Greeley fire claims two adults, toddler

GREELEY – State and local investigators are still awaiting a conclusive forensics report to formally identify two adults and a toddler killed in a Wednesday morning house fire at Greeley.

It was the second residential fire in as many weeks in Anderson County. A Garnett apartment house was destroyed February 23 at the corner of 5th Avenue and Walnut Streets with the structure and contents lost. Residents of one of the apartments escaped serious injury and another renter at the house was not home at the time. Two other apartments in the structure were not rented.

A statement from Anderson County Fire and Emergency Management said firefighters were dispatched to Greeley about 6:45 Wednesday morning to the two-story home in the 300 block of Main Street to find the blaze fully involved. ACEM Director J.D. Mersman said the construction of the home and the size of the blaze made it impossible for firefighters to enter the structure. Once the fire was brought under control Mersman said responders used ladders suspended over the structure and located the three individuals who perished in the blaze. A team of responders from Olathe assisted with the use of special equipment used in the event of building collapses to retrieve the victims.

The incident was being investigated by the Kansas Fire Marshal's office and the Anderson County Sheriff's office. Sheriff Vern Valentine said in a follow up statement foul play was not believed

Election filing deadline June 1

With congressional map still in limbo, deadline coming for those seeking local office

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

TOPEKA – Though the state still doesn't have an approved new congressional district map, the filing deadline for other local and state offices is still set for 12 noon on June 1 for those planning to seek elected office in the November 2022 general election.

In Anderson County, Republican Les McGhee's First District county commission seat will be up for election. Neither McGhee nor Garnett City Commissioner Greg Gwin, whose position will also be voted this coming November, have publicly announced if they plan to seek re-election.

Anderson County Clerk Julie Wettstein said local election officers had not yet heard from the Kansas Secretary of State's office regarding possible changes to the regular filing deadline for state offices. Locally, 12th District Senator Caryn Tyson has announced her candidacy for Kansas State Treasurer.

Tyson will be able to retain her senate seat with two remaining years on her present term should she lose the treasurer's race. If she wins, 12th District Republicans will appoint a replacement.

Gwin

Mark Samsel of Wellsville hasn't publicly announced whether he will seek another term as 5th District Representative, nor has Trevor Jacobs, the representative from Fort Scott whose 4th District includes the extreme southeast corner of Anderson County.

At least one ballot measure is expected to be voted on this year. The "Value Them Both" amendment in the August primary would, if passed, overturn a 2019 Kansas Supreme Court decision that determined the Kansas Constitution

Schmidt files for dismissal of map challenges

TOPEKA – Kansas Attorney General Derek Schmidt last week filed an amended petition with the Kansas Supreme Court seeking to dismiss the latest legal challenge to newly redrawn congressional districts – a plan that if approved would move Anderson and Franklin counties from the Second to the Third Congressional District.

The latest challenge was filed on behalf of Douglas County voters earlier last week in Douglas County District Court against Secretary of State Scott Schwab and Douglas County Clerk Jamie Shew. The lawsuit challenges the constitutionality of the congressional boundaries approved last month by the Kansas Legislature. Schmidt had previously asked the Kansas Supreme Court to dismiss two similar challenges brought by voters in Wyandotte County.

The map reorganizes the configuration of the districts to even up population according to one man, one vote laws. The Third District is presently some 68,000 people too large to meet the district targets, so Republican legislators split Wyandotte county in half and moved it and the City of Lawrence, presently in the Second District, into the western-focused First District. The move angered some Democrats, who said the move was an attempt to dilute Democrat clout in the Second and Third Districts.

Schmidt said bringing the

ANDERSON COUNTY COMMISSION FEBRUARY 28, 2022

Chairman Leslie McGhee called the meeting of the Anderson County Commission to order at 9:00 AM on February 28, 2022 at the Anderson County Commission Room. Attendance: Leslie McGhee, Present; David Pracht, Present; Anthony Mersman, Present. The pledge of allegiance was recited. Minutes from the previous meeting were approved as presented.

Road & Bridge

Lester Welsh, Road & Bridge Supervisor, met with the commission. He received information from the State of Kansas regarding a program that would possibly allocate $50,000 to fix any issues that an inspector should find. The county would have to pay an upfront cost of $5,000. The Commissioners don't think it is advantageous to participate. Lester received a quote for oil of $2.50/gallon which is up from last year's price of $1.70/gallon. He will run some numbers to see how much it will cost in total to chip and seal or find alternatives.

Solid Waste

Scott Garrett, Solid Waste Supervisor, met with the commission. He wanted to let the Commissioners know that the landfill is still accepting and picking up cardboard. A citizen addressed the City of Garnett Commissioners stating that the landfill stopped and was needing a way for the cardboard to be picked up. The citizen was not cutting the cardboard down enough for it to fit in the baler and requiring the landfill staff to accommodate so Scott decided to no longer pick up the citizen's cardboard. Scott also inquired about extra pay to drive the trash truck to Allen County at least 4 days a week. The discussion was tabled until the following week.

Sheriff

Vern Valentine, Sheriff, met with the commission. Discussion was held on sidewalk and curb replacement in front of the Law Enforcement Center.

Emergency Management

JD Mersman, Emergency Management Director, met with the commission. JD contacted Mike Billings, USDA consultant, regarding a grant that the County received for the 2021 Rosenbauer Pumper truck. Documentation was finalized on the grant. Upon completion of paperwork, the county was awarded $130,000 instead of the originally awarded amount of $50,000.

Economic Development

Julie Turnipseed, Economic Development Director, met with the commission. Discussion was held on land banks. The county would be on board with starting a land bank but have questions for the City of Garnett regarding maintenance of properties. A city/county meeting is to be scheduled for April where more discussion will continue.

Road & Bridge

Lester Welsh, Road & Bridge

Supervisor, and representatives from Hall Brothers met with the commission. Hall Brothers presented their product for roads. It is an asphalt product that would replace chip and seal.

Abatement and Escape

Abatement B22-159 and Escape E22-112 were approved as presented.

Adjourn

Meeting adjourned at 12:00PM due to no further business.

Do you want to get well?

WEEKLY DEVOTIONAL

BY DAVID BILDERBACK

In John chapter 5 we read the account of a trip Jesus made to Jerusalem for a feast of the Jews. He stopped by a pool which was called Bethesda, which is surrounded by five covered colonnades. Under these colonnades a great number of blind, lame and paralyzed people lay putting their hope in an old superstition about the magical qualities of the water when it started to bubble. One man who was there had been an invalid for thirty-eight years. When Jesus learned of his condition he asked the man, "Do you want to get well?" Instead of answering Jesus' question the man told Jesus why he had never been healed. He had no one to help him get in the pool when the water stirred. The man had come to believe over these many years that the only way he could be healed would be to be able to get in the pool. His answer revealed he did not know who Jesus was. You would think that when Jesus or anyone else asked the man the question his response would have been an emphatic "Yes!" I believe the man had been paralyzed so long he had come to terms with the fact that this was to be his lot in life. This same attitude can overwhelm each of us when we have been faced with repeated failures to cure our health issues, financial issues or relationship issues. Just as the man had become accustomed to his situation over the years so can we. He had put whatever hope he had in the superstition about the magical qualities of the pool. Many times we place our hope in things that are really part of the problem.

When it comes to tough issues we face in life there are no magical answers. Maybe healing is available to us but that may mean letting go of what is familiar and comfortable. It means releasing ourselves totally to God's care. It means trusting that Jesus is better than whatever we are clinging to. Perhaps the real problem is we fail to understand the power of God and are willing to settle for less than the best God has for us.

Kansas wind farms are Putin's allies in brutal energy war

Joe Biden voters, "Green Energy" policy types and Kansas landowners who greeted wind farm projects in the state with a big wet kiss as they ravaged our landscapes over the past decade shouldn't expect a Christmas card from Ukraine this year - or from anywhere else in the energy consuming world for that matter.

What they should expect is to own their share of the devastating loss of life and destruction wrought on the sovereign slavish nation by its imperial dictator to the north, as well as the coming energy and economic disaster headed our way in the United States. Because in reality, the world works just like the old children's song says - the toe bone's connected to the foot bone, the foot bone's connected to the ankle bone...

It's too much to give credit to Putin for the masterful situation in which he found himself to pursue his own dreams of rekindling the old Soviet empire, even though it's confirmed that Russia actively funded anti-fracking and other social/environmental efforts aimed at weakening Europe over the years. The wave of Green hysteria took root across Europe, leading to a massive ramp-up in expensive and inefficient wind power in Germany for instance. That move led to skyrocketing home electricity bills in the Deutschland and a growing dependence on Russia for its burgeoning gas and oil production to make up for the needs the ridiculous, subsidized wind farms failed to produce.

If it isn't clear by now, dependence is vulnerability.

The problem with wind power, besides its outrageous expense of course, is that it can't produce enough juice to meet people's needs. Relying on it makes populations more dependent of foreign sources of carbon fuels - sources that actually work - which have to be bought to maintain real power levels. But the hipness of wind farms and the Greta Thunberg guilt trip in Europe that forced more Russian carbon energy sales was nothing more than a cash cow for Putin until the U.S. elected the bumbling Joe Biden president.

Putin must have been giddy - or as giddy as a former KGB agent can be - at the news Biden's first actions as president would be to choke off the thriving U.S. energy sector that had for the first time in modern history made the U.S. independent of foreign energy. Following the leftist and Putin-benefiting playbook, Biden forced the U.S. back into the Paris Climate Agreement and stopped new oil and gas leases on federal lands. He canceled the Keystone XL pipeline, stepped up stagnating environmental rules on oil and gas emissions and increased the "social cost of carbon" - another ridiculous bureaucratic metric used by the federal environmental wonks and even some state regulators to help thwart policies that would foster dependable oil and coal as energy sources.

Another sad reality is that our own Kansas landowners played their role in this disaster as well.

Though leftist Green Energy types imbedded in the federal government created the subsidy-dependent wind farm industry and forced electric utilities into purchasing their outrageously inefficient and expensive power, it was farmers and landowners in rural Kansas and across the rest of the Midwest who contracted their land for the thousands of industrial turbine sites that grew this net-loss industry in the United States. Home electricity bills have shown the spiking results of the growth of wind power. Following the disastrous path of Europe, reality-disconnected power company executives are now actively shutting down coal and gas fired electric plants that provide firm power when the wind doesn't blow, banking on miraculously getting the power they need in a pinch from...somewhere.

As in Europe, the wind industry fantasy has made the U.S. more dependent on foreign energy. Landowners in the U.S. who got in bed with this devil can't escape some of the blame.

With Biden's deadly Keystone Cops performance in his retreat from Afghanistan, Putin realized an invigorating trifecta. Nations now

It is not for us to judge. If we're Christians, isn't that God's will? Why would you judge somebody, because you do not have a clue. We're human beings, it's not our place to judge.

Would someone please tell me what the economic developer has done to promote businesses in Garnett, besides things like the chocolate walk? Thank you.

Dear Democrat in denial. Get out of your imaginary world and while you're at it, go back and read the article in the paper last week again. Durham says Sussman told the FBI he wasn't surveilling Trump for any client, but the federal indictment accuses him of acting on behalf of the Clinton campaign and the tech firm both. Where there's smoke there's fire. Good ole Hillary also paid for the Steele Dossier and fed it to the all-to-willing deep staters at the FBI, and they did their own spying. How many times do you Democrats have to be caught dead-to-rights before you admit it? Thank you.

Our president Biden said at the State of The Union speech for Americans to buy made-in-America products, so why doesn't Biden buy American oil instead of Russian oil? He needs to practice what he preaches. Thank you.

I swear you know I watch the Facebook pages of some of my friends and other pages and I wonder, when you're all up about saying you're praying for someone and offering prayers for this and that and whoever is in trouble or having a hard time or a tragedy, are you really saying a prayer for them or are you just saying it so it makes you look good? If you're saying you're going to pray for someone, please, do the actual prayer for them. Saying it and not doing it doesn't help anyone and I don't imagine God appreciates it.

So the pro women's U.S. basketball player goes to Russia and gets caught with drugs in her vape and now they're talking about sending her to prison for five or ten years. And what's the United States supposed to do about it? If you're a professional athlete and you don't know any better than to take drugs with you to a foreign country where you don't know the laws and how strict they are, I say you buy it, you wear it. No reason this ought to be an international incident and more of an embarrassment to our country. Thank you.

Kansas: Help Texas in border fight

America faces a crisis at our southwest border.

During 2021, authorities encountered about two million migrants at the border, up from fewer than 550,000 the year before, not counting those who eluded detection. That wave of humanity has overwhelmed border security, and that's a problem for Kansas.

Last month, I traveled to Texas to meet with Gov. Greg Abbott and other Texas officials to see the border crisis myself. During a two-day summit with other state attorneys general, we saw the following:

- The unfinished border wall, riddled with incomplete segments shockingly easy to walk through and around. Taxpayers have bought steel to build more, but it sits rusting in piles because the Biden administration will neither install it nor allow Texas to.

- Front-line federal agents just trying to do their jobs. Unfortunately, our interaction with federal agents was limited because the evening before our arrival, their superiors in Washington abruptly canceled our briefings without explanation.

- Dedicated Texas officers enforcing state laws near the unsecured border. They know the reality on the ground. They showed us which houses and other structures on the Mexican side are owned and used by the cartels and explained how cartels pay spotters - often children - to sit along the Rio Grande and report the location of patrol boats so smugglers know when the coast is clear.

In our proud nation of immigrants, emotional immigration politics too often obscure this tragic truth: There are more crime victims in Kansas today because the federal government is failing on border security.

During my time as attorney general, our office successfully prosecuted an illegal alien in southeast Kansas who shot an Oklahoma police officer, kidnapped a Kansas motorist, invaded a Kansas residence and attempted to murder a Kansas officer. In north-central Kansas, we prosecuted an illegal alien for sex crimes against a young child. And we prosecuted an illegal alien in southwest Kansas for murder.

After the Kansas Supreme Court incorrectly ruled that federal law shielded certain illegal aliens from state identity theft laws, we appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court. I argued that case myself, and we won.

These crimes are among many committed in Kansas by people here illegally. Much violent crime here is connected to the smuggling of drugs and people across the border. Deported criminals too often easily return to Kansas and commit new crimes.

The Kansas Department of Corrections recently reported 246 inmates in Kansas prisons are subject to possible deportation upon release; county jails and federal prisons hold more.

Weak federal policy invites border chaos, and drug cartels and other criminal orga-

Ukraine illustrates nationalism's finest hour

If anyone had any doubt that Ukraine has its own national identity, the early days of the Russian invasion should have eliminated it.

There's been the stiff resistance of Ukraine's fighters, the former president giving interviews in the streets of Kyiv in battle gear, the ordinary men and women insulting and defying Russian soldiers, and above all, the comedian-turned-president, the now legendary Volodymyr Zelenskyy, refusing to leave his capital as Russian forces bear down on the city seeking to capture or kill him.

This is all so compelling because there is something inherently stirring about a people defending their homeland from a would-be imperial overlord.

The fight to save Ukraine represents a righteous nationalism. The Ukrainians aren't defending democracy per se or freedom in the sense of abstract rights - although Vladimir Putin's Russia is a threat to both - but their land and birthright. They are struggling for national self-determination, and even national survival.

Even in a globalized world, even when patriotism is not nearly as strong a force as it once was, even among Eurocrats who want to subsume Europe's nations in an EU superstate, Ukraine's struggle still strikes a profound chord.

In his speech prior to the war, making a direct appeal to the Russian people, President Zelenskyy spoke of his memories of Ukraine. "No one in Russia knows the meaning of these places, these streets, these names, these events," he said. "These are all alien to you, unfamiliar. This is our land, and this is our history."

"We are not part of one whole," he explained. "You cannot swallow us up. We are different. But this difference is not a reason for enmity. We want to determine our own course and build our own history - peacefully, calmly and honestly."

Zelenskyy was speaking a nationalist's language of love for his people's history, land and traditions. As G. K. Chesterton once wrote, "Cosmopolitanism gives us one country, and it is good; nationalism gives us a hundred countries, and every one of them is the best."

Of course, Ukraine's status as a nation is contested by Vladimir Putin, who claims that it rightfully belongs to Russia. His revanchist vision is often described an aggressive nationalism, but it is really a drive for empire. In his own lurid speech before starting the war, Putin laid out a spurious version of history wherein Ukrainian nationhood was an invention of the Soviet Union. He attacked "the virus of nationalist ambitions," and claimed after the invasion began that Russian troops were only fighting against "nationalist groups" in Ukraine.

Putin is armed with newer weapons, but he's acting every bit the traditional Russian imperialist. Already in the 15th century, a crude Russian state ruled an enormous swath of territory. By the end of the 19th century, it had become one of the largest empires ever in terms of sheer landmass. This empire was lost with Russia's defeat in World I, reconstituted by the Soviets, and lost again at the end of the Cold War. Putin seeks to revive a version of this project and notably referred in his pre-war speech to "the collapse of the historical Russia known as the USSR."

Zelenskyy and the Ukrainians are fighting for independence against this behemoth and, in so doing, giving Ukraine new national heroes and national lore that will sustain it even if the worst comes.

The philosopher Jean-Jacques Rousseau once wrote of Poland, another country constantly under threat from imperial Russia: "The virtue of her citizens, their patriotic zeal, the particular form that national institutions can give to their spirit, that is the only rampart always ready to defend it, and neurship. The event is organized by Anderson County's E-Community business development program.

"This Entrepreneurship Challenge is a great way to introduce students to starting a small business," said Julie Turnipseed, director of the Anderson County Development Agency. "They have the opportunity to create and develop a small business with the guidance of a community of resources."

Colony is one of many communities across Kansas to host a locally organized event designed to give students a hands-on entrepreneurial experience. The competition will consist of students preparing a written business plan or executive summary, a "tradeshow" booth, and an elevator pitch or presentation. The students will be competing against each other for a total $1,550 in prize money. The students' work will be judged by local entrepreneurs, public sector partners and other adults. This is the first time Anderson County E-Community has brought this competition to Colony and Anderson County.

"The YEC Series helps students learn valuable life skills such as creative problem solving and confidently presenting their ideas to others," said Amara Kniep, product manager for E-Community programs. "The classroom learning and mentorship they receive in preparation of competing in their local YEC Series event can also help students feel more connected to their communities and help them identify a need they could fill in their own city or county."

During the 2020-2021 season, 898 students from 47 communities hosted 44 local entrepreneurship competitions as part of the YEC Series. The 2021-2022 academic year marks the ninth annual YEC Series coordinated by NetWork Kansas E-Community Partnership.

The annual YEC Series culminates in a statewide championship, where the top students from each local competition face off against each other for prize money and other honors. The 2022 statewide championship will be held, April 28 at Kansas State University.

legal challenges directly in the Kansas Supreme Court would enable an expedited decision, which is needed because of election timelines and a June 1 filing deadline for candidates in the coming November election. He said it also squarely presents the federal question, which the Douglas and Wyandotte county plaintiffs carefully avoided, whether the U.S. Constitution prohibits Kansas state courts from entertaining state-law challenges to federal congressional district boundaries.

"The Elections Clause [of the U.S. Constitution] commits the redistricting power to state legislatures, and no Kansas law—either statutory or constitutional—gives the state courts any role in evaluating the validity of duly enacted redistricting plans," Schmidt wrote.

Schmidt also asked the Kansas Supreme Court to rule that the Kansas Constitution does not prohibit the Legislature from considering political objectives when drawing congressional districts, just as the U.S. Supreme Court has ruled the U.S. Constitution does not.

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 3-8-2022 / SUBMITTED

In recognition of Read Across America in the month of March, Jolene Pennington of the D.A.R. chapter in Marais Des Cygne spent the afternoon with students at Greeley. She brought many wonderful books for the students to read. They enjoyed group reading, a snack, and then ended the day with a book of their choice to take home. ## Library book discussion for March on the 23rd

Garnett Public Library's book discussion for March will be held on the 23rd at 7pm. Our book is titled, "The Kitchen Front," by Jennifer Ryan. "Two years into the Second World War, and German U-boats are frequently disrupting Britain's supply of food. In an effort to help housewives with food rationing, a BBC radio program called The Kitchen Front launches a new cooking contest - and the grand prize is a job as the program's first-ever female co-host. For young widow Audrey, winning the competition could be a chance to pay off her husband's debts and keep a roof over her children's heads. However, her estranged sister, Gwendoline, is equally set on success even if her own kitchen maid, Nell, is competing against her. And then there is Zelda, a London-trained chef desperate to succeed in a male-dominated profession - and harboring a secret that will change everything . . ." Ryan, Jennifer. The Kitchen Front. United Kingdom: Pan Macmillan, 2022. Discussion will be held March 23rd at 7pm. The books are available for checkout at the library. Please join us and connect through books!

Senior Center pitch results - March 3

March 3rd brought 13 pitch players together for 10 fast moving games of 13-point pitch. Earl Wilson, 97, joined us for the first time since all the snow and cold weather deterred him. Glad to see him out and about again. The results of the evening are: Ray Wards had the most wins with 8 of 10, Doug McIntosh took low, Don Smith captured 50/50 and Loydene West had the most perfect games with three. Come join us on Thursday at 6:00 at the Senior Center. Jan Wards reporting

Portable hotspots now available through Garnett Public Library

The Garnett Public Library now has mobile hotspots to check out to the public. The portable hotspots provide internet access to families and library patrons who don't have a connection at home. The lending program will allow students, parents, teachers and families working and studying remotely, access to a free and reliable internet connection. The hotspots were partially funded with the E-Rate Emergency Connectivity Fund. The purpose of these funds is to help bridge the digital divide by providing connectivity for households with limited or no internet access. The funding the Garnett Public Library received is especially geared toward households that have school-age children who need access to the internet. There will be no charge for use of the hotspots. Fifteen of them are reserved for households with children between the ages of 5 and 18. They may be checked out for 90 days by an adult over the age of 18. Five of them may be checked out by anyone over the age of 18 for 30 days. Patrons must have an up to date Garnett Public Library Card. Please call the library at 785-448-3388 with any questions.

Garnett Public Library to sell pie for PiDay

PiDay is an unofficial holiday commemorating the mathematical constant pi. Pi Day is observed on March 14 (or 3/14 in month/day date format), since 3, 1 and 4 are the most significant digits of pi in the decimal form. In 2009 the U.S. House of Representatives supported the designation Pi Day.

Therefore, the Garnett Public Library Friends of the Library have decided to celebrate the occasion by observing Pi(e) Day at the library. We will be celebrating Monday, March 14th. Homemade pie may be purchased by the slice from 10-2 for 2.50 per slice. All proceeds benefit the Friends of the Library.

K-State researchers uncover new clues for improving wheat

By Pat Melgares, K-State Research and Extension news service

MANHATTAN, Kan. -- Kansas State University researchers continue to unlock the complexity of the wheat genome, recently publishing findings of a study that characterized numerous genes duplicated thousands of years ago to understand how they control wheat yield and other desirable traits.

Wheat geneticist Eduard Akhunov, the director of K-State's Wheat Genetic Resources Center, said his team's research may lead to greater opportunities for breeders to perform "targeted breeding" that can increase grain size and number -- ultimately increasing yields.

Akhunov said the researchers studied the role of gene copies available from each of the respective genomes in polyploid crops, those that contain more than two sets of chromosomes, in shaping main agronomic traits.

Bread wheat, he added, is polyploid, formed nearly 10,000 years ago from merging the genomes of two wild ancestors: tetraploid wild emmer wheat (which has a genome formula known as AB) and diploid goat-grass (with genome formula D).

"As a result," Akhunov said, "most genes in wheat exist in three copies, one from each of the A, B and D genomes."

"This gene redundancy creates a number of possibilities for interactions between genes and has, over time, contributed to new adaptations, making wheat capable of growing and producing grain in more diverse climatic conditions," he said.

In the current study, K-State researchers tested combinations of the gene copies to see what impact they would have on wheat's growth and productivity.

"Normally, gene copies from each of (three) respective genomes in wheat are expressed in equal proportions," Akhunov said. "But we found that there is a relatively small subset of genes where copies from different wheat genomes are expressed at different levels," referred to as an imbalanced expression of genes.

The imbalanced expression of genes, he added, turned out to have a positive effect on the wheat plant, in many cases increasing grain size, weight and number.

"Our study suggests that over many years, breeders have been selecting combinations of imbalanced genes that positively impacted yield in diverse climatic environments," Akhunov said.

Important for wheat growers: breeders could use this knowledge to develop new high-yielding wheat varieties capable of growing in a variety of climates.

According to an article from the National Center for Biotechnology Information, polyploidy is a "major force in the evolution of both wild and cultivated plants." Scientists believe polyploid organisms exhibit increased vigor and -- in some cases -- outperform their diploid relatives in several aspects.

K-State's work on this project is summarized in the Feb. 11 issue of Nature Communications.

Akhunov said the research represents a large effort led by his research lab in collaboration with the Wheat Coordinated Agricultural Project, and funded by the USDA National Institute of Food and Agriculture, and the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation.

The project was part of the International Wheat Yield Partnership in which wheat researchers around the world are cooperating to find solutions to increase wheat yields.

to have been a factor in the fire. Officials did not release the names of those killed in the blaze pending their positive identification.

Bystander video shot of the blaze before the arrival of fire crews showed the blaze engulfing both floors.

Fire investigators use a number of methods to determine the cause and progress of a fire, including analyzing debris and tracking "plumes" -- often cone-shaped marks from flames which show the speed and the direction of the burn.

nizations use that chaos as cover to extend their operations in the United States, including Kansas. A bad situation has grown worse in the past year.

That's why I've sued the Biden administration to do its job, such as reinstating the Trump administration's "Remain in Mexico" Migrant Protection Protocols. But the Biden administration has responded weakly even after a court order. Ultimately, we need new leadership to prioritize border security.

Until that day comes, our best available option is to cooperate with requests from Texas for assistance. We should help Texas identify, intercept and stop trans-border violence and criminal activity before it reaches Kansas because Texas still stands between us and the border.

Our families and communities will be safer for it.

Bulldogs come up just short of 1st round upset

BURLINGTON - The #5 seeded ACHS Bulldogs were edged out last Monday, February 28th by #4 seed Burlington 54-51 in Burlington.

Just 4 days earlier, these two teams met and Burlington ran away with a 59-33 lopsided win.

It was a tight battle all night but it seemed the Bulldogs were playing from behind from the start. Burlington had the upperhand in the first half with a 13-11 lead after the first quarter and jumped out to a 25-19 advantage heading into intermission.

The Bulldogs weren't going to go down easily though. ACHS kept within striking distance with a 16-15 advantage in the third quarter to make the score 45-40 heading into the fourth.

Although the Bulldogs scrapped their way to a 16-14 advantage in the fourth, they came up just short of pulling off the opening round upset.

Burlington would go on to down the top seed Frontenac in the following round before coming up just shy of a state birth with a 41-34 loss to Girard in the championship game. Before the championship game loss, Burlington had won 6 straight games and 9 of their final 10.

Lady Bulldogs drop opener

GIRARD - The Lady Bulldogs entered substate with a #6 seed and squared off against #3 seed Girard and came up on the losing side, 46-29.

Girard would lose their second round game in lopsided fashion, 45-21, to a streaking Frontenac team that entered with a second seed and a 12-5 record. Frontenac would go on to qualify for state by knocking off top seeded and 17-1 Eureka.

The offensive woes of the Bulldogs would be evident in the first quarter as Girard took over from the opening tip and led 16-0 after the first quarter.

The rest of the game Girard would keep the Bulldogs from having any chance at making a serious run. Girard led at halftime 26-8.

The second half Girard would be outscored by ACHS 21-20, but it wasn't nearly enough to threaten the lead for the home squad.

Brooklyn Kurtz led all scorers with 11 points.

Lady Vikings drop 2nd round substate game

RICHMOND - The Central Heights Lady Vikings came up short of the substate championship, but showed vast improvement throughout the season.

In the opening round of substate, the Vikings knocked off Lyndon in a defensive battle, 30-27.

The Vikings were clinging to a 9-6 lead after the first quarter and doubled their lead at halftime, 18-12.

Central Heights appeared to be in control opening the second half with a solid third quarter as they limited Lyndon to just 3 points in the period but countered with just 5 points to lead 23-15.

Lyndon made a furious attempt at a comeback over the final couple of minutes but fell just short as the Lady Vikings held on.

Lily Meyer and Cameron Peel paced the Vikings with 10 points each.

In their second round contest, they held strong early on leading 6-5 after the first quarter before falling behind 11-9 at halftime to Mission Valley.

Mission Valley blew things open in the second half as they tripled their first half production with 33 points en route to an easy 44-26 win.

Bailey Brockus led the Vikings with 8 points. Cameron Peel added 6, Erykah Haynes 5, Lily Meyer 4 and Melaney Chrisjohn 3 points.

depended on his country for energy, couldn't shake those shackles fast enough to thwart his aggression, and a weakling, incompetent U.S. president lacked the gumption to realize his own nation's challenges much less mobilize the West to confront a Russia on the march.

In the modern world in the face of despots, energy is a weapon. Nations that choose to curtail their own energy independence in pursuit of some Utopian fantasy do so at their own peril. ###
