THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 8-30-2022 / DANE HICKS/ ANDERSON COUNTY HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Workers tried to wrap up the monnig schedule on a new roof installation at the Anderson County Historical Society recently before temperatures climbed to the upper 90s in the afternoon. The ACHS building was formerly Longfellow School, and was built in 1925. The school replaced the previous Longfellow School built in 1885 at the same site which burned in 1924 (inset).

Ahhh, rain

Weekend bath may have helped ponds and lawns, but 2022 corn will drop from '21

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT—The Saturday/Sunday thunderstorm that dropped more than two inches of rain on parts of a parched Anderson County spelled relief and maybe benefited the local soybean crop, but analysts say the outcome of the 2022 corn crop is pretty much already known.

Though Eastern Kansas enjoyed a cool, wet spring that delayed some corn planting, the last few weeks before the 2022 harvest left Anderson County—like much of the rest of the state—begging for moisture.

The tap shut off in the region after May rainfall was tallied. Anderson County logged 10.45 inches for May—about double what the average would yield—but June and July both saw deficits of 2 and 1.36 inches off normal respectively. While other counties in western Kansas have it worse, the dry finish to Rain gauges in the area had their cobwebs washed away with a welcome storm over the weekend.

Garnett native honored by press association

TOPEKA — The Kansas Press Association recently announced former Garnett resident David Powls, editor and publisher of The Holton Recorder, as the 2022 recipient of the Clyde M. Reed Master Editor Award for lifetime contributions to the community, the Kansas newspaper industry and the state.

bers that we have worked with over the years," Powls said. "The Recorder staff really cares about what we do and wants to put out a good newspaper product every week."

 David and Connie Powls

Powls purchased The Recorder and The Sabetha Herald in 1997 after co-owning The Osawatomie Graphic and The Louisburg Herald and owning The Yates Center News from 1984-1995. They sold The Herald in 2004.

Powls is a past president of The Kansas Press Association board of directors. He and Connie, the daughter of the late Glen and Doris Lickteig, were honored by KPA in 2018 as Boyd Community Service Award winners. David is also a past winner of the Kansas Gas Service's statewide award for editorial writing. He has a BS degree in journalism and a BA degree in creative writing, both from The University of Kansas, and is a William Allen White Foundation trustee member.

This is Powls' 40th year in the newspaper business. His first job after college graduation in 1981-1982 was as editor of The Baxter Springs Citizen semi-weekly newspaper. He also worked as sports editor/reporter/photographer at The Iola Register daily newspaper.

Wettstein to leave community development post after more than three decades with City of Garnett

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT— One of Garnett's most recognizable faces in community public relations and marketing will retire at the end of September, ending a career spanning 37 years in various positions with the City of Garnett.

of increases to the Transient Guest Tax, charged on the bill of local motels and other lodging to overnight guests at those facilities. Those funds helped form the basis of a city promotional budget for advertising and marketing efforts of local events. She also built the city's Internet and social media profiles as a part of general information and marketing.

Wettstein

Susan Wettstein became Community Development Director for the city in 2014 after working in several administrative capacities at city hall since 1985. She was the prime workhorse of the city's own promotional efforts for its own events and formed a formal liaison through the development of the city's tourism committee to partner with other organizations and sometimes private businesses hosting events of community-wide interest.

Wettstein also helped lobby for city commission approval beginning in 2005, the Lake Garnett Grand Prix Revival, several ski, boat race and boating events and numerous other events. Wettstein also served as the city's lead public relations director, serving as a contact for outside marketing, writing press releases and drafting advertising copy for events.

"It has been an honor and a privilege to work for the citizens of this community," Wettstein said last week. "I love what I do. I love helping to bring people to town, accomplishing projects and hopefully instilling pride in the community. I hope when people think of me it is with kindness. But, it's time," she said.

Website ranks Kansas for perspective on Biden's college loan giveaway plan

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

WASHINGTON, D.C. — While both Democrats and Republicans prepare to use President Biden's recently announced forgiveness of student debt as a pry bar in the critical 2022 mid-term elections, analysts in Kansas are counting up just what those numbers mean for Kansas.

Biden's plan — although details on applying for it are scarce — will likely be done by application with the U.S. Department of Education said to be ready to receive those applications in early October. Federal estimates are that about 8 million of the 40 million standard or Pell Grant debtors who make under $125,000 in the country already have income

How do we move Jesus from the church pew to the world?

WEEKLY DEVOTIONAL

BY DAVID BILDERBACK

If there was one thing that Jesus stressed when he was here on earth it was discipleship. In Matthew 28:19-20 he issues this command to the apostles. "Therefore go and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit and teaching them everything I have commanded you." Over the years this command has fallen out of favor in the church. At some point the church decided that baptism was the only necessary condition for the Christian. Most church's support some type of mission program but by and large not within their own congregation. Most congregations have come to feel that discipleship is done in some far off field by some missionary.

I believe we need to be careful how we interpret the phrase "all nations". If we do not make disciples out of our own congregations we are not obeying John 14:15 which states in Jesus own words. "If you love me you will obey what I command." We obey the traffic laws because we know there will be consequences if we don't. Yet we feel little or no obligation to obey this command from Jesus. I often ask the question of people, what is the most important thing in your life? Usually I do this in a setting where I am asking them to consider this. I have asked myself that question untold times and there are times when my answer would not be my relationship with Jesus. As human beings we are so grounded in the world our thought process leads us to try and be the captain of our own ship. Since the world is terribly flawed, so is this thinking. Once I got tuned into Jesus I prefer to have him at my side. Depending on him results in a life of integrity, a life driven by truths far more powerful than most people are prepared for and they will notice that your motives are different. This is how you move Jesus from the church pew out into the world. We don't obey Jesus for the same reason we obey the traffic laws. We obey him because we love him. I suspect people do this not even knowing they are being disciples. Just value the opportunities you can have no higher calling.

-David Bilderback, Ministry on the Holiness of God.

You borrow it, you pay it back

Underpinning the moronically obvious election year ploy at the root of Joe Biden's recently announced student debt exoneration bribe is another clear illustration how basic morality has no bearing among the Far Left that is puppeting Biden's presidency.

The obligation isn't just an American tradition; it's pretty much the basis of the entire institution of finance. When did it become morally acceptable to borrow money and not pay it back? Just when Democrats are desperate to hold onto power?

The point is and has been widely observed for decades. James Dorn wrote in a 2010 essay for the Foundation for Economic Education that the growth in government and the development of the "nanny state" that solidifies power by making the populace more dependent has sapped the nation's backbone and made expectation - not initiative - a staple.

"One cannot blame government for all of society's ills," Dorn writes, "but there is no doubt that economic and social legislation, especially since the mid-1960s, has had a negative impact on individual responsibility. Individuals lose their moral bearing when they become dependent on government. Subsidies, bailouts, and other aspects of the "nanny state" socialize risk and reduce individual accountability. The internal moral compass that normally guides individual behavior will no longer function when the State undermines incentives for moral conduct and blurs the distinction between right and wrong."

Dorn's connection between government codding, the abandonment of accountability and declining morality was based on his rearview from 2010, but it was nothing if not prophecy for our modern times.

It seems more elements of American society see right and wrong as relative. Black Lives Matter terrorists attacked and burned U.S. cities the summer of 2020 based on their phony calls for "social justice." The reality was that thousands of criminals simply wanted an excuse to destroy and loot their neighbors. When confronted with the immorality of the destruction and theft of private property, apologists justified that the property was insured - so what was the harm?

How do you debate or convince someone that uses that kind of justification for victimizing someone else? The argument is clearly lost on President Biden and the socialist hacks in his administration, who used the tired but convenient excuse of Covid recovery to expand governmental power and now to bribe part of an electorate that overall views his presidency as rotten on all fronts.

The logic is clear. Biden's student debt bailout targets a minority of the population - most Americans don't go to college and fewer graduate - but those who will earn on average $1 million more over their lifetimes than those who don't. This cadre of graduates tend to be liberals and voted for Biden overwhelmingly - hint, hint.

Obvious arguments abound. What of all of us who came before, borrowed money for school and paid it back? What about those that will seek future loans? Older sister gets her loan abolished, what about younger sister coming a few years behind? What of the small businesses - the restaurant owners, the welders, the one or two-person HVAC companies, the mechanic shops - all who borrowed start up funds to pursue their livelihoods and paid the money back? Where's the fairness in rewarding a slim segment of borrowers who are generally better off and happen to mostly vote Democrat?

Thankfully, the inconsistency isn't being lost on the discussions surrounding Biden's move. The transfer of some $500 billion in personal debt onto the whole of the tax-paying population isn't coming without rebuke, and be assured the truism remains: debt doesn't disappear once the money has been spent - it is still owed by somebody to somebody. Knowing that pits one group of Americans against another - yet again.

We can chalk it up as simply another dismal outcome of Biden's disastrous leadership. Like Afghanistan, inflation, vaccine mandates, the humanitarian crisis at the southern border, cascading urban crime and more, it is seeded in a key notion - an American presidency's willful repudiation of right and wrong. ###

Say what? Having been out of town recently I return home and pick up my copy of the Review only to find out our library board voted for kiddie porn. Former teachers voted for this? Please say this isn't true.

An open letter to the President. Dear Joe: Do you know why people revolt over taxes? It's because you're taking their money to pay for things they don't want. And if you just create more money to pay for the things we don't want, every dollar you create makes our worth less. Cut it out.

In the 70s we had to grow up. We had children and we had fun. Watch That 70s Show. I know you're all young and you might get it. It's just too funny. Everybody needs to watch That 70s Show.

The only reason the county needs a million dollars more in taxes is because of poor leadership and poor ways to use the money. They keep running businesses out of town.

Joe is shoving socialism down our throats $300 billion at a time.

What is it about you Republicans worshipping that orangutan? Here we have Tyson saying recount, recount, it's a crooked election. I am so sick of this. Counted by hand. Just cost more money. Even she said it's not going to make any difference. I'm so sick of you Republicans having to call fraud every time you lose. Don't be like Trump. Sickening.

I was out at the quonset hut today and I was the second one in line. It was so sad. There was kids that are crippled sitting out in wheelchairs. There has to be a place to do it where the elderly and kids can get in the shade.

Missouri just passed a law banning sexually explicit materials like "Gender Queer" from school libraries. Since city library boards like in Garnett don't seem to have any public conscience or sense of the morality in their towns, maybe we need something like this in the State of Kansas.

Our library has been the winner of the best

Lower taxes, not gimmicks, bring families to towns

Shawnee County residents have paid a maximum of $900,000 since 2019 for the Choose Topeka program incentivizing 70 workers thus far to move to the area. But between 2019 and 2021, Shawnee County lost 1,182 residents through net domestic migration - that's almost 17 times as many workers as the relocation subsidy has brought in.

Choose Topeka is a financial incentive administered through the Joint Economic Development Organization of Topeka and Shawnee County. Since its inception in 2019, a half-cent sales tax across Shawnee County has financed about $300,000 annually in financial incentives for people to move to the Topeka area. Depending on whether the relocation subsidy recipient is renting or purchasing a home and working in-person or remote, the incentives can vary from $5,000 to $15,000 per person.

Since 2019, 70 people have been given incentives and moved to the area. Assuming that the full cap of $300,000 has been spent each fiscal year, then each person has received an average of $12,857 from $900,000 in taxpayer-funded incentives. That's money taken from local taxpayers to give away to someone else.

Relocation subsidies similar to Choose Topeka have also raised fiscal question marks across the country. An audit of a statewide program in Vermont to pay people to move to the state could not determine whether residents moved to the state because of the incentive or because of other reasons, such as family commitments. A largely privately-funded experiment in Tulsa to bring in remote workers has led to issues like gentrification as high-tech jobs are being paid to move into the area at the expense of the people already there. It doesn't make sense to have poorer residents pay the bill for wealthier people to move to their area.

There are many ways to attract new residents to Shawnee County while at the same time making current families want to stay there. Instead of taking money from taxpayers to give to other taxpayers, elected officials can reduce the cost of government and let people keep more of their own money. In other words, remove the barriers that make the city too expensive instead of making the problem worse for everyone paying for the subsidy.

Since 1997, Topeka's property tax collections have grown by 123.1%, 2.5 times higher than the combined rate of population growth and inflation. Controlling the government spending and taxing less saves families hundreds of dollars and could keep them in their homes. According to a 2018 KPI study of county budgets, Shawnee County spent $833 per resident while Douglas County only spent $655. There's room for improvement and budget tightening to provide the same services at a better price.

Affordable housing is a key factor. Reforming zoning laws has seen much success in states like California where cost and availability has become an issue. For instance, building height caps, minimum lot sizes, and rules about what types of buildings can be located near others can severely limit development and discourage developers from mak-

Liz Cheney's long, lonely, non-Lincolnian path

"It's a slip, not a fall," Abraham Lincoln said after his loss in his legendary 1858 Illinois Senate contest against Stephen Douglas.

Liz Cheney apparently has the same attitude after her nearly 40-point wipeout in her primary last week. In lieu of a traditional concession speech, the Wyoming congresswoman and daughter of the former vice president delivered a picturesque, made-for-TV call to arms invoking Abraham Lincoln and Ulysses S. Grant.

Cheney had a choice after Jan. 6 between political viability, which would have involved modulating her outrage over Trump's "Stop the Steal" campaign, or political self-immolation. She chose a spectacular act of immolation - illuminating the night sky like the nuclear reactor at the outset of the HBO mini-series "Chernobyl."

Hers was an admirable loss. It is rare that any elected official is willing to sacrifice his or her office over a matter of deeply felt principle.

That said, she has undoubtedly cut herself off from the possibility of having a positive influence on the direction of the Republican Party via electoral politics, no matter how much she might want to think of her defeat as 1858 redux.

Lincoln's run against Douglas for the Senate wasn't a suicide mission. He came very close to winning and represented a rising political movement. His subsequent bid for the Republican presidential nomination in 1860 was a long shot, but he was a serious figure who had gained a national reputation and was comfortably in the middle of his party's consensus.

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

RICH LOWRY, King Features Syndicate

Cheney, a pariah within her own party, is differently situated. Plus, strategically and temperamentally, she is not Lincolnian.

Although he had firm principles, Lincoln was always a political pragmatist and fundamentally a party man willing to maneuver as necessary. Cheney's post-Jan. 6 approach bears less resemblance to Lincoln's than to that of William Lloyd Garrison, the uncompromising abolitionist publisher who took unabashedly radical and unpopular positions and expected the world to move toward him.

As it happens, the world did move toward Garrison, but in the meantime, he wasn't running for office.

There is zero case for Cheney attempting to go from the role of prophet without honor within her party to Republican vote-getter again.

It's difficult to overstate the magnitude of Cheney's collapse. She went from winning her primary with 73% of the vote in 2020, to garnering a mere 29% that was heavily dependent on Democratic crossover votes.

Cheney's alienation from her party is likely to build on itself. Already, she has said that she'd "find it very difficult" to support Gov. Ron DeSantis, the leading Republican alternative to Trump. In so doing, she is identifying herself with a fraction of a fraction of the party that is so small it is all but nonexistent.

Even if Cheney ran in the 2024 primary and got some traction, she'd only be taking voters from some other more viable alternative to Trump.

An independent run wouldn't make any more sense. Again, if Cheney became a factor, the chances are that she'd be a place for Republicans repulsed by Trump to park their votes rather than go all the way to Biden. Just as with a prospective primary run, she'd be helping Trump at the margins.

Captain Ahab may have made a few mistakes in judgment in his stewardship of the Pequod, but at least he never allowed himself to affirmatively assist his great adversary, the White Whale.

One thing that's been remarkable about Cheney's performance the last couple of years is how apparently clear-eyed she's been about what it means for her future in the House of Representatives, namely that she wouldn't have one. In contrast, a presidential run of any sort would be giving in to delusion. If Lincoln was dogged, he was never fanciful. Cheney should realize that she's taken a path that, whatever it's other advantages, doesn't end in electoral vindication.

LETTERS

Local library has value beyond Queer controversy

Dear Sir,

This letter is addressed to the Editor, but for all intent and purpose it is a letter to the citizens of Garnett and Anderson County. I began working at the library in 1968. I worked there for ten years. I then worked elsewhere before returning to the library in the fall of 1990. I worked there for twenty-eight more years before retiring in 2018. I would like to proudly say this to the folks of Anderson County, from the youngest to the eldest, our Garnett Public library is a wonderful and resourceful place to anyone who chooses to walk through its doors.

Is every book in the library something I want or need to read? No. Are books in the library, whether they be fiction, non-fiction, young adult or childrens books being "pushed" on the public? Again no. If you ask for suggestions of authors, need material for certain projects or directions in general, they will help you. The library is a wealth of knowledge for anyone and any perspective. It is a community gathering place.

For years our library has offered programs for preschool children, school age children and adults. The staff has worked long and hard to encourage our community to use the library. It is open six days a week, Monday through Saturday and some evenings to serve the public. They have taken their programs to the public, ice cream socials, children's programs at our schools, inviting authors and local artists and students to display their work, and could often be found delivering books to those that couldn't get in. I felt the need to say these things because I feel there might be some misconceptions and erroneous information being advanced.

The graphic book, "Gender Queer" by Kobabe was printed in 2019. It is a memoir about Kobabe's upbringing and life with the struggles of gender identity. It is not a particularly comfortable topic for many people,

Mystery solved - It's a dog tag

DIGGING UP THE PAST

Henry Roeckers
Call (785) 504-4722 for local archeology information.

Many of you recall that in my column two weeks ago I shared a photo of a special tag that I needed help in identifying (original photo needing help identifying is on top).

Would you believe that this past week I received five phone calls and e-mails from gentlemen identifying it? All five of them identified it as a "Dog Tag".

This tag is not to be confused with a dog license tag. The purpose of this tag is, if your dog runs away, gets lost or hurt, the person or persons finding it can notify the owner by calling collect to the number and name printed on it.

As you can see in the photo to the right, this tag is securely fastened directly to the collar.

Also while talking to a couple of these men, I learned that most of these tags were made and sold locally by a gentleman named Loren Hinkle (Henkle).

Loren not only made these tags, but a great deal of other dog equipment.

So you see it pays to ask for help and I want to say a personal Thank You to each of the five men who got in touch with me.

Respectfully submitted by:
Henry Roeckers.

Colony Christian Church - Pastor shares lessons learned during backpacking trip

Pastor Chase shared some lessons from the trail that he learned while on the backpacking trip in Wyoming which we can apply as we journey on our path through life. First, strip off the weight! Even a wristwatch is heavy at 10,000 feet. Don't carry the extra weight that will slow you down and wear you out. Hebrews 12:1 says "strip off every weight that slows us down, especially the sin that so easily trips us up". Lay down your burdens and strip yourself of sin. The second lesson is to fuel yourself with real power. Cosmic brownies are a nice snack, but to maintain the energy you need to carry all your gear on your back over the mountain to your destination, you need a calorie packed, protein rich, hearty meal. Similarly, we must consume God's Word. This life is full of ups and downs, emotionally and spiritually draining experiences, and plenty of shortcuts that will lead us downhill if we have only been snacking and not filling up on God's Word. Jesus himself said that man does not live by bread alone, but by every word that comes from the mouth of God. Lastly, don't play dumb. When there is a bear in the area and some one spills some food on your sleeping bag, don't just wipe it off and tell yourself the bear won't smell it. Thankfully, the park ranger had already secured the bear the night before, but how often do we play dumb with God? Ananias and Sapphira thought they could get away with telling a little white lie in Acts 5 by saying they were donating all of the money they received from a sale when in fact they were only donating a portion. The problem wasn't with the amount of the donation. The problem was that they lied to God. We need to take an honest look at our lives and determine if we have actually given our whole life to Jesus or if we are holding parts back that we don't want to surrender. Don't play dumb, God knows.

ing affordable homes. A 2017 study published by the National Bureau for Economic Research showed that if all states deregulated their zoning laws only halfway to the level of Texas, a state regarded for low zoning regs, their GDP would increase by 12% due to more productive workers and opportunities. Taking a more conscientious approach to zoning instead of having ineffective subsidies could be a place for housing growth. If communities like Shawnee County want to attract remote workers, then they should petition state lawmakers to help it happen. Reduced regulation on tax nexus eligibility conditions, employer withholding for short-term work, and more reciprocity agreements with other states on taxes all help promote business.

Long-term solutions to making Kansas communities more livable outperform robbing Peter to pay Paul, like subsidies favored by politicians of both major parties. Innovative policies can reduce costs and government burdens and make cities like Topeka a better place to live.

Our library has been the winner of the best small library in Kansas. Well deserved, as they offer so many programs and services to the community. The staff is professional and extremely competent. To pull books from a public library or school library is wrong. A library that is doing their job has one or more books that would offend at least one person, all the way from "The Art of the Deal" to whatever. I believe that censorship grows out of fear, and because fear is contagious parents are easily swayed. Book banning satisfied their need to feel in control of their children's lives. This fear is often disguised as moral outrage. They want to believe if their children don't read about it, their children won't know about it; and if they don't know about it, it won't happen.

Can we get a piece of fish every once in a while from Meals on Wheels? Thank you.

A forgiven debt typically counts as income. I wonder if hiring 87,000 new IRS agents is simply a coincidence?

information on file in their recent loan applications, and may get automatic exemption from those loans.

The timing of the announcement has led Republicans to accuse the President of using questionable executive powers to conjure an election year bribe - the cost of which will be foisted on millions of taxpayers who never took out student loans - aimed at buying votes of those debtors in an effort to minimize expected losses in U.S. House and Senate elections this November. Democrats have echoed the President's claim that student debt has hampered the economy and the earning ability of those who owe, and is a necessary element of Covid recovery.

The website WallutHub, in its report "2022's States with the Most and Least Student Debt," lists Kansas as among states with some of the highest per capita student loans, with an average of $37,000 owed per borrower. WallutHub ranked all 50 states according according to their share of students with debt, unemployment rate among those age 25-34, and those with past-due loan balances. Kansas ranked 19 overall; 18 in debt and 33rd in terms of work opportunities. The study did not say whether those debtors would meet the $125,000 annual income cap.

Kansas also ranked well in home ownership among that targeted age range, also at 19.

ple that with graphics and it becomes very uncomfortable. This book is in the adult non-fiction section of the library. It is not in the young adult or children's section, it is not being "pushed" or "promoted" in any way. It was checked out very little until folks requested it be removed, banned or censored. I read the entire book, I found it confusing. I don't recommend it. However, it is not illegal (unlike porn sites on public access computers). In a perfect world, parents would talk to their children about their sexuality, they could comfort and guide them.

I don't believe the format of this book is helpful. Having said that, when you push banning or censoring books, you are on a very slippery slope. You have to ask yourself what qualifies you to judge what should or should not be censored or banned. What offends you might not offend someone else, and vice versa. There are a lot of materials, art, romance, language, murder and mayhem that should not be in children's hands, but should they be banned? I think not.

Sincerely,

Sharon Rocker

Pieces & Patches Quilt Guild minutes for August

The Pieces and Patches Quilt Guild was called to order by President Jeanette Gadelman on Thursday, August 25th, 2022 at 9:30 a.m. The meeting was held at Kansas State Extension Office Conference Room. There were 22 members in attendance.

Minutes of the June 23rd, 2022 meeting were approved as printed.

Lynn Wawrzewski gave the treasurer's report.

Committee Reports

Programs: Connie Hatch reported on a successful "Quilty Road" trip that members participated in early August. There are plans for another road trip next summer going to different shops. The Heartland Quilt Network dues have been paid. The September 22nd meeting will occur at the Community Building and members will have a swap meet to sell quilting and sewing related items. Members can participate by buying a reserved space. The group will start setting up at 8 am and members can begin shopping early. The September meeting will be a very short meeting starting at 9:30 a.m. The swap meet is open to the public from 10 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. Come find some amazing buys and your next quilting project.

The guild will host a special quilt program on Saturday, October 22nd at the Community Building. We will have Diane Harris, the Stash Bandit, present a trunk show of her quilts (starts at 9:00 a.m.) and also offer a 4 hour (12:30 pm to 4:30 pm) workshop on Color and Contrast. The cost for members to attend the trunk show is $3; and to attend the trunk show and the workshop is $10. The event is open to the public and non-members can pay $5 for the trunk show; and to attend the trunk show and workshop is $25.00.

BOM: Mary Parrott distributed the last two quilt blocks in our BOM project. It is up to individual members to plan how they want to put their quilt blocks together. The project is due in December. The following members showed some of their completed blocks: Connie, Shirley, Terrie, Sandra, Rhonda, and Sharon. Opportunity Quilt: Connie showed the completed 2023 Opportunity quilt done in muted blue batiks with a creamy/beige background. The pattern name is Aegean Sea and is designed by Judy

Anderson County Fair: Terrie Gifford gave an update on the recently held fair. Thank you to everyone for volunteering your time to support the Open Quilt Class at the Anderson County Fair. Thanks to Joyce Buckley for providing a spreadsheet with the details of all of the entries. There were 38 entries in Open Class submitted by 12 people. Of those 12, 8 were guild members, 4 were non-members.

Grand Champion Machine Quilted - Joyce Buckley, Reserve Grand Champion Machine Quilted - Lynn Wawrzewski, Grand Champion Hand Quilted - Judy McGraw, Reserve Grand Champion Hand Quilted - Connie Hatch.

There were only 4 challenge blocks entered in 2022, maybe because the fair theme was a little too challenging. In over 18 category, Grand Champion - Terrie Gifford, Reserve Grand Champion - Judy McGraw, 1st blue - Mary Cubit, 2nd blue - Connie Hatch.

Number of visitors who signed our log was 168. A variety of guild members donated raffle prizes. The winning numbers were selected by Carol Ann Feuerborn. I notified the winners and Liz Drennan, K State Extension Office, agreed to hold the items for winners to pick up.

Our quilt judge was Kim Finney from Ottawa.

Set up of the display went much faster this year because we had experience from last year. We used the 8' panels and were able to hang most of the large quilts. The fair board purchased a roll of heavy gauge clear vinyl and we used that to cover items on the table. Thanks to Connie Hatch for making that suggestion.

The doors were supposed to be open at 8 am, however, there were a few days where no one unlocked the doors until 8:30. The Extension Office is considering making arrangements for us to pick up the key and unlock in the morning.

Pieces and Patches Quilt Guild, County Fair Open Class Quilt Chairman, Terrie Gifford.

Challenge: Bonnie reminded the group that the Challenge project is due in November.

Charity: Sandra took 15 donated quilts to Guest Home Estates and 4 donated quilts to Life Center in Burlington. Members also donated more charity quilts after the meeting. Joyce Buckley shared some quilt labels she had printed up that reflect who made the charity quilts. Members can connect with Joyce if they want to put a Pieces and Patches Quilt Guild label on their charity quilts.

Audit: Joleata Kent and Helen Norman completed the audit and all financial records were in order and complete.

Old Business

President's Block: Jeanette thanked the members for the President's block she had received and she showed all she has gotten so far.

New Business

Installation of Officers: Judy Stuke presented new officers with their challenges for the 2022-2023 year and also gave each officer a specialty chocolate bar for encouragement. She also challenged the members to support their officers and do what is needed for the betterment of the club. The new 2022-2023 officers are:

President: Mary Parrott, year 1 of 1

Vice-President: Connie Hatch, year 2 of 2

Secretary: Bonnie Deiter, year 2 of 2

Treasurer: Helen Norman, year 1 of 2

Historian: Jeanette Gadelman, year 1 of 2

Newsletter Editor: Terrie Gifford, year 2 of 2

Members were treated to a delicious luncheon which included different quiches, salads, brownies and lemon bars. Members donated school supplies which will be given to the Anderson County schools.

Secret Sister Gifts: none Show and Tell

Many beautiful and creative quilting projects were shared. Mary Cubit showed a dinosaur quilt made with green blocks and dinosaur prints for her grandson. Connie Hatch showed a cat quilt she made for her daughter. Connie had pictures printed on fabric and incorporated them into a pink and black quilt design. Donna Sutton showed a pansy quilt done in purples and white. She won the blocks and put them together in a gorgeous quilt. Jerry Lou Robinson showed pillowcases she had made using Charley Harper fabrics; the designs include lady bugs, owls, Monarch butterflies, and a cardinal with other birds in a winter scene. Brenda Futrell showed a baby quilt for her new grandson due in September. Lynn Wawrzewski showed 3 blocks of blue fabrics that are part of her new "Alaska" quilt project. Jeannette Gadelman showed three charity quilts: a 4-patch/block design; a colorful squares on point with light background; and a smaller quilt of colorful squares on point with light background. All three charity quilts have a soft flannel backing.

New President Mary Parrott adjourned the meeting.

Labor Day, September 5, 2022

What is Labor Day, who founded it and when it began?

Observed the first Monday in September, Labor Day is an annual celebration of the social and economic achievements of American workers. The holiday is rooted in the late nineteenth century, when labor activists pushed for a federal holiday to recognize the many contributions workers have made to America's strength, prosperity, and well-being.

Early Adopters

Before it was a federal holiday, Labor Day was recognized by labor activists and individual states. After municipal ordinances were passed in 1885 and 1886, a movement developed to secure state legislation. New York was the first state to introduce a bill, but Oregon was the first to pass a law recognizing Labor Day, on February 21, 1887. During 1887, four more states – Colorado, Massachusetts, New Jersey and New York – passed laws creating a Labor Day holiday. By the end of the decade Connecticut, Nebraska and Pennsylvania had followed suit. By 1894, 23 more states had adopted the holiday, and on June 28, 1894, Congress passed an act making the first Monday in September of each year a legal holiday.

McGuire v. Maguire: Who Founded Labor Day?

Who first proposed the holiday for workers? It's not entirely clear, but two workers can make a solid claim to the Founder of Labor Day title.

Some records show that in 1882, Peter J. McGuire, general secretary of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners and a co-founder of the American Federation of Labor, suggested setting aside a day for a "general holiday for the laboring classes" to honor those "who from rude nature have delved and carved all the grandeur we behold."

But Peter McGuire's place in Labor Day history has not gone unchallenged. Many believe that machinist Matthew Maguire, not Peter McGuire, founded the holiday.

Recent research seems to support the contention that Matthew Maguire, later the secretary of Local 344 of the International Association of Machinists in Paterson, New Jersey, proposed the holiday in 1882 while serving as secretary of the Central Labor Union in New York.

According to the New Jersey Historical Society, after President Cleveland signed the law creating a national Labor Day, the Paterson Morning Call published an opinion piece stating that "the souvenir pen should go to Alderman Matthew Maguire of this city, who is the undisputed author of Labor Day as a holiday." Both Maguire and McGuire attended the country's first Labor Day parade in New York City that year.

The First Labor Day

The first Labor Day holiday was celebrated on Tuesday,

September 5, 1882, in New York City, in accordance with the plans of the Central Labor Union. The Central Labor Union held its second Labor Day holiday just a year later, on September 5, 1883.

By 1894, 23 more states had adopted the holiday, and on June 28, 1894, President Grover Cleveland signed a law making the first Monday in September of each year a national holiday.

A Nationwide Holiday

Many Americans celebrate Labor Day with parades, picnics and parties – festivities very similar to those outlined by the first proposal for a holiday, which suggested that the day should be observed with – a street parade to exhibit "the strength and esprit de corps of the trade and labor organizations" of the community, followed by a festival for the recreation and amusement of the workers and their families. This became the pattern for the celebrations of Labor Day.

Speeches by prominent men and women were introduced later, as more emphasis was placed upon the economic and civic significance of the holiday. Still later, by a resolution of the American Federation of Labor convention of 1909, the Sunday preceding Labor Day was adopted as Labor Sunday and dedicated to the spiritual and educational aspects of the labor movement.

American labor has raised the nation's standard of living and contributed to the greatest production the world has ever known and the labor movement has brought us closer to the realization of our traditional ideals of economic and political democracy. It is appropriate, therefore, that the nation pays tribute on Labor Day to the creator of so much of the nation's strength, freedom, and leadership – the American worker.

We all depend on the strength of the American Worker

America didn't become the most prosperous nation on earth by chance. Working Americans built this nation from the ground up, embracing very "American" qualities like creativity, ingenuity and originality. They in turn depended on the families that supported them. Through challenge, trouble and strife, quite amazingly, the whole thing worked.

Whether teachers, farmers, office workers, equipment operators or production employees, the local businesses below recognize the immeasurable value of our local labor force in building our community and maintaining its greatness.

Enjoy your Labor Day Holiday.
