelled nuts in the refrigerator or freezer. Upham said nuts quickly absorb flavors from other stored products so he recommends storing them in a tightly sealed container.

“A solid plastic container with a tightly fitting lid is preferred,” he said. “You can use a heavy grade resealable plastic bag, as well. If nutmeats are tightly sealed, they can be stored in a freezer for up to one year, but using them within six months is preferred.”

Upham and his colleagues in K-State’s Department of Horticulture and Natural Resources produce a weekly Horticulture Newsletter with tips for maintaining home landscapes. The newsletter is available to view online or can be delivered by email each week.

Interested persons can also send their garden- and yard-related questions to Upham at wupham@ksu.edu, or contact your local K-State Research and Extension office.

device, was May 17, more than three months after the search of his residence.

Emerson alleged the February 6, 2020, search warrant of his Garnett home issued by Kimball should be invalid, because he said Kimball had prior knowledge of drug-related activities at Emerson’s home. Emerson told investigating officers in a probable cause affidavit he procured meth and used it in “chemsex” activities with various guests who visited him as a means to intensify sexual pleasure.

Kimball, through his attorney, denied any relationship and noted Emerson provided no evidence or details of one. Hoeme’s motion notes a letter to the court rebutting the claim written by Kimball, but no copy of that letter exists in the online court record.

Hoeme’s motion directs that if Oliver indeed has a conflict in the case and barring her sickness or disability, the proper procedure would have been for the court to appoint a special prosecutor or for Oliver to have requested assistance from the Kansas Attorney General’s office.

The motion asserts Oliver has still been present throughout most of the case even with Maxwell in the role of special prosecutor, and alleges the county attorney’s office has apparently been the source of media releases “all of which have placed Mr. Emerson in a disparaging light on the front page of the local newspaper.”

The rescheduled hearing resulted in new hearing subpoenas being issued Friday for Kimball, as well as Garnett Police Officers Todd Turner and chief Kurt King for their testimony in the Jan. 19 hearing.

Time for another trip

DIGGING UP THE PAST

Henry Roeckers
Call (785) 504-4722 for local archeology information.

Time for another break! The week of Dec. 7-11, Kay and I went on another bus tour "San Antonio, Texas Christmas". Once again we traveled with Angie Bozeman, owner, operator and tour hostess of "Heritage Tours" out of Yoder, Ks. There were 45 of us on this tour.

Monday 6Dec2021
We left Garnett just shortly after 1:00 p.m. for south Hutchinson, Ks., where we spent the night before departing on our trip the next morning. On our drive out, we took a break at McDonalds in El Dorado, Ks. Our next stop was at the Hutchie-Bee Motel in South Hutchinson. We walked right across the street for supper at McDonalds.

Tuesday 7Dec202
Up at 5:15 a.m., a cool 28 degrees. Breakfast at McDonalds before driving to Yoder. At 6:30 a.m. we began boarding the bus and at 7:00 a.m. the wheels were rolling, heading for Texas.

Our very first stop was in Maize, Ks., where we picked up 5 of our passengers. Lots of winter wheat up and looking great. Geese, geese, everywhere you look there were geese, fields, ponds and sky. At 9:00 a.m. we had passenger introductions. Crossed the Oklahoma state line at 9:25 a.m. Our first break stop was at 9:45 a.m. at Tonkawa, Ok.

After leaving our rest stop, we played all kinds of fun games. Soon we crossed the river in Oklahoma City, Ok. We got to see where the US Olympic Rowing Team Headquarters and practice lanes were on the river. Our lunch stop was in Moore, Oklahoma, where had several choices of places to eat. Kay and I chose KFC. It was here our bus broke down and we had to wait on another bus to arrive out of Oklahoma City. Back on the road at 1:10 p.m. Crossed the Texas line at 2:55 p.m. It was 54 degrees. We played a lot of Christmas games. We ran into road construction for miles, before arriving at our motel in Hillsboro, Tx. at 5:35 p.m. We had an excellent supper at the R & K Cafe, before retiring for the day at the LaQuinta Inn.

Our trip will be Cont'd....

Respectfully submitted by: Henry Roeckers. 15Dec2021

Taking measure

KANSAS COMMENTARY

GREG DOERING, KANSAS FARM BUREAU

Despite all the available metrics available for us to make sense of our world, measuring it is still largely defined by the parameters set forth by humans.

Everyone knows Mount Everest is the tallest mountain at just over 29,000 feet above mean sea level. Calculating the distance from base to peak gives the edge to Hawaii's Mauna Kea at 33,484 feet, with just less than 14,000 of those above sea level. If you move the starting point to Earth's center and look for the highest point closest to the stars, you'll land on the top of Ecuador's Mount Chimborazo because of its proximity to the equator where the Earth's rotation makes the crust thicker.

Measuring the physical attributes around us is tricky enough given the ability to produce vastly different outcomes based on where an observer chooses to begin. Still the measurements of physical attributes are objective. When it comes to measuring the lives of others, we have to resort to subjective opinions.

On occasion, however, a person's accomplishments are so impartially good and decent that society's instincts and emotions combine into tautological proof. They are mountains in their own right.

Bob Dole was a mountain of a man, and his contribution to Kansas and America are immense and immeasurable. After more than a week of reflection and mourning the loss of such a man, it's quite possible if any metric did exist to quantify the admiration and devotion he inspired, Dole would set records.

There are so many inflection points from which to choose to begin measuring. His birth in Russell; the Dust Bowl years of his youth; war wounds suffered on an Italian mountain. You can't pick just one, they're all part of the fabric that made up who Dole became.

If pressed, however, I'd consider the barrage of enemy fire to be the most consequential for Kansas and the nation. Dole was studying to become a doctor when he enlisted and went off to war. The bullets that tore into his body didn't just take his right arm, it likely robbed central Kansas of one of its finest physicians.

Dole's arduous three-year recovery also likely factored into his willingness to accept incremental progress, knowing that small changes add up over the course of time. This also meant largely avoiding the legislative spotlight, for as one of his many obituaries mentions, Dole's record has "no signature bill." Instead, he was content to leave fingerprints on decades of budget, tax and foreign policy discussions.

Though I knew some of the broad strokes about most of the events mentioned above prior to his death earlier this month, I never knew just how much support he garnered outside of Kansas. I was a freshman in high school when his political career ended just short of the presidency. I knew him better as a pharmaceutical pitchman than a legislative powerbroker, though it was the latter that eventually made the biggest impression on me.

I met Dole exactly once, during his "farewell" tour in 2014. He wasn't running for anything, and he didn't have anything to offer other than some conversation and his wit. Yet his presence alone was enough to draw a crowd on a sunny weekday afternoon in May. Some came just to say hello. For some, it was a chance to say goodbye. Still others just wanted to be in the presence of greatness again.

Every one of us was better for the experience, even if we couldn't quantify that at the time.

2021-22 WINTER SPORTS

Anderson County boys are experienced and tall

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Anderson County will look to build on their 8-win improvement over the past two seasons, leaning heavily on a starting five that is all seniors and will be most likely the tallest team on the court all season.

This will be the third season leading Anderson County for Dan Ray and without a doubt will be his most experienced and talented team.

Ray took over a young, inexperienced team a few seasons ago but now those growing pains will look to pay off.

Two years ago AC finished just 3-19 but improved to 11-11 last season.

Four of the five leading scorers return and are all starters this year.

Reece Katzer, 6'8", led the team with 10.4 points and 5 rebounds per game.

Chaylin Peine, 6'5", averaged 4 points and 4 rebounds last year.

Derek Rockers added nearly 8 points per game and 3 rebounds and Reese Jarett tacked on 5.5 points per game.

Joining the quartet will be senior starter Kyle Belcher.

Key reserves will be juniors Dallas Kueser and Caden Register.

"Once again, we have a lot of height," Coach Ray stated. "Their effort and defense will be what wins games for us."

Anderson County does have to replace a quartet of seniors that were instrumental in turning things around for the Bulldogs. Bo Dilliner was second on the team with 8.5 points. Also gone are Justin and Josh Stifter and Leo Sheahan.

Lady Bulldogs will be young, but still have big goals

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - It isn't an easy task to replace a 1,000 point scorer in any season, but the fact that the Anderson County Lady Bulldogs have to replace two of the most prolific scorers in school history in one season will make the task even more daunting for the young squad.

Gone are seniors Rayna Jasper and Cali Foltz, who both hit the 1,000 point mark last season.

"It hadn't been accomplished by any Bulldog in 19 years, so to have two of them hit that mark was something special," fourth year head coach Amy Disbrow stated.

Another handful of seniors are also gone from the squad that finished 11-1 in league last year and 18-4 overall which was good for sub-state runner-ups for the second straight season.

Katie Schmit, MaKenzie Kueser, Marah Lutz, Kameron Simpson, Hailey Gillespie and Madolyn Honn all contributed in helping the Bulldogs have a successful season.

Even with that huge class of seniors, AC returns Caitlyn Foltz and Kylie Disbrow. They both started as freshmen so they will not be lacking experience. Also Addie Fudge earned valuable minutes at the guard position last year.

They were thrown into the fire early in the season, squaring off against both Baldwin and Louisburg who are believed to be among the toughest teams they will face this season.

Despite the lack of experience, Coach Disbrow still is shooting for a repeat of the league title and a substate championship.

"This team is young but we have some key players returning that will make a tough line up," Disbrow stated.

Foltz averaged 5.1 rebounds and 1.3 steals last year and Disbrow pulled down 7.6 rebounds per game and led the team with 34 blocked shots on the year.

Another addition to the team will be senior Brooklyn Kurtz, who missed last season due to online schooling. She played varsity both her freshman and sophomore seasons.

Fudge will be critical stepping into the point guard spot, sophomore Brooke Galey will give the team some athleticism and spunk to go along with fellow sophomore Lexi Overstreet and junior Kalina Edgecomb.

"We will be long this year, with options both inside and outside the paint helping to create balance," Coach Disbrow added. "This will be an exciting year for the Lady Bulldogs."

AC boys wrestling looks to rebound from season altered by COVID

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT – Five year veteran head coach Jeremy McAdam of the Anderson County boy's wrestling team feels he has a solid team, but at the same time young and have a lot to prove.

McAdam has been with the program for 7 years and is joined by second year assistant Keegan Barnes, who also coaches the Kansas Thunderstruck Wrestling local youth program.

Due to COVID restrictions, wrestling looked much different last winter than it has in the past, which caused teams missing multiple weight classes in a tough position.

"Last year our record was not the best due to lack of numbers," McAdam stated. "We were only allowed dual type competitions during the regular season."

This means two teams compete against each other weight for weight and with us having 6 classes open from the start it made winning difficult.

"Everyone had to win and most by pin for us to win a dual," McAdam added.

The team has just 3 seniors. They are Dalton Kellerman, Jimmy Swanson and Dustin Johnson.

Despite being seniors, they are inexperienced as it is the first year for all of them.

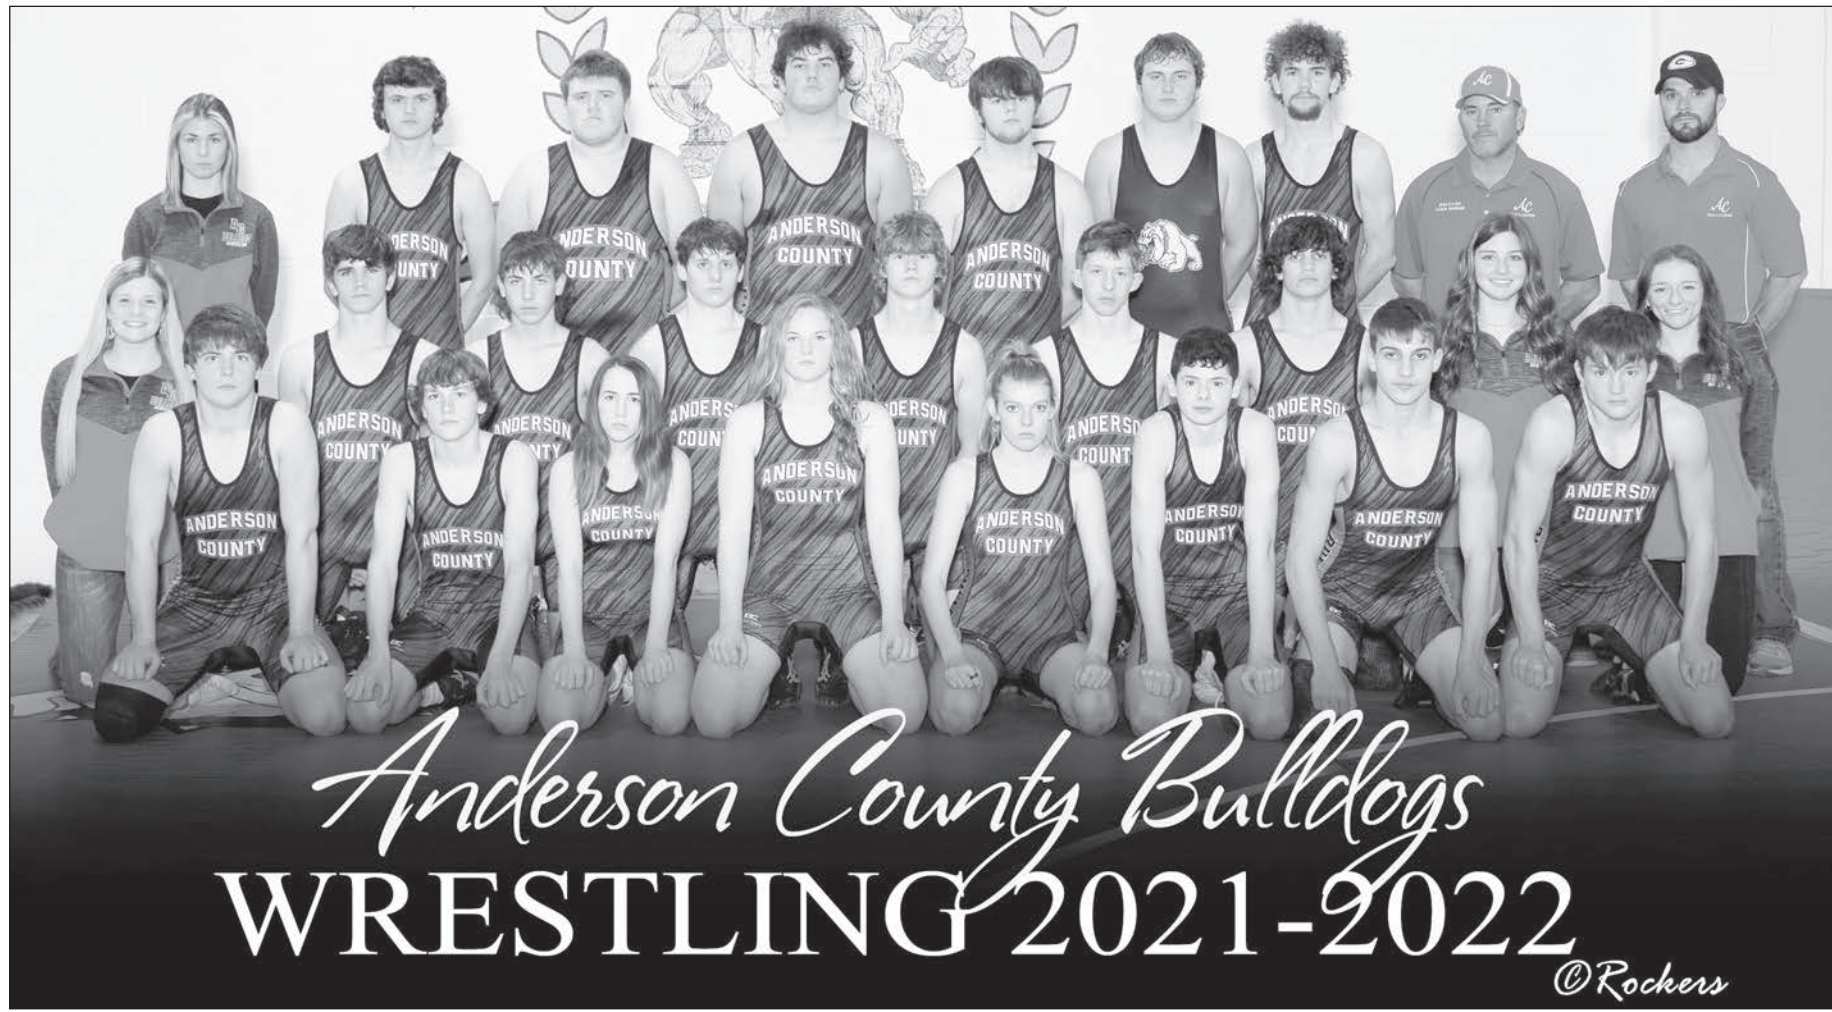

"They are all very aggressive and going to be fun to watch," McAdam said.

Joining the seniors are juniors Brayden Hermreck, Trinten Guernsey, Parker McCarty, Issac Richardson, John Wright and newcomer Dallas Kueser.

The group of sophomores include A.J. Schaffer, Masten Wright, Colten Wittman, Kelson Eglhof, Trey Clark, Porter Foltz and Damon Moyer.

There is a lone freshman on the team, Conner Prothe.

Hermreck, Schaffer, Guernsey, J. Wright, M. Wright and Wittman are all returning letter winners from last season.

Anderson County qualified just one wrestler for the state tournament last season, which was Schaffer. He finished in the top 8 at the regional to qualify.

"In a normal season the top 16 go," McAdam stated. "Ashton Miller finished in the top 16 last year which would have given us 2 qualifiers."

Coach McAdam believes in a normal regionals, with how they are usually bracketed, that they would have most likely slipped another athlete or two into state as well.

"Regionals was like watching the first day of State," McAdam said. "Some of the brackets had 5 of the top 6 wrestlers in the state and with only 4 qualifiers it would make for some tough competition."

McAdam is looking to the present, but acknowledges it is always tough to lose seniors. Last year Anderson County graduated four of them. They are Ashton Miller, Tyler Denny, AJ Rues and Dominic Meyer.

Miller and Denny gave four years to the wrestling program, lettering every season.

"While it is tough to lose your studs, it's equally tough losing the others as well," McAdam added.

Rues and Moyer both were on the team for 3 years.

"Rues always gave it his all and had a great attitude every day. Meyer was just good entertainment and fun to be around," said McAdam.

They will be putting their fitness training to good use as they both have joined the military.

One final thought from Coach on the 2021-2022 season, "I look forward to having a good year. We are young and have a lot of new kids that are filling tough spots, but they will be ready. It will be fun to watch this team grow as the season goes on."

Lady Bulldogs wrestling have new coach

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT – In just their third season as being a sanctioned sport, the Anderson County Bulldogs women's wrestling program is still attempting to gain traction and build the program.

The first season that the state of Kansas recognized girl's wrestling as an official high school sport was the 2020 season and just as the popularity seemed to grow, COVID wreaked havoc on much of the momentum the sport built following that first season.

Kicking off the third season for the Lady Bulldogs wrestling program will be first year head coach, Maggie Price.

This will be Price's first year coaching, but she is no stranger to wrestling as she has wrestled herself for 8 years.

She wrestled in high school at Anderson County, then Baldwin and also wrestled at Baker University.

"She will be a very good addition to the team," men's head coach Jeremy McAdam said.

Being in her first year and having just three wrestlers, Price hopes this group can help lead the program into bigger and better things.

"Ultimately I hope to grow the girls program to the size of the boys," Price stated. "I think the best way to do that is to go get some state placements/championships and show everyone what female wrestlers are capable of."

The trio of wrestlers for the Lady Bulldogs are senior Clarissa Sheahan (143 lb class), junior Bailey Clawson (126) and freshman Danika Metcalfe (109).

Underclassmen needed to step up for Vikings

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

Head coach Tyler Oestreicher is in his 6th year leading the Central Heights Vikings and thus far it has produced solid results after a struggle the first couple of seasons.

Coach Oestreicher was winless (0-21) his first season, 3-17 in his second year, 15-6 in year three and regressed slightly to 8-13 and 10-11 in the past two seasons respectively.

Despite losing a pair of starters that were two of the top 3 scorers, the future looks bright for the Vikings.

Jarod Crawford averaged 12.4 points, 5 rebounds and 4 assists per game and Hunter Bones averaged 10 points 4 rebounds but a solid core of younger players are ready to step up and replace them.

Returning starters are Ethan Rowan, Connor Peel and Luke Burkdoll. Rowan is just a sophomore and Peel and Burkdoll are juniors.

Other key returners are juniors Max Cannady, Luke Brown and Nicholas

Schultz. Sophomores Alex Skeet, Baker Moore and Kyler Bellinger are going to be counted upon to fill in some key minutes.

Coach Oestreicher said, "I look for our team to be very young and exciting this year."

It is unusual for a team to have no seniors with varsity experience, but that is exactly what the Vikings are looking at this year.

"Leadership will have to fall into our juniors and sophomores hands," Coach said. "They are very capable of leading this team but the challenge is on them."

Coach expects his squad to overcome these challenges early and have a great stretch this season.

"We are going to be very intense on both ends of the court," Coach said with confidence that it will help them overcome any inexperience.

"Our goal every year is to be at our peak come Substate time. We want to get better each year and build from each game," Coach Oestreicher added.

Lady Vikings look to keep momentum from last season

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

RICHMOND - The Central Heights Lady Vikings are coming off one of their most successful seasons in recent years, going 7-13 last year.

That doesn't sound great, but as a team they had just won 9 games over the previous 3 years combined.

Leading the Lady Vikings is first year head coach Kaden Shaffer. If Shaffer can get the Vikings to the .500 mark on the season, it would be their best finish since they were 19-4 in the 2011-12 season.

This year's team is returning a solid core of players in Taryn Compton, Lily Meyer, Erykah Haynes and Cameron Peel.

Compton was Flint Hills All-League Honorable Mention last season as a junior.

Key losses from last season are Mary Roehl and Cheyenne Higbie.

Viking wrestling returns after a brief hiatus

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

RICHMOND - While the numbers aren't staggering, the Central Heights Vikings are again fielding a wrestling team after not having one since the 2018-2019 season.

That final season had 10 members, 5 of them were freshman. They were coached by Coach Swendson, who was in his sixth season.

The Vikings new head coach will be Jeff Meyer. Coach Swendson and Coach Meyer know each other well as they have headed the Central Heights Kids Wrestling Club together. It's a great way to introduce the kids to wrestling.

"These kids are the future of the Central Heights wrestling program and they learn such

Lancers look to turn corner under new coach

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

COLONY – The Lancers lost their top two scorers and will have a new head coach this season but still shooting for a top three league finish.

Last year's team finished 8-12. In fact, they have had 7 or 8 wins in 4 of the past 5 seasons. The other year they were 10-14.

Kobe Miller and Tyson Hermreck are both gone. They combined to score 25 points and 13 rebounds per game, which is a lot of production to replace.

Other key losses are Stratton McGhee and Jacquez Coleman, which made a large nucleus of the rotation last year.

New head coach Dakotah Sporing will rely on seniors Ethan Prasko and Keaton Davis as they will be looked to lead a group of juniors that include Karter Miller, Stetson Miller, Holden Barker and Ethan Godderz.

The strength of this group would be defensive and hustle. Conversely, the weaknesses are rather glaring as they may be the smallest team on the court every night and may struggle at times offensively.

Lady Lancers have new coach, new optimism

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

COLONY – It is never easy starting over as a team but after a 2-17 finish last year, their has to be a sense of renewed optimism as new head coach Caleb Powelson takes over for the Crest Lady Lancers.

Not only did they just win twice last year, but they were coming off an 11-11 year the season before and returned 4 of 5 starters so were expecting much more.

Key players this year will be seniors Lindsey Godderz and Vivian Noah, juniors McKenna Hammond and Haylee Beckmon and sophomores Mia Coleman and Kayla Hermreck.

Being a new coach, Coach Powelson isn't worried with anyone on the schedule.

"Our toughest competitor will be ourselves," Powelson stated. "If we can stick to the fundamentals, play good defense, not turn the ball over and keep a positive attitude we will be successful."

Powelson added, "Our goals are just to be smart with the ball and limit turnovers and shoot better than 40% from the field."

A key loss from last year's team was Aubree Holloran.

The Lancers will look to use their athleticism and positivity to overcome their deficiencies in their ability to see the floor and shooting.

Defense keys Lady Bulldogs in win over Oz

OSAWATOMIE - After a rough week that included a couple of lopsided defeats, the Anderson County Lady Bulldogs got exactly what they needed heading into the holiday break as they downed Osawatomeie on the road, 36-25.

It was a close game early on as the two teams were knotted up at 11 after the first quarter, which included 7 lead changes. Anderson County would score a basket late in the first to tie the score, which would be the last time they trailed on the night. The Bulldogs would hold a slim 20-18 lead at half.

Osawatomeie would go cold though in the second half, only mustering 7 points over the final 16 minutes of play.

AC gained a little breathing room in the third quarter with a 10-5 advantage to head into the fourth leading 30-23.

The two teams would combine for just 7 points in the fourth, only 2 of them by Osawatomeie as the Lady Bulldogs finished off the victory.

Neither team shot well, but Osawatomeie was particularly off all night shooting just 20% from the field. From inside the three point line they were bothered all night by the interior defense of AC as they shot just 2 of 18 (11%). This number is a direct reflection of the 11 blocks by the Bulldogs on the night.

Anderson County dominated the inside game, outscoring Oz 18-2 inside the paint.

Kylie Disbrow led all scorers with 14 points and added 6 blocks and 5 rebounds.

Brooklyn Kurtz also notched double figures with 12 points and added 6 rebounds.

Caitlyn Foltz scored just 3 points but pulled down 10 rebounds.

Bulldogs cruise past Osawatomeie last Tuesday

OSAWATOMIE - The Anderson County boys went into the holiday with a commanding 51-23 win on the road last Tuesday over Osawatomeie.

Oz kept within striking distance, trailing 14-7 after the first quarter.

AC put the clamps down defensively in the second quarter though and blew the game open with a 13-2 advantage in the period for a 27-9 halftime lead.

The third quarter saw the Bulldogs tack 7 more onto their lead, cruising to a 45-20 lead heading into the fourth.

Osawatomeie would only muster 3 points in the final quarter en route to the 28-point defeat.

Reece Katzer led all scorers with 12 points.

Chaylin Peine scored 10 points in the first half, 8 of them in the first quarter. He would finish with 11 points in the game.

Reese Jarett also netted 11 points, 7 of them coming in the third quarter alone.

crime, and what we've seen is crime sprees across the country, and many times the victims are Blacks.

Gun control cities like Chicago have led to more gun violence predominantly against minorities.

Black Republican candidates are running more often, and they receive more racist attacks from Democrats than any other candidate. Larry Elder, a Black candidate for governor of California, was called a white supremacist.

Winsome Sears, a Black immigrant from Jamaica, won the lieutenant governor's race in Virginia against another Black woman running as a Democrat. An MSNBC commentator called her a "black mouth" for white supremacy.

These statements show the left is not serious about real discussions on how to improve the lives of minorities in America. They are seeking partisan control and berate people of color who run as conservatives.

America needs to take a step forward and continue to expand freedom and justice for all, but as long as one side plays politics, it may never happen.

Herbicide-resistant weeds? K-State researcher hopes to crush them MANHATTAN, Kan. - A Kansas State University researcher in western Kansas says he may have an innovative way to kill weeds commonly found in farmer's fields: simply put, he wants to crush 'em.

tem that crushes weed seeds will work in Midwest and High Plains crop fields.

"We don't know much yet; not much data exists in the United States," Kumar said. "We conducted a preliminary test this fall in a grower's field, and the seed crusher did a decent job of crushing Palmer amaranth seeds in a milo field that was heavily infested with pigweed.

management if you combine it with other methods of weed control, and you are making weed management plans for the next 4-5 years rather than an annual basis."

To date, the roller cage system is likely cost-prohibitive for farmers - manufacturers currently are producing the system for about $75,000 - and using the system will require a combine to pull at 80-100 horsepower. But Kumar anticipates the price for the system will come down over time as the technology is perfected and use becomes more widespread.

He anticipates that K-State's research also will dig deeper into the economics, factoring in the cost of equipment, potential yield increases and decreased use of herbicides.

Kumar, who is part of a national core of scientists that go by the acronym GROW (Getting Rid Of Weeds), has also studied the benefits of another HWSC known as chaff lining, in which crop chaff and weeds are funneled into narrow rows behind a combine. The residue is left to over-winter, causing the weed seed to decay, or the thin row can be destroyed with fire.

of Food and Agriculture. The researchers will explore the effectiveness and relevance of chaff lining and the seed crusher as part of integrated weed management in the High Plains' no-till dryland crop production systems.

More information on weed management is available from the Western Kansas Agricultural Research Center in Hays.

That's right, says Vipin Kumar, a weed scientist at the Agricultural Research Center in Hays: He's studying a method known as Harvest Weed Seed Control (HWSC) in which weed seed is literally pulverized by a rolling cage mill that is fitted to the back of a combine during harvest.

Kansas farmers routinely face such nemeses as Palmer amaranth and other pigweeds, feral ryegrass and kochia, which have developed varying degrees of resistance to herbicides. Because of that - plus the rising cost of chemicals and other inputs - farmers will need options for managing weeds.

HWSC is a method first advanced in western Australia, known as a region where weeds have developed widespread resistance to common herbicides. A version of the rolling cage mill was actually developed by an Australian grower who had become frustrated with other weed control methods.

Longer term from a weed science standpoint, HWSC is one type of technique farmers need to bring into their management system if they want to mitigate the resistant weeds on the farm," Kumar said. "There is no silver bullet; you won't resolve all your problems with this method, but it can play a critical role in integrated weed

November Pieces & Patches Quilt Guild minutes

The Pieces and Patches Quilt Guild was called to order by President Jeanette Gadelman on Thursday, November 18th, 2021 at 9:30 a.m. The meeting was held at Kansas State Extension Office Conference Room. There were 23 members in attendance and two guests: Mary Cubit and Clara Ann Kempnich.

Minutes of the October 28th, 2021 meeting were approved as printed.

Lynn Wawrzewski gave the treasurer's report.

Committee Reports
 Programs: Connie Hatch reported that the November program was the members sharing a Christmas project and a special recipe. The December meeting will be the luncheon and no program planned. There was discussion of having a program about the good ergonomics in the sewing room.

BOM: Mary Parrott asked that members turn in orphan block hot pads at the December meeting. Joyce Buckley showed another bed sized quilt of the Mystery BOM project for 2021 made of red/black/blues/greens batiks. Shirley Allen showed a top made of scrappy fabrics using the Mystery BOM project for 2021.

Opportunity Quilt: A picture was taken of the 2022 Opportunity Quilt with all members who worked on the project. It is being displayed at different businesses in Burlington and Garnett.

Challenge: It was time to share the Challenge projects. The theme was "Sing it Baby" and members had to make a project related to their favorite song. Terrie Gifford had a wall hanging "Keeping Safe on the Seas." Lori Hoyt showed a block for "Keeper of the Stars". Donna Sutton showed "The Little Brown Church" project. Mary Parrott showed a musical note wall hanging to represent Creedance Clearwater Revival. Judy Stukey showed a project representing "How much is that doggie in the window?" Lynn Wawrzewski showed "Autumn Leaves". And Sandra Moffatt showed an appliqued wall hanging for "He's got the whole world in his hands."

Charity: Sandra Moffatt took all the quilts she had received to Parkview Heights. She urged members to make more quilts as there is a need.

Newsletter: Terrie asked members to let her know if they didn't get the last newsletter.

Old Business

Jeannette updated the group about the 2022 guild retreats. The February retreat is 21st through 23rd, 2022 and currently 8 members have signed up and paid their deposit. There is room for 12 guests total and the individual cost is $219.00. The September retreat is a 4-day retreat, September 26th-29th, 2022. Eight members have signed up. The cost is $299.00. There is room for 4 more guests to sign up and participate.

Bonnie reminded members that she had tickets for the raffle of the Vivian Fink quilt.

Proposed By-laws change: There was continued discussion about adding a Coffey County Scholarship to a graduating senior from any of their high schools. There was discussion about having 2 separate scholarships awarded and 2 separate committees developed. Each committee will sort through the scholarships and select the top 3-5 participants and bring that information to the guild for the members to vote on.

CURRENT BY-LAWS

Scholarship: contact Anderson County and Crest

High Schools to confirm the Guild will participate in the scholarship program, receive entries and determine the winning individual, select someone to present the scholarship and invite the winner to the next Guild meeting.

PROPOSED BY-LAWS CHANGE:

Scholarship: Contact Anderson County and Crest High Schools high schools in Anderson County and Coffey County to confirm the Guild will participate in the their scholarship program, receive entries and determine the winning individual, individuals, select someone to present the scholarship scholarships, and invite the winners to the next Guild meeting. There will be two (2) separate committees established and two (2) separate scholarships awarded.

Lori Hoyt moved to submit the proposed by-laws change and to award 2 separate scholarships for graduating seniors, one for Anderson County and one for Coffey County, and to have 2 separate committees established. Shirley Allen seconded. The by-laws change motion will be paper balloted at the December meeting. Members must be in attendance to vote on the by-law change.

New Business

Joyce Buckley shared plans for our Christmas Luncheon at the December 16th meeting. There will be soups, veggie and fruit trays, and desserts. Members can play games, and the Secret Sister reveal will happen. Joyce is in need of 5 centerpieces. Each member who doesn't bring food is asked to pay $3.00. The luncheon will occur at the end of our meeting.

Secret Sister: Lori Hoyt received a pattern and fabric to make it, some mini wonder clips, candy, and maroon and cream fat quarters. Connie received a stack of 10 fat quarters and a zippered bag. Terrie showed the tone on tone fat quarters she had received in her gift.

Show and Tell

Many beautiful and creative quilting projects were shared. Bonnie Deiter showed a quilt made with the HOME panel amid rows of sunflowers made with the mini wonder arc ruler. She also showed a blue and white quilt to keep up with the many other blue and white quilts that had been shared. Judy Stukey showed a king sized quilt of greens/blues/rust squares. Kay Roeckers showed a quilt top of HST stars made with batiks colors and light green border. Brenda Futrell showed a red Gnomes with gray pinwheels table runner. Terrie showed two wire wreaths tied with different strips of fabric, one was with red and green fabrics, and the second was with lighter, pastel fabrics. She also showed a Santa ornament. Lori Hoyt showed the Leavenworth Opportunity quilt she won by buying a raffle ticket at the KCRQF this past summer. The quilt pattern was called Jack's Chain. Connie showed a Christmas tree panel and side blocks wall hanging. She also showed a bed quilt made of a red/green cheater fabric that mimics applique.

Program: Members shared current and past Christmas projects they had made. They also showed the pattern and what tools, if any, were used to make it. Members also brought recipes for their favorite food recipes and shared the memories from each dish.

The meeting was adjourned.

Research continues to uncover ways to combat sudden death syndrome in soybeans

By Shelby Varner, K-State Research and Extension news MANHATTAN, Kan. - A Kansas State University plant pathologist says researchers and producers need to work together to control a soilborne disease in soybeans that can rob that crop of yields.

"Sudden death syndrome is a soilborne disease of soybean that affects the roots," said K-State's Chris Little.

Little said the symptoms of sudden death syndrome can be seen above ground as chlorosis, a yellowing of normally green leaves due to a lack of chlorophyll. Often the symptoms will appear in the field after rainfall, or in saturated soils.

"It's really a root pathogen that lives in the soil then attacks the roots, colonizes the roots early on, and then begins to make a toxin that moves through the plant and causes those above-ground symptoms that many folks have seen," Little said.

According to Little, sudden death syndrome cannot be eradicated, so control methods need to be utilized.

He recommends having the soil tested for populations of the soybean cyst nematode to make sure that the proper resistance is being used for the nematode, which may also help keep sudden death syndrome from attacking the soybean plants since both diseases can occur in the same field.

"You can check with your seed provider and try to get some information about the seed selections that you make," Little said. "Make sure that you've got some good tolerance or resistance in that material."

He added that different seed companies may use opposite scales to measure resistance, so for some companies the highest number may be the best, while for other companies the lowest number may be the best. "Make sure you check the correct number and know what it is representing," Little said.

Proper nutrition might be another way to avoid the disease. "Phosphorus amendment really has a positive role in reducing the severity of sudden death syndrome symptoms, and also can increase yield," Little said.

Little said wheat and sorghum are effective crops to use in rotation, since those are not hosts of the sudden death syndrome fungus. Corn is another option, but the fungus can survive on corn stubble to a slight degree, according to Little.

Researchers are also studying the use of cover crops to understand their effectiveness in reducing sudden death syndrome.

"Sudden death syndrome remains a research interest at Kansas State University, but producers need to do their part to stay on top of this too," Little said.

Windbreaks in decline; state forester says program will help Kansas farmers, ranchers MANHATTAN, Kan. - A state forest official said an initiative to support windbreaks and other green infrastructure on Kansas farms is much-needed in light of recent data indicating that more than half of windbreaks in the state are in fair to poor condition.

Bob Atchison, coordinator of the Kansas Forest Service's rural forestry program, said the Great Plains Initiative 2 is a continuation of an inventory of windbreaks in Kansas, Nebraska and the Dakotas that first began in 2008 and is sponsored by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Forest Service.

The most recent inventory of windbreaks in the Great Plains - completed in 2019 - indicates windbreaks throughout the region are deteriorating. The report is available online from the Kansas Forest Service.

"In the 1930s, at the height of the Dust Bowl, the federal government invested $13.8 million to establish more than 200 million trees and shrubs in windbreaks throughout the Great Plains," Atchison said. "Today, this green infrastructure exceeds 80 years of age and is in a state of age- and climate-related decline."

Atchison said there are more than 118,000 windbreaks in Kansas, comprising 261,000 acres and stretching 31,348 miles - enough to cross the state east to west more than 76 times.

"However, an average windbreak in Kansas only takes up a little more than two acres and is generally around 1,500 feet in length," Atchison said. "So, they don't take up a lot of ground."

"But the great benefit of windbreaks is the extended protection they provide beyond their footprint, which is a distance and area at least 10 times their height on the leeward side and two times the height on the windward side. In Kansas, that adds up to almost a million acres for which windbreaks provide protection to livestock, cropland and farmsteads."

The 2019 data from the Great Plains Initiative reported that 45% of Kansas' windbreaks are in good condition, 37% in fair condition and 18% in poor condition. The report also outlined the types of windbreaks located in Kansas:

- 61% are farmstead windbreaks planted around homes and outbuildings.

- 26% are field windbreaks to reduce soil erosion, which aids crop yields.

- 11% are windbreaks to provide protection for livestock.

"Since 55% of our windbreaks are in fair to poor condition, it suggests that there is a real need to encourage our farmers and ranchers to renovate and manage windbreaks before they lose their ability to provide protection," Atchison said. "Fortunately, we have USDA conservation programs like (the Environmental Quality Incentives Program, EQIP) that can help with the cost of renovating and establishing windbreaks."

To illustrate the importance of windbreaks, Atchison pointed to the fact that Kansas has 2.5 million acres of cropland where the soils are particularly susceptible to erosion, many of these in southwest and south-central Kansas. An inventory kept by the Natural Resources and Conservation Service indicates that Kansas croplands experience 70.6 million tons of wind erosion annually - or about 2.68 tons per acre each year.

"Clearly there is still a need for field windbreaks," Atchison said, "and the Great Plains Initiative 2 provides the information we need to sustain and manage them."

Atchison said farmers and ranchers interested in renovating windbreaks should first contact a district forester, who can provide on-site advice for renovating the windbreaks, and connect producers with EQIP assistance to help get the work done.

There are seven forest districts in Kansas. The contact information for each is available on the website for the Kansas Forest Service, or interested persons can call the state office in Manhattan at 785-532-3300.

MARY...

For he that is mighty hath done to me great things; and holy is his name. And his mercy is on them that fear him from generation to generation.

He hath shewed strength with his arm; he hath scattered the proud in the imagination of their hearts.

He hath put down the mighty from their seats, and exalted them of low degree.

He hath filled the hungry with good things; and the rich he hath sent empty away.

He hath holpen his servant Israel, in remembrance of his mercy;

As he spake to our fathers, to Abraham, and to his seed for ever.

And Mary abode with her about three months, and returned to her own house.

Now the birth of Jesus Christ was on this wise: When as his mother Mary was espoused to Joseph, before they came together, she was found with child of the Holy Ghost. Then Joseph her husband, being a just man, and not willing to make her a public example, was minded to put her away privily.

But while he thought on these things, behold, the angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a dream, saying, Joseph, thou son of David, fear not to take unto thee Mary thy wife: for that which is conceived in her is of the Holy Ghost. And she shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name Jesus: for he shall save his people from their sins.

Now all this was done, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken of the Lord by the prophet, saying,

Behold, a virgin shall be with child, and shall bring forth a son, and they shall call his name Emmanuel, which being interpreted is, God with us.

Then Joseph being raised from sleep did as the angel of the Lord had bidden him, and took unto him his wife: And knew her not till she had brought forth her firstborn son: and he called his name Jesus.

And it came to pass in those days, that there went out a decree from Caesar Augustus, that all the world should be taxed. (And this taxing was first made when Cyrenius was governor of Syria.) And all went to be taxed, every one into his own city.

And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth, into Judaea, unto the city of David, which is called Bethlehem; (because he was of the house and lineage of David:.) To be taxed with Mary his espoused wife, being great with child.

And so it was, that, while they were there, the days were accomplished that she should be delivered. And she brought forth her firstborn son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn.

And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night.

And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them: and they were sore afraid. And the angel said unto them,

Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people.

For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.

And this shall be a sign unto you; Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger.

And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men.

And it came to pass, as the angels were gone away from them into heaven, the shepherds said one to another, Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known unto us.

And they came with haste, and found Mary, and Joseph, and the babe lying in a manger. And when they had seen it, they made known abroad the saying which was told them concerning this child. And all they that heard it wondered at those things which were told them by the shepherds.

But Mary kept all these things, and pondered them in her heart.

And the shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all the things that they had heard and seen, as it was told unto them.

it is too difficult to define 'conservation, but they plan to do it, whatever it is.'

The other counties that have passed resolutions are Chase, Clay, Coffey, Decatur, Dickinson, Linn, Norton, Russell, Trego, and Washington.

The suggestion that federal bureaucrats have a better idea of how to exercise stewardship over a critical habitat like the Flint Hills than the ranchers who depend upon the last remaining tallgrass prairie in the world remaining healthy rankled many — including Anderson County Commissioner Les McGhee.

McGhee said he has been a rancher his entire life and loves the land.

"As far as we're concerned the poorest steward (of the land) is the federal government," he said in a December 15 phone interview. "The individuals that make their living off of it are way better stewards than they are."

The resolution also points out that Biden's Executive Order cites no specific constitutional or statutory authority to take any action.

Not only that, but the administration has so far provided no answers about where that authority might reside.

In effect, the president decided he wanted to do something and simply issued a diktat.

This fits a pattern of the Biden administration ignoring the rule of law. The president has issued several such EOs from ending the "remain in Mexico policy," to multiple vaccine mandates, even including a ban on new oil and gas leases — as part of EO 14008 — all of which federal courts have blocked.

Nearly all of them have been blocked on the grounds that the administration simply lacked the authority to issue the orders in the first place.

So far, there do not appear to be any rulings related to the 30x30 plan, but once designation attempts are made it may be more likely.

Moreover, once NHA designations are made, they're nearly impossible to reverse.

The Anderson county resolution also notes that Biden's 30x30 plan is related to a proposal by the E.O Wilson Foundation to set aside 50 percent of the land and water on Earth to "preserve biodiversity."

According to Hutchinson News, during a call with agricultural journalists earlier this year, Vilsack said, "There is no intent to take land away from farmers. The goal here is to create new opportunities."

According to the News, Vilsack claimed the administration and the USDA want to incentivize farmers and ranchers to use "tools" that he has at the USDA to compensate and pay farmers for being good stewards of their land.

"(We want them to) embrace new opportunities and new ways," he said. "None of it involves taking anyone's land or using eminent domain."

Of course, federal funds are often the proverbial "camel's nose under the tent," and once accepted, the federal government — not the state or individual accepting the funds — is ultimately in the driver's seat.

In Nebraska, Republican

Governor Pete Ricketts has been aggressive in trying to combat what he — and many others — see as a land grab by the federal government.

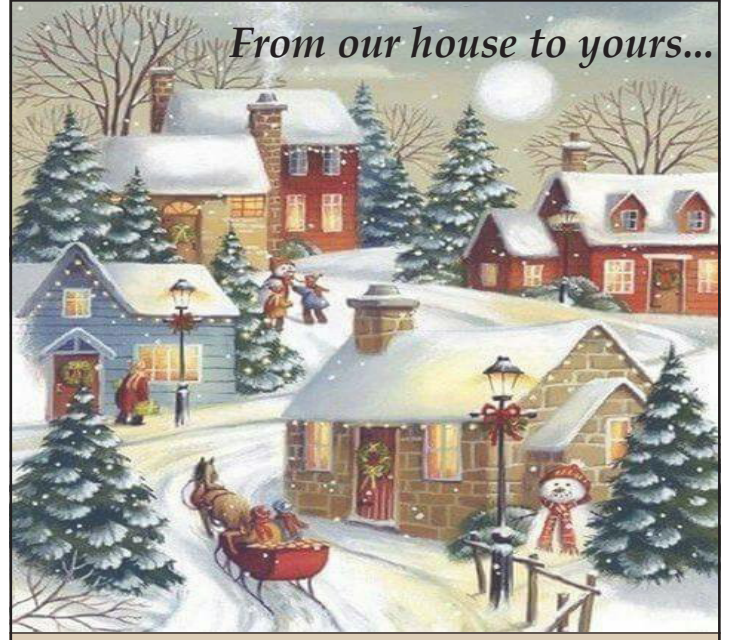

In a press release dated June 8, Ricketts pointed out that "protecting" nearly a third of the country by 2030 would require restricting a land area the size of the state of Nebraska every year, or double the state of Texas by 2030.

Back in Anderson County, McGhee and his colleagues are aware that the Biden administration will likely ignore their resolutions but hope that they will at least spark conversation in the state and perhaps lay the groundwork for a lawsuit if needed.

McGhee said he is also worried about the impact restricting the use of so much agricultural land will have on food production, noting that a very small percentage of the population is involved in agriculture, most people don't really understand where their food comes from — and some sort of wake-up call is needed.

"We've had it really good in this country for a long time," McGhee said. "If we continue on the path that they're trying to drive us down, people are going to go hungry."

"And maybe they should."
