Opponents to appeal vote that retained “Gender Queer”

Decision on book
Opponents say is porn
now goes to board

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT – Opponents to a 4-2 ruling that will leave the book “Gender Queer” in the Garnett Municipal Library’s adult section but without age restrictions plan to appeal the determination after a special committee meeting produced the ruling in late June.

Amanda Walker, a committee designee for complainants Wes Keller and Franklin Urquhart, said the appeal to the city library board was in the works and according to library policy had to be filed within three weeks of the committee hearing. Library policy allows the board to make the final determination on an appeal.

Librarian Andrea Sobba said the issue is set for consideration by the board at its August 8 meeting.

Keller and Urquhart filed the complaint about “Gender Queer,” which chronicles the experiences of author Maia Kobabe coming of age as a “non-binary” (perception as neither male nor female) individual, in May of this year, charging that the book’s graphic representations of sex acts amounted to pornography involving children and asked that it be removed from the library. Gender Queer has been under fire in communities across the country in school and public libraries for similar charges that its cartoon panel illustrations of graphic sex acts and pedophilia violate local standards if not pornography laws.

Discussions among panel members were at times tense. Panel members included Walker, local pastor Art Black, librarian Andrea Sobba and library adult services coordinator Tegan Modica, library board member Karen Katzer and library patron Bonnie Dieter. The vote at the culmination of discussions was Sobba, Modica, Dieter and Katzer voting to retain the book, Black and Walker in opposition.

Walker showed panel members illustrations from the book depicting the use of sexual accessories, aroused male and female genitalia, oral sex, sex acts between adults and sexual touching between adults and children. Walker also quoted the verbiage of Kansas’ pornography statute and said the book violated those laws.

“I don’t think the library should have porn in it,” Walker said.

Black commented that the book was part of a “woke” cultural effort to indoctrinate young people into transgender ideology which had become pervasive in western popular cul-

City warned of possible summer electricity shortage

Power authorities say we may have to cut consumption, while Evergy scuttles coal

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT – City officials are keeping an eye on electrical use this summer and the threat that a shortage of electricity during peak periods may force scalebacks or voluntary use reductions this summer.

Wilson told city commissioners in his weekly memo the city was contacted by the Southwest Power Pool with the issuance of a Resource Alert/Advisory due to recent hot weather and increased electrical use for air conditioning. The SPP oversees the bulk electric grid and the wholesale power market in the century United States, over which Garnett and other cities purchase electricity from providers.

The SPP alert said hot weather,

Kansas study shows more Covid deaths in counties that had mask mandates

German physician says inhaling droplets from mask probably made Covid worse

BY DAVID HICKS THE SENTINEL

KASSEL, Germany –Kansas counties with Covid mask mandates had significantly higher case fatality rates than counties with no mandates, according to a German study of Kansas’ particular mix of jurisdictions with and without mandates during the height of the pandemic.

The conclusion of the study was published in the online medical journal Medicine on the effect mandatory mask requirements had on case fatality rates in Kansas between August 1st and October 15th, 2020.

doctor Zacharias Foegen, explains why the Sunflower State was a unique case study:

“The state of Kansas, USA, has over 2.8 million residents. During the summer of 2020, Kansas State issued a mask mandate, but it allowed its 105 counties to either opt out or issue their own mask mandate – which was a rarity in the USA and one reason for the choice of this state, the other being that the comparison of infection rates among these counties has already been done by Van Dyke et al., showing a benefit of mask mandates.”

Kansas legislators interceded to block a full scale statewide mask mandate as ordered by Governor Laura Kelly, and allowed individual

FOOSHEE

OCTOBER 9, 1933 - JUNE 26, 2022

Dale L. Fooshee, 88, of Topeka, passed away Sunday, June 26, 2022.

He was born October 9, 1933, in Spring Hill, Kansas, the son of Claude and Agnes (Rader) Fooshee.

Fooshee

Dale grew up and attended school in Garnett, Kansas, graduating from Garnett High School as valedictorian in 1951. He earned his bachelor's degree with honors in Agricultural Economics from Kansas State University in 1955. During his time at K-State, he was a member of Phi Kappa Phi, Gamma Sigma Delta, Alpha Zeta, Blue Key, and Farm House Fraternities. He also served as director and president of the KSU Farm Management Association. While attending K-State, he served as a delegate in Sweden with the International Farm Youth Exchange Program sponsored by Kansas State University and 4-H program. This experience had a great influence on the direction his life took and the choices he made.

After college, he married Shirley Ann Copeland in Garnett, Kansas on June 8, 1956. Dale and Shirley moved to Augusta, Georgia where he served two years in the Army as a Radio Operations Instructor.

He began his career as an Agricultural Agent of Kansas Extension Service in Elk County, Kansas, coordinating many volunteer extension groups and 4-H Clubs. In 1963 he and Shirley "returned home" and started his farming operation of a hog enterprise with 1800 feeder pigs, 135 sows, plus a small cow herd on a 2000 acre farm in Anderson County, Kansas. He also had part ownership of two county elevators and farm supply business.

Dale served on the National Advisory Council for the Peace Corps from 1970 until 1972. He was appointed by former President Richard Nixon, upon the recommendation of Senator Robert Dole.

In 1977 he was named the Distinguished Agricultural Economics Alumnus from Kansas State University. The Award honors former graduates of the department who have distinguished themselves professionally through their contribution to agriculture. Dale and Shirley were very active for many years in the United Methodist Church in Garnett. Not only did he hold many offices, but also worked on many district and conference levels. He helped organize and held a chair with the Kansas East Conference Hunger Task Force from 1976 until 1984, serving on projects in many countries, including Mexico, Haiti, Russia, and Guatemala. This too was another important influence in his life.

Dale served for seven years as Council Director for the Kansas East Conference of the United Methodist Church overseeing all programming agencies of the conference such as missions, camping, youth, campus ministry, and social issues. Prior to that he served as an Associate Council Director and Rural Life Advocate, a position with special responsibilities related to troubled farm families and communities during the farm crisis. He was recognized as Rural Lay Person of the Year by the Kansas East Conference UMC in 1985.

Dale was very active in his retirement years. He was very involved in the Topeka Center for Peace and Justice. He also served on the board of the Shepherd Center. For eight years he was involved with the National United Methodist Board of Missions in 120 countries. He volunteered with Stephen's Ministries, a peer support organization and was a weekly hospital visitor for his church. He was currently the Democratic Party precinct chair and was instrumental in getting the state minimum wage increased.

Dale's family and friends meant everything to him. He visited each grandchild, who all lived out of state, on their birthday. He never knew a stranger and never went a day without lunch plans with someone.

He is survived by four daughters, Janet Fouche-Schack (James), Julie Fooshee (Pam Dooley), Jill Babcock (Sherri), and Kimberly Marbello (Rey); five grandchildren, Grace Ann Babcock, Shea Celeste Dooley, Quentin Lewis Marbello, Ethan Rey Marbello, and Faith Mae Babcock.

He was preceded in death by his wife, Shirley on December 28, 2003 and a granddaughter, Maria Elisabeth Dooley in November 4, 2006.

Services were held on Saturday, July 2, 2022 at Topeka First United Methodist Church. Interment followed at Garnett Cemetery.

How will they ever know God?

WEEKLY DEVOTIONAL

BY DAVID BILDERBACK

In the 6th chapter of Isaiah we read of Isaiah's commission to service by God. We also read what prompted this commission of the prophet as follows. "In the year King Uzziah died, I (Isaiah) saw the Lord seated on a throne, high and exalted, and the train of his robe filled the temple." (Isaiah 6:1)

Uzziah had been king of Israel for 52 years. His death marked a watershed event for the people of Israel, they had lost the leader they had looked to for so long.

To put this in perspective this would be similar to the shock waves that went through the people of the United States when President Kennedy was shot or the twin tower event in New York. As we read into the text we see a startling difference between how God is perceived in heaven, (I believe Isaiah received a glimpse into the sanctuary of God) and how he is perceived on earth. We read in Isaiah 1:3 that the seraphs, who are angelic heavenly beings that are in the service of God pronounce that God is Holy, Holy, Holy. This attribute of God is the only one of his attributes that is ever taken to the third degree, "Holy, Holy, Holy."

I believe it is important for us to understand that our culture has become desensitized to this attribute of God. If we are made in God's image surely this is one of God's attributes we should exhibit. I know that you are probably thinking if I display a holy character I am setting myself up for criticism from people I know, or work with and my family. You are probably correct but the question you have to ask yourself is if I am a Christian should I look and act like the rest of the world or should I be different. You and I know the true answer to that question. We have been intimidated by the secular world to conform to their norm which is so broad it cannot be defined. This culture leaves everything open for interpretation by the individual which leads to constantly changing interpretation criteria.

I said there was a vast difference in the perception of God in heaven and on earth. The question we have to live with is if we as Christian individuals don't exhibit the characteristics of God here on earth for people who are desensitized to the things of God to see, how will they ever come to know God?

The Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi inducts new members

BATON ROUGE, LA - The following people recently were initiated into The Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi, the nation's oldest and most selective collegiate honor society for all academic disciplines.

•Danielle Martin of Wellsville (66092) at Emporia State University
•Jennifer Gum-Fowler of Kincaid (66039) at Emporia State University

They are among approximately 25,000 students, faculty, professional staff and alumni to be initiated into Phi Kappa Phi each year. Membership is by invitation only and requires nomination and approval by a chapter. Only the top 10 percent of seniors and 7.5 percent of juniors are eligible for membership. Graduate students in the top 10 percent of the number of candidates for graduate degrees may also qualify, as do faculty, professional staff and alumni who have achieved scholarly distinction.

Phi Kappa Phi was founded in 1897 under the leadership of undergraduate student Marcus L. Urann who had a desire to create a different kind of honor society: one that recognized excellence in all academic disciplines. Today, the Society has chapters on more than 325 campuses in the United States, its territories and the Philippines. Its mission is "To recognize and promote academic excellence in all fields of higher education and to engage the community of scholars in service to others."

Kelly wants to rumble with your cash

Governor Laura Kelly is ready to go all Sharks and Jets on any recession that may come knocking on Sunflower State turf – jonesing for a rumble just like Riff and Bernardo in “West Side Story” – and backed up by tons of surplus cash that came out of your pockets from Kansas’ ever exorbitant tax rates.

“Bring it on,” she challenged recession fears last week while appearing before an audience of supporters. “Because we now have enough money to be able to ride it out, still funding everything that we’re supposed to be funding,” Kelly said.

No doubt we’re all bolstered knowing the grand architect of the Kansas pandemic shut-down, who shuddered small businesses and churches, stopped the economy and would probably still have you in a mask and some phase of “reopening” if not for Republicans in the Legislature, is ready to put up her dukes with your tax money if a recession gets lippy. How nice that Kansas’ coffers are so flush with our tax revenues, while folks hauling their kids to traveling team ball games this summer are shelling out nearly $5 a gallon for gas.

That Kelly would even mention “the R word” at all is a stark admission for a Democrat in public office right now. The frighteningly befuddled Joe Biden jumped a reporter just last month for suggesting a recession was heading our way like the finger snapping chorus line of “The Jet Song,” saying he had recently talked to former treasury secretary Larry Summers and “there’s nothing inevitable about a recession.”

Trouble is Summers was on an NBC news show just the previous Sunday saying a recession was likely, due to spiking inflation, like in previous historical instances. Nonetheless Democrats dodge the mention of the word as they whistle past the graveyard on the topic. But hey, ‘when you’re a Jet you’re a Jet all the way, from your first cigarette to your last dyin’ day...’

If you’re just a Kansan who’s been trying to put gas in your car or buy a steak or shingles for your roof or anything else this summer, Kelly’s comments are more than a little galling. If the state is so flush with extra cash – why not cut taxes and put a little of that windfall cash back in our pockets?

Of course this is coming from the Governor, who, flanked by economic development boy wonder David Toland earlier this spring took credit for every tax-generating private business investment made by real entrepreneurs in the state over the past year. To hear Kelly and Toland tell it, it’s almost as if the less-than-dynamic duo had both cashed in their own 401k’s, mowed that weedy lot out back and helped pour the concrete for a new quiche and crab legs stand themselves.

Meanwhile tax increases passed in 2015 and 2017 continue to drain the wallets of those earning a living here. And don’t forget – for those who were due a tax refund from the state back when Trump rewrote the federal tax codes as part of an economic plan that actually worked – Kelly saw fit to keep the refund that should have come back to you.

Since then, though unemployment percentages make the state look fabulous, 38,000 fewer Kansans were working in May of this year compared to January 2020. In addition to job loss and crippling inflation, Kansans are paying some of the highest tax rates in the U.S. –

- our top marginal income tax rate of 5.7% is higher than 28 states.
- Kansas has the highest effective tax rate on mature businesses.
- the combined state and local sales tax rate is the ninth-highest in the nation.

• And of course Kansans pay some of the highest effective property tax rates in the country. We all saw what happened to our property valuations recently, and we’re all spooked about what unchecked local tax levies will do when applied to the assessments on those higher, inflation-driven values as city’s and counties and school districts draft their 2023 budgets.

Instead of claiming credit for the success due private business investors and talking smack about how much extra cash the state’s drained from the citizenry as 40 year record inflation chews away at every Kansas household, Kelly should have spent the post-Covid recovery coming up with a plan to cut personal and corporate income taxes and leave that windfall with the people who earned it. ###

Well, I feel sorry for the majority of the women in Anderson County. According to the news media, since they haven’t had an abortion, they haven’t had good health care. Maybe we can find some other way for them to get good health care. I guess we’ll see.

Local people working the register at local businesses, tell me “thank you.” Don’t just drop the receipt in my bag and clam up. Don’t just say “have a nice day” although that’s better than nothing. Say “thank you,” because it means you appreciate me spending my money with you or your boss who is providing you a job rather than me going to any of your competitors where I could have shopped. Make me feel appreciated, because many times when I shop in this town, I don’t. Now I’ll say it to you. Thank you.

Whoa, what’s this I hear, some dude a couple months ago wound up shooting a bunch of people with a bow and arrow. Now, if we get rid of the guns, what’s he gonna do?

Notice to all local farmers. Could it be possible that you could round the corners of your corn fields at the intersections so there’s better visibility? Do we gain that much by making a square corner?

It’s time somebody put something positive in the Phone Forum rather than complain about the politicians, the city commission and other things. I became very ill last week and I was transported to the Anderson County Hospital where I received excellent care. From there I was transferred to the Iola hospital where I had to spend a week. Again I received excellent care. For all you people who think these hospitals are jokes, you’re the one that’s mistaken.

To the Anderson County Weed Department and all the local farmers. Have you paid attention and noticed along the roadsides and in our fields? We are getting inundated with Johnson Grass. We need to get serious about getting it under control or we will have a county of Johnson Grass in real short order. Let’s get some spray and get it under control. Thank you much.

Count ‘em up: Oil companies making huge profits

Around the globe, people are feeling the pain of inflation, currently at a 40-year high. The main contributor is gas and diesel prices. In today’s global economy goods are moved across America, as well the world. The price rise in fuel has led to a spike in the cost of everything we produce and buy.

Factors leading to this economic hardship include recovering economies from COVID-19 shutdown(s), because of pandemic restrictions. For nearly two years, air travel was significantly lower. Canadian CTV News reported in May of 2020, more than 17,000 airplanes were parked indefinitely worldwide. Many people were either working from home or not working at all. Of course, the lack of commuter traffic lowered oil demand even further.

This reduction in fuel consumption caused big oil companies to change their operational philosophy. They decided to no longer prioritize repairing refineries, and in some cases shut them down indefinitely. Now, let’s take a look at big oil pre-pandemic, in June 2019. A Sunoco refinery outside of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania caught fire. This was the oldest continually running refinery in the U.S., and it was subsequently shut down and the property was sold. It erased 175,000 barrels per day from the production equation. In 2021, Hurricane Ida also contributed to the closing of several refineries in the Gulf Coast area. Phillips 66 decided to shut down its Belle Chasse, Louisiana facility and did not replace the lost production of 255,000 barrels per day.

In the past two years, there have been eight other refineries shut down totaling about one million barrels per day. Yet what we hear from big oil companies is that they are producing as much as they can. They seem to be engaging in what many of us believe was happening all along, collusion. This time it is not just the price, but cutting production that keeps prices soaring at the pump.

Analysts report oil entities are making record profits. Why would they want to change the system? Those same companies insist they lost billions during the pandemic, and are simply trying to recoup their losses. However, I own some oil stocks in my IRA. During the pandemic, I still was paid quarterly dividends. If they were losing money, where did all this cash come from that was being paid to shareholders? Apparently from the cash they had banked in accounts from past profits.

In January 2021, the price of a barrel of oil was about $52. Gas per gallon as a national average was $2.39. Federal taxes accounted for 18.4 cents per gallon and the average of four midwestern states accounts for 26.1 cents per gallon of state tax.

When you subtract 44.5 cents per gallon of taxes, $1.94 per gallon remains. On June 30, 2022, a barrel of crude oil was $106. AAA reports an average June 28 gasoline pump price of $4.86. Subtract the taxes and you end up with $4.41 per gallon. Big oil companies did not see all their inputs double, including wages for refinery workers. I don’t begrudge anyone for making a profit, which every successful business must do. However, it seems to me that profits should not be made at the expense of society.

Easier to beat up on gas stations than change policy

For Joe Biden, the buck stops with small independent business owners trying to make ends meet.

Over the holiday weekend, the president slammed gas stations for the purported sin of not passing along declining oil prices to motorists.

Biden took to Twitter to urge “the companies running gas stations and setting prices at the pump” to heed his message: “Bring down the price you are charging at the pump to reflect the cost you’re paying for the product.” Yes, sir, whatever you say, Mr. President!

The United States Oil and Gas Association mockingly recommended that the intern who posted the tweet should sign up for Econ 101, but it’s worse than that. Biden has hit the gas stations before on the same grounds. It’s hard to know where the economic illiteracy ends and the shameless demagoguery begins. Regardless, it’s another indication that the president’s approach to inflation is to cast about for scapegoats and villains, no matter how implausible.

So-called jawboning, or stern rhetoric directed at industries to get them to bend to the presidential will, is nothing new. The most famous example is from John F. Kennedy, who blasted U.S. Steel for raising prices in 1962. JFK’s tack was questionable, but at least he was targeting an enormously influential industry that had breached an agreement to hold the line on prices brokered by his administration.

Biden, by contrast, is going after the proverbial Liberty Gas Station and Uni-Mart down on Route 134 started by an immigrant couple hoping to send their children to college for the first time. These small-time entrepreneurs have done nothing wrong, except remain in business at a time when the president’s anti-oil-and-gas policy has backfired spectacularly.

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

As the business newsletter The Hustle explains, the majority of owners operate a single gas station, either as a branded location of a big famous company or on their own. Given that there are more than 100,000 gas stations in the United States, many clustered at the same busy intersections in direct competition with one another, a proprietor hardly has monopoly power to determine prices.

Indeed, when Biden says gas stations set prices, he’s technically correct in the sense that they post the prices on their iconic signs down to the tenth of a cent. They aren’t doing it arbitrarily, though. They all know that if they set a price not justified by broader market forces, customers will simply drive down the street to a more reasonably priced station.

Selling gas usually isn’t the most lucrative part of the business, either. Gas stations make a very small margin on fuel, with the cost of crude and refining, along with transport and taxes, accounting for almost all of the price at the pump. Stations earn a much higher margin on their sales of drinks and foodstuffs. Biden would be on more solid ground urging gas stations to cut consumers a break on the price of soda and Doritos.

Biden maintains that the stations should reduce gas prices since it’s a time of “war and global peril.” This appeal might make sense if Biden were browbeating gas stations located in Ukraine or Russia. But the U.S. is not at war, and business owners are under no obligation to sell their product at cost or below because Vladimir Putin is trying to dismember Ukraine. Counterintuitively, gas stations tend to be more profitable when prices are declining rather than rising, so they are unlikely simply as a business matter to be engaged in the pricing conspiracy that Biden alleges.

Although President Biden considers them worthy of a good kicking, gas stations aren’t a growth proposition. The number of stations has markedly declined in recent decades, and the rise of the electric cars is putting more pressure on the business model.

At least they are actually doing their job in difficult circumstances. The same can’t be said of the president.

Panel member asks for survey responses re: “Gender Queer”

Letter To The Editor,
Hello my name is Amanda Walker. I am a resident of Garnett, Ks. I was recently on a committee to discuss a book called “Gender Queer.” In this meeting it was discussed on whether to keep/remove the book or possibly have an age restriction (18 or above to check out). In this meeting there were four votes to keep the book in the library with no age restrictions and two to not keep the book in the library or at least have an age restriction (18 or above to check out). I would like to hear from the community as a whole, so I would ask that you email me at mandymiller6@yahoo.com with responses for these two questions:

1: Do you think “Gender Queer” should be in the Garnett public library? Yes or No?

2: Would you prefer an age restriction for “Gender Queer” to be checked out of the Garnett public library(18 or above)? Yes or No?

These answers will be given to the library and library board so they can see the community’s response as a whole. Thank you for taking the time to respond to this survey.

The survey will be open from July 12th-July 14th. This is for informational purposes only. Please include any comments that you feel are necessary. Thank you again and have a great day.

DIGGING UP THE PAST

Henry Roeckers
Call (785) 504-4722 for local archeology information.

Here are three more artifacts that were fun to research.

You're asking yourself. What in the world is that piece of metal? Guess what? I asked myself that same question until I saw the name CHRISTY CO. on it.

After research here is what I found out. This artifact is actually the blade guard from a Vintage Christy Safety Razor of the early 1900's.

The Christy Company of Freman, Ohio actually started out in 1880 as the Christy Knife Company. The serrated edge bread knife was invented, patented and sold nationwide. It wasn't until 1906 that saw the Christy single-edge safety razor being invented and placed on the market.

Middle right

If you said these are just a couple of old plastic toys wheels, you're absolutely right. I would almost bet that there is someone out there that owned and played with a Wyandotte Vintage -Antique Tin Toy. From 1921-1957, the ALL METAL PRODUCTS COMPANY produced and sold millions of Wyandotte TIN toys. cars, trucks, airplanes, racers, military jeeps, aircraft ships, etc., even the tin hen that laid those marble eggs.

The yellow wheel pictured here is from a Tin Litho Racing Car also known as the "Boat Tail Streamlined Race Car"

Ladies do remember these? They were very popular in the 1920's thru the 1940's. These are the frames for making cloth belt buckles. In fact if you look closely there are still pieces of material sticking to them.

In my future columns I will be sharing more of my finds with you.

high demand and projected low levels of wind for wind farms had lowered the amount of electricity that could be available.

"Soon after that we received a second email," Wilson said, "this one from KMEA (Kansas Municipal Energy Agency) stating SPP is declaring a need for Conservative Operations Advisory due to high loads and wind generation output availability."

Wilson said he had not yet approached issuing a city-wide request to reduce electrical consumption, but that move would be likely if more alerts came from the SPP.

"We haven't asked residents to conserve yet, however if we receive any more communication from them, there is a possibility we will ask people to conserve in order to keep us from dealing with rolling outages," Wilson told the Review yesterday.

Under pressure from green energy policies and the Environmental Protection Agency, power companies have increasingly planned to reduce firm electricity production methods of coal powered generating plants in favor of lower pollution but lower potential production means like wind and solar power. Evergy, from whom Garnett purchases electricity, plans to stop coal powered production at its Lawrence Energy Center by the end of 2023. In a 2021 rate filing, the company pledged to close one coal burning plant at Jeffrey in 2030 and one LaCygne plant in 2032 and would close remaining units at those plants in 2039. In the same filing, Evergy said it would invest in 350 megawatts of solar power by the end of 2023. It plans to convert the Lawrence center to run on natural gas.

A hot spell earlier this month made worse by high humidity was sated late last week by cooler temps that dropped to 85 with clouds on July 9. Temperatures are forecast to climb into the mid-to-upper 90s later this week.

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 7-12-22 / SUBMITTED

The Cherry Mound 4-H club met in April, May and June of 2022 at the Lucky13 clubhouse, the Westphalia school and the Westphalia park. The April meeting was an exchange meeting with the Lucky 13 4-H club at their clubhouse. Both clubs held their business meetings. For the program we learned how to throw the football from a Lucky 13 club member and the importance of greasing your farm equipment from Cherry Mound member, Austin Teter. Both clubs enjoyed a game of four corners outside in the beautiful spring weather. Refreshments were enjoyed courtesy of Lucky 13. May and June meetings were held at the Westphalia school and Westphalia park, respectively. Members shared their plans for the summer during May roll call and their most prized possession in June. In May, Riley Young gave a talk on wiring electrical in a barn. Max Jimenez talked about his 4-H hogs in June. Members were reminded of important dates coming in the summer, fair information and upcoming deadlines. The May meeting also included a night of games and pizza after the business meeting. June business included appointing Jayden Teter as the new secretary due to the departure of Hayden Newton.

Blights

By Mya Jumet
5th Grade, Central Heights
Mrs. Riemer

So, let me give you a history lesson. Ten percent of people have superpowers. Those people are called Blights. Blights are looked down on, because people think they'll use their power for evil things. But that isn't true for most Blights. Most blights want to do good things with their power, but they're scared of getting found out. And not surprisingly, the main character has a power. Her name is Harper. Her power is hard to explain. She can create a blue tinted platform, and no matter what height you fall from, you can land on it and live. Only her parents know.

"Mom," Harper said one day after school, "I nearly got found out! We were playing on the equipment, and I fell. So I used my power. I almost hit the ground, and then activated it."

"Just try to be more careful next time." Her mom told her.

"OK," Harper replied.

The next day, Harper went on a walk. She got a few odd looks from people who go to her school. It was as though they trusted her less than they did the day before. Oh goodness, she thought, I hope they don't suspect me. When she got home, she asked her mom, "Do you know what's so unfair?"

"What?" Her mom asked.

"People are being looked down on for things they can't control! Things such as having powers." Harper said.

"I agree. That is unfair," her mom said.

As Harper got home from school the next day, she heard a noise that sounded like wood cracking. And then she heard a couple of yelps. She turned her head toward the sound. Two people were hanging on to the broken railing of a balcony. Suddenly what they were holding on to broke under their weight. Without thinking, she used her power to create a staircase of platforms for them so they could safely land on the ground. As soon as the people landed on the ground, the crowd began shouting:

"Who did that?"

"What in the world?!"

"Whoever did that, show yourself. I'd like to thank you." The crowd went silent. Everyone tensed. The person repeated themselves:

"Whoever did that, show yourself. I want to thank you." And so Harper did. She thought no one would trust her anymore. Her legs were trembling. Was this a trick? Keep in mind, Blights are looked down on, so this is an appropriate reaction.

"Thank you so so so much. Those kids that you saved were my children. If you hadn't been there, they wouldn't be alive right now. I promise I will always remember you. I'm Andrew." He said. "What if your name?" he asked.

"Harper." She replied.

After that, people began to trust Blights more. They realized that they should give Blights a chance to prove that they deserve their power. They realized that they were being unfair to Blights. And Harper realized that she changed many people's lives for the better. Everyone remembered that day for a long, long time. Oh, and now they are not called Blights. They are just special people.

Betty

By Lori Chupp
6th Grade, Central Plains
Ms. Miller

It was in the 1850's and there was a girl named Betty. She lived in Texas with her mom and dad and 2 little brothers. One day she was walking to town to get some groceries for her mom. When she saw two strange men riding her way. Quickly she ran behind a tree. They hadn't seen her. As they came closer she heard them talking. One said, "What fun, tonight at 12:00 the bank will be empty and we'll be rich!" What they didn't know was that Betty had heard them and was scared but she knew she had to go on to town. So she ran the rest of the way to town. She decided she wasn't going to tell anyone because what if they wouldn't do it after all. She got her groceries and went home.

That night she crept out of her bed and opened her window and climbed down the small tree that was below her window. She was halfway down when she slipped and almost fell off the branch she was standing on. But she grabbed a branch and quietly slipped down to the ground. Once she was on the ground she ran the 1/4 mile to town. There she hid in the alley behind the bank and waited till 12:00. Then she heard them running over to the window of the bank. They opened it and climbed in. Quickly she ran over to another window and peeped in. They were at the desk talking quietly to themselves and laughing every so often. One said "We are going to be rich Marve." Betty watched a little more then ran over to the police's house and knocked. Nothing. She knocked again. Still nothing. Finally on the third someone opened it. Quickly she told what she had seen and both set off running. But when they got there there was no one in sight. He asked what they looked like and she told him. He searched the rest of the night but found nothing. He told her she did a good thing even if the bank was still robbed.

They never found one of the robbers but they found one in the woods and put him in jail. But they never found the other.

Colony Christian Church - "God's Masterpiece"

Bruce Symes gave the Communion Meditation this week about Freedom. When we learn to trust God and the Spirit dwells within us, we are free. Free from fear, anxiety, addictions, doubt and limitations. We are released from anything that will restrain us. As U.S. citizens celebrate Independence Day, let us Christ followers remember the cost that has been paid to purchase freedom - not just for a nation, but for all people! There was a war for all the human race in which freedom for all people was purchased. The empty tomb is a symbol of the cost of true freedom for all people. (Ref: Revelation 1:10; 2 Corinthians 3:17; Mark 10:27; Philippians 2:6-11; 1 Corinthians 15:54-55)

Pastor Chase Riebel gave the sermon "God's Masterpiece". We are God's creation, his masterpiece. Each day of creation, God finished with the words "it is good", but after creating man, he said "it is VERY good". We are made in the image of God. Created to reflect his wisdom, benevolence, and rulership as stewards of his creation. And he has given each of us special gifts to influence those around us and to bring glory to him. But when sin came into the world, what God called "very good" became stained and broken and lost. When Jesus rose from the grave, God's masterpiece was restored. And in Christ, we were made perfect! Because of this, we can do the good things he planned for us long ago. (Ref: Ephesians 2:10; Psalm 139:13-14; Genesis 1:26-31; 1 Peter 1:18-19; Hebrews 10:14) Hear this and all our sermons by using your favorite podcast app, on our Facebook page, or on our website at www.colonychristianchurch.org.

He quoted statistics pointing out high rates of suicide and self harm among youths and adults identifying as transgender, and said materials which encouraged embracing gender dysphoria (a clinical term for the mental disorder of stress and anxiety in the acceptance of one's actual sex) were dangerous to children who are vulnerable and impressionable.

"This is designed to tell people how to think about transgenderism," Black said. "This idea that gender and sex are independent is preposterous. We're actually teaching children a lie."

Black said the library should have no roll in supporting or facilitating materials that groom children for pedophilia or transgender lifestyles.

county governments the option of adopting a mandate in their own jurisdictions. Anderson County Commissioners twice voted against imposing a mandate locally.

Dr. Foegen's eponymous "Foegen Effect" theory states:

"Deep re-inhalation of hypercondensed droplets or pure virions caught in face-masks as droplets can worsen prognosis and might be linked to long-term effects of COVID-19 infection. While the "Foegen effect" is proven in vivo in an animal model, further research is needed to fully understand it."

The study's conclusion

"The most important finding from this study is that contrary to the accepted thought that fewer people are dying because infection rates are reduced by masks, this was not the case. Results from this study strongly suggest that mask mandates actually caused about 1.5 times the number of deaths or 50% more deaths compared to no mask mandates."

Dr. Aaron Kheriaty agrees with the study's findings in an article published on Townhall.

com: "There is emerging evidence, a study out of Kansas recently that suggested that the case fatality rate with Covid is higher where there are mask mandates," Kheriaty said. "Once you get infected, if you are wearing a mask, this study suggested that your chance of having a bad outcome, of dying from Covid was higher. And that probably has to do with rebreathing these kind of condensed droplets that have a lot of virus in them."

A Sentinel analysis also found that Kansas counties with mask mandates had higher COVID case growth.

Townhall.com reporter Scott Morefield succinctly summarizes the conclusion of the Kansas study:

"Of course, those of us with a lick of common sense and the ability to follow evolving data knew this the entire time. Still, it's nice to see the research finally beginning to catch up."

The Sentinel is owned by the Kansas Policy Institute, a conservative research organization based in Wichita.

Sobba told the panel it was she who purchased the book for distribution, but said it did not meet the mandatory criteria of the U.S. Supreme Court as pornography. She said that while she found elements of the book distasteful, she didn't believe the aim of the book was sexual arousal - instead she said it was a chronicle of the author's experiences and that it could have value for people going through similar circumstances. She also said the library didn't presently have the policy mechanics to age restrict any materials.

"If we were to put an age restriction on this, then we would have to put an age restriction on all kinds of things," Sobba said. "We'd have to redo every policy that we have, and then we are no longer a public library - we're restricting everybody in one way or another if we do that."

Dieter said as a retired teacher she could see the value in the book's message for kids struggling with their sexual identity.

"There are a group of kids who have questions about their gender - not many - but they can benefit from this book. It explained things for me that I saw in some of my students, way back whenever, but we didn't have names for that situation."

Katzner said she agreed the book could have value for kids struggling with gender questions.

Walker, who took part in previous protests of the book in Johnson County, said she planned to provide library board members with the results of survey data she planned to gather from the local community regarding the book. The August 8 meeting will begin at meeting 6 p.m. at the library.

HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION No. 5003

A PROPOSITION to amend the bill of rights of the constitution of the state of Kansas by adding a new section thereto stating that there is no constitutional right to abortion, and reserving to the people the ability to regulate abortion through the elected members of the legislature of the state of Kansas.

WHEREAS, This proposition to amend the bill of rights of the constitution of the state of Kansas shall be known and may be cited as the Value Them Both Amendment.

Now, therefore:
Be it resolved by the Legislature of the State of Kansas, two-thirds of the members elected (or appointed) and qualified to the House of Representatives and two-thirds of the members elected (or appointed) and qualified to the Senate concurring therein:

Section 1. The following proposition to amend the constitution of the state of Kansas shall be submitted to the qualified electors of the state for their approval or rejection: The bill of rights of the constitution of the state of Kansas is hereby amended by adding a new section to read as follows:

“§ 22. Regulation of abortion. Because Kansans value both women and children, the constitution of the state of Kansas does not require government funding of abortion and does not create or secure a right to abortion. To the extent permitted by the constitution of the United States, the people, through their elected state representatives and state senators, may pass laws regarding abortion, including, but not limited to, laws that account for circumstances of pregnancy resulting from rape or incest, or circumstances of necessity to save the life of the mother.”

Sec. 2. The following statement shall be printed on the ballot with the amendment as a whole:

“Explanatory statement. The Value Them Both Amendment would affirm there is no Kansas constitutional right to abortion or to require the government funding of abortion, and would reserve to the people of Kansas, through their elected state legislators, the right to pass laws to regulate abortion, including, but not limited to, in circumstances of pregnancy resulting from rape or incest, or when necessary to save the life of the mother.

“A vote for the Value Them Both Amendment would affirm there is no Kansas constitutional right to abortion or to require the government funding of abortion, and would reserve to the people of Kansas, through their elected state legislators, the right to pass laws to regulate abortion.

“A vote against the Value Them Both Amendment would make no changes to the constitution of the state of Kansas, and could restrict the people, through their elected state legislators from regulating abortion by leaving in place the recently recognized right to abortion.”

Sec. 3. This resolution, if approved by two-thirds of the members elected (or appointed) and qualified to the House of Representatives, and two-thirds of the members elected (or appointed) and qualified to the Senate shall be entered on the journals, together with the yeas and nays. The secretary of state shall cause this resolution to be published as provided by law and shall cause the proposed amendment to be submitted to the electors of the state at a special election which is hereby called on August 2, 2022, pursuant to section 1 of article 14 of the constitution of the state of Kansas, to be held in conjunction with the primary election held on such date.
