Cutting the kitties

Trap, neuter, release program could reduce town's stray cat issue

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT – The ongoing issue of stray cats in Garnett is leading city officials to examine a trap, neuter & release program (TNR) in town aimed at sterilizing enough of the stray population to effectively lower those numbers over time.

A town hall meeting on the proposal will be held at 6:30 p.m. Wed., April 27, at Town Hall Center in Garnett.

Darin Schmoie, the city's animal control officer, said he's been researching TNR programs since last fall and has gotten input from a number of non-profit rescue organizations to determine how effective a program could be in Garnett.

"Basically, in a nutshell, the program is designed to lower the stray cat population to alleviate complaints and reproduction," Schmoie said. "This program is in its infancy and has not been adopted by the city. I have done my research and we are now reaching out to the community for their input, concerns, and complaints." Schmoie said he plans to have a panel of experts and literature to answer questions at the April 27 meeting.

Cat issues have been an ongoing issue in Garnett for a number of years, with animal enthusiasts taking on a roll of feeding some stray cats even though city ordinances prohibit it, on the basis that it encourages the survival of stray colonies. Schmoie said he doesn't know how many stray cat complaints the city gets annually. The Review's Phone Forum call-in comment line has been filled with comments in the cat debate for years.

The root of the problem, Schmoie said, is a lack of sterilization of pets, abandonment and allowing pets to roam free. He said if left unapproached, the cat population problem only gets worse over time.

"One cat can have an average litter of 6," Schmoie said. "If just half of those are female then you have three more cats having litters of 6 and so on, and so on." "This is not an immediate fix. It does take time for the effects to take hold," he said. As in other programs, Schmoie said diseased animals that are picked up in the process will be euthanized.

Other programs appear to see solid two years. The Havahart company website estimates $50-$60 in costs per cat for sterilization and vaccinations for rabies and treatment for ear mites, but Schmoie says by using volunteers and student veterinarians, the city can move into the program at low costs.

"At this time I have been able to have the program started with zero cost," Schmoie said. "The volunteers from Johnson County – the results – a reduction of anywhere from 25-80 percent of the monitored populations over as little as

New map moves county to 9th Kansas House District

GARNETT – Anderson County continues to be a political vagabond as new political district maps are drawn for its U.S. Congressional and Kansas House and Senate Districts, with the latest rendition of state house districts moving the county from the 5th into the 9th Kansas Representative District.

If signed off on by Kansas Governor Laura Kelly, the move would group Anderson with Allen County and slivers of Linn and Miami County, and press the 5th District further north to now include Baldwin and western Miami County. The moves follow population shifts in the eastern third of the state that favor growth in Johnson, which also threw the state's congressional district map out of kilter when legislators rectified it last month.

Overall the new legislative map would add two new districts in Johnson County and consolidate six districts into three held by Republicans in western Kansas which have lost population. There are 125 Kansas House seats and 40 in the senate.

That congressional map change spawned lawsuits heard in Wyandotte County from Democrats and liberal political organizations who charged Republicans in the Legislature jimmied the map, sending Democrat strongholds in Lawrence and Wyandotte County into more traditionally Republican neighboring districts. That case concluded last Monday and was awaiting a decision from a trial court judge. The change in representative districts puts Anderson

Homeowners get welcome news on property taxes in tax bill signed last week

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

TOPEKA – Anderson County property owners worried over the tax impact of their recent property valuation increases got some good news in a multi-faceted tax policy bill passed last week that will raise the property value exemption to which the state school funding tax is applied.

Presently the first $20,000 in residential property value is exempt from the state's 20 mill tax levy to fund K-12 education in Kansas. The change is the first made to the law since 1997 and brings that exemption to $40,000.

12th District Senator Caryn Tyson originally introduced a bill that included a $100,000 exemption. The Senate later forwarded a revised bill with a $65,000 cut, but House members would only agree to the $40,000 mark. "It's not as much as the Senate passed but it is a

Man who fled wreck near Greeley turns self in

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GREELEY – A Kincaid man who left the scene of a single car crash Thursday night near Greeley and spawned a multi-agency search of the area turned himself in to county sheriff's officers Friday without incident.

Anderson County Sheriff Vern Valentine said 30-year-old Cory Payne contacted officers when he became aware of Facebook posts that the search was intended for him. Valentine said officers arrested Payne in Kincaid on a Miami County traffic warrant for driving while his license was suspended. He was bonded out of Anderson County Jail Friday.

Anderson County Fire and Emergency Management posted around 6:50 p.m. Thursday on its Facebook page that officers were using foot searches, aerial drones and canines in their search for a man that witnesses said fled the scene after crashing his vehicle northeast of Greeley around. The post

Smaller Kansas towns better at keeping taxes low

BY DAVID HICKS THE SENTINEL

TOPEKA – Good things do come in small packages...like taxpayer-friendliness and accountability.

Amid the public outcry over ever-increasing property tax bills, several Kansas counties are refusing to run with the tax-and-spend mentality of their big-city counterparts.

"Truth in Taxation" became law in 2021, which requires reductions in mill rates, so valuation increases deliver the same amount of tax money to each local government entity. Any increases in taxes require a public hearing and a vote by the governing body. Taking full ownership of their tax increases prompted officials across all jurisdictions in 21 counties to collectively reduce their property tax take this year. Looking only at county budgets, 29 counties reduced taxes. Aside from declines in recessions or other unusual circumstances, tax changes of this nature are unprecedented in Kansas. Reducing or holding tax revenue flat requires some work on the part of local officials, so The Sentinel wanted to know what they did to cut property tax. This report features six counties, all with fewer than 5,500 residents. Most of them chose to not respond, but the feedback we did receive could be used as a "How-To Guide" for other counties to establish tax and spending priorities. The counties among those at the 'Head of the Class' in taxpayer-focused spending control are: Chautauqua (Population 3,300). Cut tax revenue each of the last four years and did not increase this year, down 9% since 2016.

Kearny (3,800). Cut tax revenue four of the last five years, now down 24.6%.

Lincoln (3,000). Cut tax revenue each of the last four years.

Colony Christian Church - Tell Someone About Jesus"

Larry Wittmer gave the Communion Meditation titled "Jesus knew... But Judas ate too, by Nic Burseson. Jesus knew that he would be betrayed, and he knew that it would be Judas that betrayed. And yet... Judas ate the Last Supper with Jesus. Jesus prayed for Judas, and he washed Judas' feet. He loved him and forgave, just as he loves and forgives each of us. Jesus knew his fate, and by whom he would be betrayed. There is nothing we have done that can not be forgiven... he knew, and still fed him.

Pastor Chase Riebel gave the sermon "Tell Someone About Jesus". Sharing the gospel message is not always easy, but it is so important! Romans tells us that "how can they believe in him if they have never heard about him?". The more we tell others about Jesus, the easier it will be. And it's a good idea to practice. Practice what you'll say, the response that you can give to questions, and about your own testimony. And compared to what Jesus went thru for our salvation, this isn't hard at all. He rode into town on a half grown donkey, was tried and convicted and sentenced to die, was beaten, whipped, and hung on a cross. If anything made it easier for Jesus to pay the punishment for our sin, it was the Joy of giving us freedom. And the Joy of the Lord is our strength. So let's use that strength to do something hard, tell everyone about Jesus! (Ref: Matthew 28; Romans 6:4, 8:11 & 10:14; Zechariah 9:9; Luke 9:22 & 19:38-40; Philippians 2:9-11; Ephesians 2:4-5; Hebrews 12:2) Hear this and all our sermons by using your favorite podcast app, on our Facebook page, or on our website at www.colony-christianchurch.org.

I will follow my Christ who loves me so!

So what shall the battle cry of the church be for Easter and more importantly beyond? Jesus would say, take up your cross and follow me. So what does that look like? Well for starters we are made in God's image. We are told this plainly in Genesis 1:26 when God speaks. "Let us make man in our image, in our likeness." God then proceeds to give man a pattern to follow. He sends men to lead his chosen people and provides rules for moral and social behavior. Ultimately he sends his Son, Jesus Christ to give his life a ransom for ours. All the troubles we experience today, sickness, poverty, the breakdown of our moral fiber and death came as a result of man refusing to follow the plan God laid down.

Since God is the creator and sustainer of the universe it is not surprising that he should give us texts that explain his power and rule over us. One such verse Hebrews 4:13 offers a sober warning. "Nothing in all creation is hidden from God's sight. Everything is uncovered and laid bare before the eyes of him to whom we must give account." Now how can we live with that statement? For most of us everything we ever did, everything we ever were or thought we were weighs us down. It is not going to go away. What hope is there after that verse? Reading on in Heb. 4:15 the writer to the Hebrews says. "For we do not have a high priest who is unable to sympathize with our weakness, but we have one who has been tempted in every way-just as we are- yet without sin."

WEEKLY DEVOTIONAL

BY DAVID BILDERBACK

Jesus in his human nature came to this world and lived the life before God we could never live. He laid his divine nature down and went to the cross for our sins. Since Jesus was without sin there was no need for him to die but he ransomed our souls by his death and because he was without sin was raised from the dead. The only reason there is death is because of sin and came as the result of Adam and Eve disobeying God in the garden. Jesus came to bridge the chasm between man and God caused by sin. So what shall our battle cry be then? I will follow my Christ who loves me so!

Kent Thompson no fit for 9th Dist.

Unfortunately Anderson County residents who don't think it's right that men can take Kansas girls' sports scholarships away from them won't be any better represented after our move into the 9th District with state representative Kent Thompson of Iola.

Thompson joined three other Republicans in the House - one of them Anderson County's infamous former state rep Mark Samsel - in supporting Governor Laura Kelly's ongoing mission to keep Kansas women's athletics open to men for female subjugation if they just say, like Shania Twain, that they really 'feel like a woman.'

The garish visual of this abomination played out in recent weeks as a 6'1" male swimmer from the University of Pennsylvania, who now calls himself "Lia" Thomas, stole the NCAA 500 meter freestyle championship from Emma Weyant, a 5'8" competitor from the University of Virginia. Weyant no doubt trained like a Spartan since she was in middle school for that moment and made innumerable personal sacrifices for it as all collegiate athletes do. But Kent Thompson and the rest of the nation's aberrant sexual victimhood crowd are fine with taking Weyant's honor away from her to make a man feel better about himself.

And they're fine with that happening in Kansas, too.

The Kansas bill, "The Fairness in Women's Sport Act," passed both houses of the legislature despite opposition from the likes of Thompson and Samsel, since the overwhelming majority of Kansas senators and representatives share the same basic gumption and sense of fair play as the rest of the state's electorate.

As expected Kelly deftly followed the new Leftist mantra that demands the subjugation of women to whatever flavor-of-the-month alternate sexuality is currently in vogue and vetoed the measure last Friday, just like she did a similar bill last year. Republicans now have to figure out if they can muster a majority veto override. That most likely won't happen, and the state will have to wait until Kelly cleans out her desk after the November election to protect Kansas women athletes from the Left's expanding queer culture.

But throwing Kansas' women athletes under the bus isn't the only Kent Thompson signature that should worry 9th District voters and Kansans in general.

Thompson personally reaps the dividends of his support of the massive federally subsidized green energy fantasy culture that keeps alive Kansas wind "farms" - the massive and ugly, property tax-exempt, 500-foot tall turbine fields that amount to gigantic untaxed power plants covering hundreds of thousands of formerly pristine Kansas acres. The darkest humor about these government-funded atrocities is that they have to be hooked to firm "real" electricity to operate, because they only produce power when the wind blows. Nonetheless, Thompson pockets turbine lease payments, funded ultimately by generous federal taxpayer subsidies, from a number of these behemoths on his own property in Allen County.

His appetite for the mirage of federal subsidies even extends to his desire to lower the standards to allow 150,000 more Kansans onto the state's Medicaid rolls. Expanding Medicaid - called KanCare in Kansas - would let able-bodied people onto the free medical plan who are 38 percent above the poverty line, many of whom already have healthcare coverage. It could cost the state as much as a billion new dollars, but by Thompson's logic that's a sensible plan.

Because government money really doesn't come out of your pocket, if you think like Kent Thompson. He voted in favor of the largest-ever tax increase in Kansas history back in 2017- some $3 billion heavily laid at the feet of working Kansas families - because he and other Republicans and Democrats refused to consider spending reductions in the face of sagging state revenues. Those historic high taxes have been tapping Kansans' wallets ever since. Now those higher rates are generating surplus revenues; as well as talks on how to "give back" to Kansans what Thompson & company took from us in the first place.

Whether on moral obligations like protecting women's sports from male competitors or big subsidy fiscal notions that ignore Kansas' conservative nature, Kent Thompson has proven he's not a good fit for the 9th District - or for Kansas elected leadership in general. ###

Hey, I have an idea. How about whoever the yahoo is that owns that old abandoned filling station that used to be the barbeque place out on Maple Street, how about they haul off that old awning that the wind has blown over so our town doesn't look all trashy like a tornado hit it. Thank you.

What's the problem with the fish feeders at the north and south lakes? Do they work or are they just there for looks? No one seems to know. Can you give me an answer.

I was wondering, how old do you think Satan was when he rebelled against his Father and even denied his existence? From my experience I'm guessing about 14. I hope you all will be thinking about how great our Father is instead of following the traditions of men, and rolling the little Easter eggs and chasing the bunnies.

Well, I see that Republican Hicks still going off about masks in school. Well, the article in the front page is a lie, printed by some right-wing

BS. Masks did work, they didn't disrupt schools. You're just trying to make trouble as usual. Still has his head up that orange lying orangutan (deleted). I don't know what to say any more, he really needs help. I'm glad I don't buy your paper, I'm reading someone else's. Thank you.

Hey, Hicks I had to laugh about the person calling you out about the Evergy electricity ad you're running in the paper and that you're getting paid for it. It reminds me the last time mom was in the hospital up at (name deleted) and out in the parking lot they have six of those electric charging stations for the electric cars. The whole time we were up there, almost three whole days, the only cars I saw park there wasn't electric cars, they were just regular gas burning cars cheating to get a closer parking place because those were right up by the sidewalk. Not a single electric car did I see. What a joke. I just thought you'd get a kick out of that. Thank you.

The subway suspect is a black supremacist. The Waukesha killer is a black supremacist. The guy who tried to assassinate a mayoral candidate is a black supremacist. The man who murdered a capitol police officer was a black supremacist. But apparently its white supremacy that is the problem.

It's quite amusing watching normies wondering aloud again why Google didn't do anything special on their homepage for Easter when a quick Early Life check on their founders would answer their question.

"Value Them Both" debate being distorted

In a recent op-ed, University of Kansas professor Patrick R. Miller seeks to inform citizens about the upcoming August ballot initiative, the Value Them Both Amendment, but distorts the situation in at least two important respects.

First, Miller significantly mischaracterizes the impact of the Kansas Supreme Court's 2019 decision in Hodes & Nauser v. Schmidt. He states that the decision "enshrines the status quo - a right to abortion in Kansas, but with limits." This is false.

Hodes did not enshrine the status quo, but instead fundamentally changed Kansas law. The court's discovery of a "natural right" to abortion in the state constitution was a complete departure from long-settled Kansas law. No court in 160 years had ever believed such a right was contemplated by the text or history of the 1859 constitution.

Also, Hodes did not recognize a right to abortion "with limits." Quite the contrary. The court adopted a legal test far more protective of abortion than Roe v. Wade. The consequence of Hodes is that abortion in Kansas will almost certainly be virtually unlimited and publicly funded.

Current abortion regulations are now, in the words of the court, "presumed unconstitutional." These regulations need only be challenged before they will almost certainly be struck down. The people of Kansas and their elected representatives have lost their voice and will be prohibited from passing future common-sense laws.

Two laws have already been stricken under the Hodes test: the prohibition of dismemberment abortion, a procedure used in second and third trimesters, and a law mandating basic health and safety standards for abortion clinics.

Far from preserving the status quo, Hodes radically changed and expanded the landscape of abortion in Kansas. In response, the Value Them Both Amendment does only one thing. It removes the new-found "natural right to abortion" from the state constitution, returning to the people of Kansas their ability to regulate abortion.

Value Them Both merely restores Kansas law to the pre-Hodes status quo.

This raises Miller's second distortion. Instead of trusting the sensibilities of Kansans, Miller tries to frighten voters by suggesting that if the U.S. Supreme Court gives more flexibility to states to regulate abortion, Kansans would go against their long history of working toward consensus on this issue.

Over the years, the people of Kansas have supported bipartisan laws like parental involvement before a teenager has an abortion, informed consent provisions and waiting periods to ensure women are free from coercion, and restrictions on late-term abortions. Modest measures like these are supported by the majority of Kansans and Americans. Every single one is imperiled by the decision in Hodes.

Where the Russian army goes, brutality follows

Russia has found just the man to lead its ongoing assault on Ukraine, Gen. Aleksandr Dvornikov.

The top-level general takes over a war that had no single overall commander and as the Russian military has suffered embarrassing setbacks, retreating from its planned siege of Kyiv.

Dvornikov has led the Russian forces in the south and east of Ukraine, which Moscow will now make its main objective, and perfectly encapsulates the remorseless and long-running brutality of the Russian military.

He became known as the Butcher of Syria for his role leading the Russian campaign in Syria, most notoriously the reduction of Aleppo.

A United Nations human rights official called that city, after the Russians were done with it, "a slaughterhouse." He depicted "a gruesome locus of pain and fear, where the lifeless bodies of small children are trapped under streets of rubble and pregnant women deliberately bombed."

That ghastly description, of course, sounds all too familiar. Naturally enough, the Russian government honored Dvornikov for his bloody handiwork in Syria as a "hero of the Russian federation."

Bucha is another tragic place name in a long catalogue of Russians atrocities -- perpetrated against foreigners and its own people, perpetrated when the Soviets struggled for control during their rule, and afterward, perpetrated with relatively primitive military technology and with the most up-to-date mod-

Where the Russian military goes, war crimes are sure to follow. It is a reflection of a twisted Russian political culture that has never developed an appreciation for individual worth, democratic accountability, or humanitarian norms. Vladimir Putin is not to be confused with Lenin or Stalin -- he paints his horrors on a much smaller canvas. But his cold-eyed brutality is characteristically Russian.

For the last 100 years, Russia has been a brutalized and brutalizing country. It suffered nearly 3.5 million deaths in World War I, another 8 million dead in the Russian Civil War, and then 27 million more in World War II.

The founder of the Soviet state, Lenin, was a theorist and practitioner of "mass terror." After the Revolution, the civil war between the Bolsheviks and their opponents was a series of atrocities. Then came the cataract of unspeakable violence in the death struggle with the Nazis.

The Red Army's decisive march to Berlin at the end of the war was one long, pitiless war crime. The Russians raped 2 million German women. According to historian Antony Beevor, author of "The Fall of Berlin 1945," one doctor believed that of 100,000 women raped in the city, 10,000 died as a consequence, many by suicide.

The English-speaking world features its share of shameful and brutal acts, but nothing on the mind-numbing scale of such depravities. And the crimes in the U.S. and elsewhere are looked back on with shame, whether slavery or the expropriation of indigenous people. In contrast, in the 21st century, when more civilized practices are supposed to have prevailed, Putin is adding more disgraceful blots to Russia's woeful record.

What kind of force considers a hospital a legitimate military target? Terrorist groups -- and the Russian military.

In Syria a few years ago, Russia bombed four hospitals in 12 hours, a savage performance forecasting the treatment they'd mete out to Ukraine. According to The New York Times, Syrian health care workers believed that a United Nations "humanitarian deconfliction" list containing the locations of hospitals was used as a target list by Russian forces. Of course, Russia leveled the city of Grozny

Century old die found

“ROLL THEM BONES”. If you said, that’s just an old die, you are absolutely correct. This die is at least 100 years old or perhaps even Civil War era.

What makes this dice so special? This dice is made of bone. Bone dice were very popular during and after the Civil War. Bones from all different animals were used. Horses, mules, oxen, sheep, etc. The most common used bones were what were referred to as Knuckle bones.

Now if one travels back into ancient history, you will find that bone dice were made from human bones. Yes, I said human bones.

Particular dice has already been placed in the hands of the Abortion is politically divisive. Many disagree about its moral implications. But whatever your position, Hodes went too far. Regardless of your position on abortion, if you believe in reasonable regulations protecting women’s health and safety, are uncomfortable with public funding of abortion or late-term abortions of healthy, viable infants, then Hodes should be of concern.

Hodes was wrongly decided as a matter of history, as a matter of constitutional interpretation, and as a matter of democratic governance. Hodes places Kansas on a path to unlimited abortion at taxpayer expense.

VTB is a modest constitutional amendment that restores authority to the people, through their elected representatives, to regulate abortion. This is both necessary and appropriate.

great start,” Tyson said. “It increases annually based on inflation and valuations. It’s real property tax relief for homeowners.”

The hike in the school tax exemption was part of a larger bill that combined 29 different bills that sliced overall state tax revenues by $91 in the first year. The election year move came as various groups called for tax relief after Kansas reported higher than expected revenues. Governor Laura Kelly claimed credit for the state’s surplus financial position, which was bolstered by the largest tax increase in state history in 2017 aimed at raising $3 billion in additional revenue over five years.

The state valuation exemption does not affect the application of local tax levies determined by county and city commissioners and school boards which apply directly to a property’s full assessed valuation, a process which has also arisen as major concern for local property owners.

Burgeoning home sales across the country as well as in Anderson County driven by continued low mortgage rates and coupled with a reduced supply of homes on the market, served to drive up sale prices and hence residential and acreage valuations in the county in the most recent round of valuations. Those spiking values caused worries about big property tax hikes if levies aren’t lowered to reflect responsible government budgets and higher valuations.

Norton (5,300). Cut taxes four of the last five years, down 7.5%.

Sheridan (2,500). Cut taxes the last two years by a total of 14%, down 4.5% since 2016:

Wallace (1,600). Cut taxes each of the last five years, down 18.7%

Randy Lohmann is the presiding commissioner in Lincoln County. He mentions two areas where cost savings were made:

"We self-insured our medical insurance and cut costs in the highway department."

Wes Bainter is chairman of the Sheridan County Commission. He praises the county's fiscal management:

"Here in Sheridan County, we have reduced the amount of tax money we have collected by ¼ of a million dollars and at the same time have NOT cut any budget of any department in our county government or laid off any employees. We have reduced the amount of carry-over cash from one year to the next because it became obvious that this carry-over cash was totally not necessary. This was happening in the 10 years before I became a commissioner because of poor management by elected commissioners. They were taxing excessive amounts just in case 'we need more money, we'll have funds on hand.' This thinking is an abuse of taxpayers and says that we can throw taxpayers under the bus any time we want for any reason we want. This is happening every year in a lot of Kansas counties.

"It was clear that a lot of our county road work could be done faster and better and for lots less money by contracting this work out to private contractors. We are now contracting the hauling of road gravel, replacing culverts, mowing the county ditches, and road dragging to keep our roads smooth and well maintained for lots less money and getting far better results. This had never been done before, and as always, I heard that 'we just don't do it that way.' That's the definition of insanity.... doing things the same way but expecting different results.

"We also moved our County Public Health to our county-owned hospital with great results. Our Public Health is now being operated by health professionals who are totally equipped to provide the best and broadest range of services to our county residents."

Bainter applauds the one-year-old Truth in Taxation law:

"This legislation makes it clear that we don't pay property taxes based on valuations, or levies or anything else. We all pay our property taxes in US DOLLARS!! There must be good, sound reasoning regarding the level of property taxes. These taxes DO NOT need to go up every year!"

April is Community Bank Month

Where you bank matters

Community Banks Association of Kansas (CBA) and our local banks are reminding consumers: Where you choose to bank and with whom matters, by celebrating Community Bank Month in April.

"When you bank locally, you're reinvesting in your community, contributing to the welfare of your neighbors and building a legacy of prosperity for future generations," said CBA President and CEO Shawn Mitchell. "Community bankers power your area's small businesses and influence job growth one loan at a time. They're rooted in your community, ensuring they have a stake in your financial success and the strength of the community overall."

Community banks support local startups—funding more than half of small businesses and a significant majority of agriculture loans—and contribute tax dollars that help maintain local municipalities and keep local neighborhoods viable and vibrant.

When choosing who to trust with your hard-earned money, CBA and all of our local banks want consumers to know that they have a choice and know the following:

- Community banks respect and honor their community ties. Community banks have symbiotic relationships with their communities—one cannot thrive without the other.

- Community banks are relationship lenders. They know their customers and understand their financial needs.

- Community banks understand and embrace local businesses. A study from the Federal Reserve Banks found that small businesses that apply for loans with community banks are the most successful and most satisfied.

- Community banks give back. Serving local communities is second nature to community banks.

You get what you expect...

Service with more than a smile!

When you walk into our bank, it is important how you are treated – you expect a friendly smile and fast accurate service.

Any place can offer you a check book and a monthly statement. We want you to feel that you get more from our bank. We know who counts and that's you – our customer.

We want our service to put a smile on your face. Come see us.

Rescue Project - will do the trapping and transport for free. Prairie Paws Animal Shelter in Ottawa will have K-State senior veterinary students perform the alters and euthanizations. These are performed by students enrolled in this specific class."

The program would operated by focusing on specific areas at the beginning. Residents in a radius of the trapping area will be notified of the upcoming trapping and will be instructed to have their animals' city tags on, have the animals micro-chipped, or keep them inside to make sure they're not trapped. Any animal that is trapped will be checked for owner information. If that animal is not identified as a "pet" it will be introduced into the program. Once trapped, the volunteers transport the animals to Prairie Paws Animal Shelter in Ottawa, where senior year vet students will perform the spay, neutering, vaccinating for rabies, and have their ear "tipped" for identification under the supervision of the head vet from Kansas State University at the facility that morning. Any sick or injured animal will be euthanized to insure only healthy and non-diseased animals are placed back in the population.

Once complete the animals are monitored, able to rest, then transported by the volunteers back to the same location from where they were trapped. Volunteer "caregivers" will monitor the colonies and advise if non-program animals arrive at the colony that need to be processed.

Schmoe said the city hopes to avoid running the program, but after its set up hopes to turn it over to the volunteers to execute. He said the city is researching specific ordinances that would incorporate the program as its envisioned.

The Snail and the Ostrich

By Will Disbrow
5th Grade, Crest
Mr. Zimmerman

The snail and the ostrich had a big tug of war game coming up and the snail was training hard. The ostrich was cocky and thought that he was going to win so he chose not to practice. He was eating and once he got done eating he took a nap. The snail was coming to see what his competition was doing and he saw that he was sleeping. He got angry because he was sleeping which told the snail that the ostrich was so confident that he didn't need to practice to win.

So the snail went back to his house and trained his hardest until it was the day before his big tug of war game. The ostrich still wasn't putting any work in and the ostrich came over to see what the snail was doing. The ostrich was talking trash on the snail and then the ostrich said to the snail, you should take a break, the snail says no. And the ostrich goes and gets the snail's favorite food and the ostrich says what about some worms and vegies? And the snail declines the offer again and he says I am going to work so hard I beat you so bad maybe you won't treat me like a joke.

Game day: They were both on their way to the game. They get there and the game is about to start then they hear the whistle and they start. The ostrich is in the lead but then the snail gets a better grip and rips across the line and wins and is the grand champion.

Storms

By Autumn Canady
5th Grade, Central Heights
Mrs. Riemer

Rain- is a cloud getting loaded with water and bursting into tears to where rain comes down to the ground. And it's time to stay inside so you don't get sick.

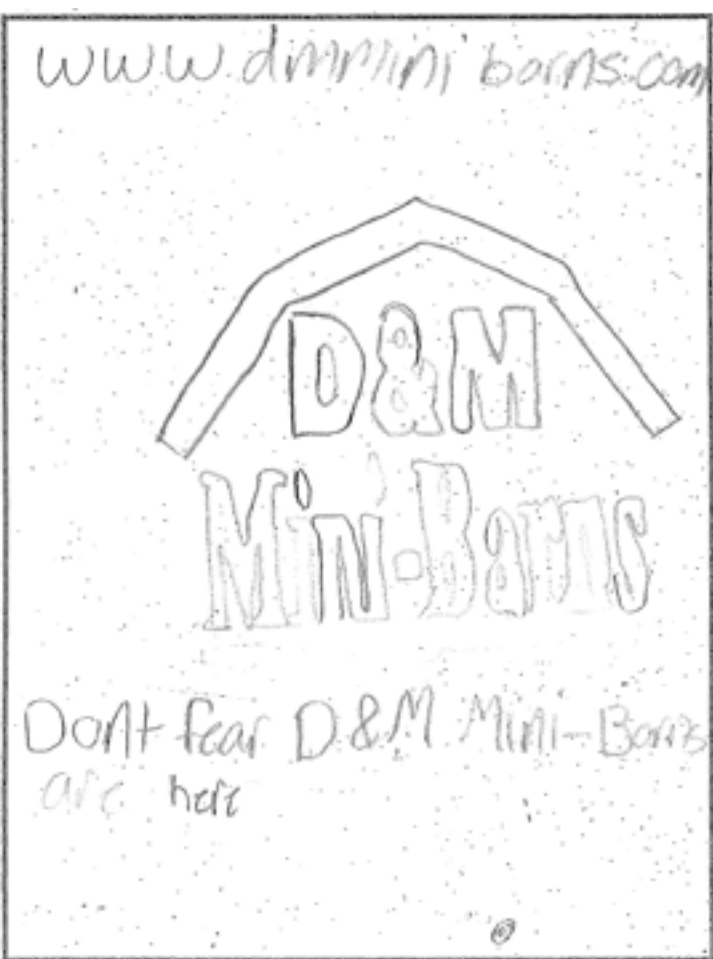

Sunny- There is a sun in the sky and it's time to go swimming in the pool.

Tornado- is hot and cold weather together in the whirling wind and it's time to get somewhere safe so you won't get blown away in the tornado.

Hurricane- is almost just like a tornado but it's in space and has some purple in it. And it's time to get somewhere super, super safe.

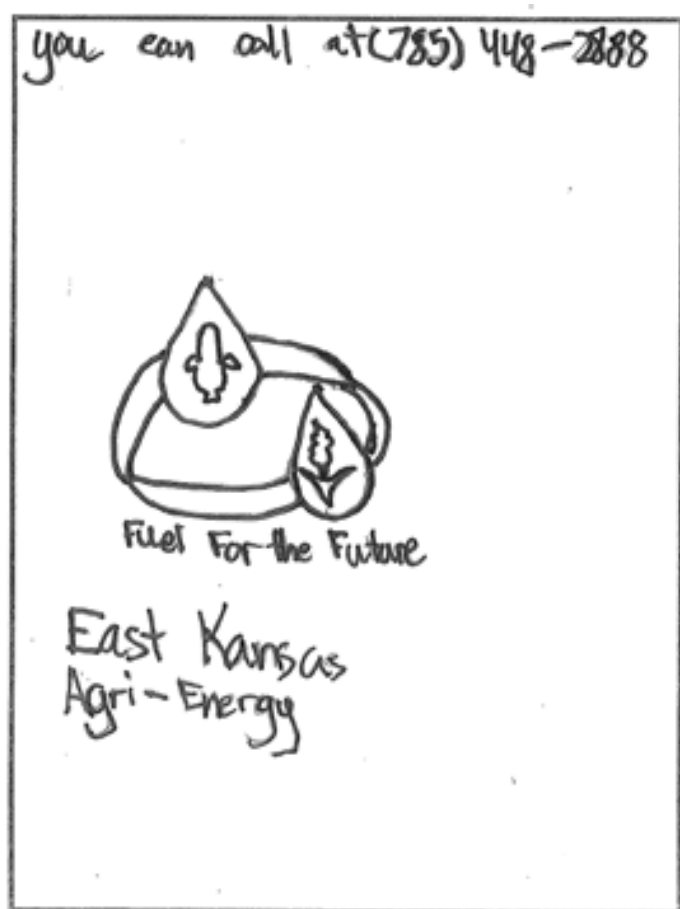

And when I grow up, I want to be a storm catcher and a Rock 'N' Roll star and a teacher because I love school, I love Rock 'N' Roll and I love to talk and watch storms.

Komi's Not-So-Ordinary Life

By Kristina Mann
6th Grade, Central Heights
Ms. Dunn

"Ohayo!" I bow down to the customer in front of me then point to the banner behind me. "Welcome to our newly renovated maid café!" I clap a little before talking a little more. He smiles at me and I smile back. "Please follow me to your table and I will be right with you!"

I bow down again and started walking to the counter to grab the menu. I hear the other girls talking about something. "That new customer that came in, he seems like that famous actor that's starring in the new movie." "Hanako Maru?! He's like the most famous guy in Japan!" "Shush! They might hear us." I tried to ignore their conversation, but I couldn't help but eavesdrop.

"Um...miss! Can I please order now?" I rush to him, "Sorry sir! I will take your order now". The customer cut me off. "Do you know why I'm here?" He lowered his tone while saying that. He whispered a sentence I couldn't believe. "I'm actually Hanako Maru, the famous actor" I gasped in shock. Hanako said "Don't get too frightened or anything but..." He paused "How about considering being an actress in my new movie?" "Really?!" I was so happy! Who knew this little café became a huge role in my life.

"Yes! I would love to!" "Great!" Hanako said while smiling. "We'll head to the apartments where I live and help you with acting." "Oh yeah," He said. "What's your name?" "Komi Hanamura" I replied. "Well Komi we better get going!"

I had to resign from my position at the café, but me and Hanako were regular customers there. Who knew that a maid café worker could turn into a famous actress in less than an hour!

The Little Girl's Scare

By Marilyn Yoder
6th Grade, Central Plains
Ms. Miller

There once was a little girl who got lost in the woods of West Virginia. She decided she was going to have to fend for herself. So she took her time picking out a place to build her shelter. She decided to make the shelter beneath a group of cedar trees.

After she put moss and tall grass beneath the trees, she wanted to explore. She found a small creek not too far from her shelter and some early blueberry bushes beside it.

Suddenly she felt a hand on her shoulder, she turned around and faced an Indian brave. He took her to his cabin and was kind to her and taught her a lot of his language. Then he took her along to help interpret for his fur trading. They helped each other and soon were good friends.

Keys to make a public notice official

Notice by publication in a newspaper is:

- Independent of the government.
- Readily available to the public
- Capable of being securely archived, and
- Verified by affidavit as proof of publication.

A. Public Notice must be published by an independent third party

A public notice must be published in a forum independent of the government, typically in a local newspaper. An independent and neutral third party has an economic and civic interest in ensuring that the notice delivery requirements are followed.

B. Public Notice must be accessible

A public notice must be capable of being accessed by all segments of society, both in print and online.

C. Public Notice must be archivable

A public notice must be archived in a secure and publicly available format. Print newspapers have always fulfilled this element because a public notice published in a newspaper is easily archivable, and can be archived in several different places, formats, and without wait. Newspapers are usually archived by the publishing company and by libraries. These archiving venues provide the public with the option to retrieve the notices for years after date of publication.

D. Public Notice must be verifiable

The public must be able to verify that the public notice was not altered once published. In a newspaper notice, an affidavit is provided by the publisher, which can be used in an evidentiary proceeding to demonstrate that a true copy was published as well as the exact wording that was used.

Bulldogs win 7th straight

GARNETT - Iola was riding high winning their first 6 games of the season, but they met their match last Tuesday in Garnett as the Anderson County Bulldogs swept them and now have now won 7 in a row, after a season opening loss.

In game 1, it was all Anderson County as they rolled to an 11-1 victory in just 5 innings.

Derek Rockers controlled the Mustangs bats all afternoon. Rockers pitched a complete game going all 5 innings, allowing 4 hits and striking out 11 Iola hitters.

Dallas Kueser was the only Bulldog with a multi-hit game, picking up 2 hits in 4 at bats and scoring 3 runs in the process.

Braden Blaufuss led the team with 3 runs batted in. Rockers, Colten Wittman and Dalton Kellerman all helped out driving in two runs each.

The second game was a much closer affair, but the Bulldogs prevailed by rallying in the late innings, 13-10.

Iola scored in the top of the first to take an early 1-0 lead before the Bulldogs rallied with 2 in the bottom half and 3 more in the second to take a 5-1 advantage.

Iola would counter with 1 run in the top of the third and 4 in the top of the fourth to jump on top 6-5.

AC would tie the score up at 6 in the bottom of the fourth but Iola would rally with 3 more in the top of the fifth for a 9-6 lead.

The Bulldogs didn't go away though and responded with 5 runs in the bottom of the fifth to take an 11-9 lead, which they wouldn't relinquish.

Kellerman hit a 3-run home run to lead the Bulldogs offensively.

Braxton Spencer, D. Kueser, Rockers and Preston Kueser all drove in a pair of runs to spark the offense.

Kellerman and P. Kueser both struggled on the mound.

Kellerman allowed 9 hits and 5 earned runs in 3 2/3 innings and P. Kueser allowed 4 runs on 5 hits in 3 1/3 innings.

The early game was all Crest as they won the game 10-0.

Ryan Golden led the way offensively with 3 hits.

Stetson Setter and Jack White each tallied a pair of hits of their own.

Setter led the way with 3 runs driven in and also scored 3 times.

Viking run at Pleasanton

PLEASANTON - Another windy Kansas afternoon didn't deter the Central Heights track & field squad from competing and still coming up with several season and personal bests.

"Improvement week to week is a testament to how hard this team is working and sticking to the plan. It's not always easy to have a best result each time out but seeing maximum effort being put forth with every opportunity is what creates growth," head coach Troy Prosser stated.

For the girls, the golds were won by Alexis Haynes in javelin, Taryn Compton in the 100 meter and 300 meter hurdles and Lily Meyer in the 800 meter run.

The boys weren't to be outdone though. Their gold finishers were Tony Detwiler in the long jump and 300 meter hurdles, Cody Hammond in the 800 meter run and Connor Burkdoll in the 3200 meter run.

"Pleasanton was yet another one of those chances and from the freshmen all the way up to the seniors, we are really starting to see something special taking place," Prosser stated. "Ten more personal records were set, a few season bests, and several more tough, gritty performances had us bringing home a lot of hardware and a feeling of progress and confidence."

The boys team is bookended with senior Tony Detwiler finding his form with huge personal bests in both long jump and hurdles and with freshmen Connor Burkdoll and Cody Hammond once again shining in their events.

On the girl's side, the senior combo of Taryn Compton, Lily Meyer, Alexis Haynes and Addey Froggatte are putting forth some fantastic results across the hurdles, sprints, mid distance and throws.

"With winds gusting up to 40 mph, every race was greatly impacted and I'm very proud with how well the kids and coaches adjusted and responded," Coach Prosser added.

Lancers win 8th straight to open the season

MORAN - Another doubleheader, another sweep for the Crest Lancers as they cruised past Marmaton Valley by a combined 28-0 in the two games.

In the opener, the final was 10-0. Stetson Setter finished the game with 3 hits in 3 at bats, scoring a run and driving in 3 runs.

On the mound, it was a combined no-hitter for the Lancers.

Avery Blaufuss got the start and pitched 4 innings and struck out 11. Jerry Rodriguez pitched the fifth inning to close out the game. Rodriguez struck out 2 and walked one in the fifth inning.

The Lancers cruised in the second game, winning 18-0.

Crest scored 5 runs in the first, 12 in the second and tacked on a run in the third to end the game due to the mercy rule.

Setter and Jack White led the way with 2 hits each. Setter drove in 2 runs and scored.

On the mound Tucker Yochem pitched all 3 innings, allowed 1 hit and struck out 2.
