Allen County still worst for crime in region

Annual KBI report shows crime decreases in state, but Allen still tops in ECK

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

COLA - Allen County continues to hold the regional title for highest overall crime per population, according to statistics released last week by the Kansas Bureau of Investigation.

By the Kansas Bureau of Investigation

Investigations' annual analysis of "index crimes" - violent crimes of murder, rape, robbery and assault along with property crimes (burglary and theft), Allen County swept the categories among nearby counties of Anderson, Franklin, Miami, Coffey and Osage and others further south. The KBI determines crime indexes based on the number of those crimes per 1,000 population. Allen County had 12,407 residents as of the KBI's accounting period for 2022 - compared to 7,717 for Anderson County.

Allen County totaled 23.5 indexed crimes per 1,000 in the KBI report, which is amassed from local police department and sheriff's department reporting from each of Kansas' 105 counties. Coffey was the most crime-free at 7.2/1,000.

In sum for 2022, Anderson County reported 25 violent offenses, 3 rapes, 1 robbery, 21 aggravated assault/battery incidents, 8 burglaries, 17 thefts, 12 motor vehicle thefts and a single arson case. That compared to 2021 stats showing 27 violent offenses including 2 rapes, 2 robberies, 23 aggravated Assault/battery, along with 50 property crimes composed of 11 burglaries, 32 thefts, 7 motor vehicle thefts and 1 arson. By comparison Anderson County's crime declined from an overall index of 9.7 crimes per 1,000 population in 2021 to 8.0 in 2022.

All its contiguous neighbors in the region also had lower indexed crime rates than Allen County. Bourbon County was nearly as high, netting a 21.7 total at 14,331 souls; Woodson was 5.8 with 3,105 people; Neosho County at 7,109 was 13.2.

Franklin County 16.7/25,977, and Miami County was 10.3 at 27,308. Linn County notched 8.0/7,151, although police departments in Mound City, LaCygne and Linn Valley did not report data to the KBI.

Kansas' most crime infested county was Wyandotte at 50.7/165,404.

The KBI cautioned in the report that data in the analysis is contingent on victims reporting crime to local

Davids: No money for military without abortions, sex changes

Congresswoman votes against defense bill that narrowly passes House

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Kansas 3rd District Democrat Congresswoman Sharice Davids voted against funding the U.S. military as well as other payments to the country's allies last week, apparently because the funding bill also prohibited the defense department from paying for military personnel abortions and sex changes.

The $886.3 billion bill is a $28 billion increase over 2023 and passed the House on a near party line vote with four Republicans voting against and four Democrats voting in favor. The National Defense Authorization Act sets policy and funding for the Defense Department and passed 219-210. It now goes to the Senate for debate. Kansas' remaining congress members Jake LaTurner, Ron Estes and Tracey Mann all voted in favor.

In a statement, Davids termed the bill an example of parti-

Three from GOP file to replace Kansas' sole Democrat in Congress

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

OVERLAND PARK - Still more than a year from the 2024 election that will mean control of the narrow majorities in the U.S. Congress, three Republicans have announced they'll try to unseat Democrat Sharice Davids in the 3rd Congressional District, which includes Anderson County.

The coming election contest will pose Davids' popularity in the population-heavy liberal pro-abortion quarters of Johnson and Wyandotte counties with the baggage of her straight-line Biden Administration voting record that serves as a rally cry for Republicans who dominate in the rural areas of her district.

Lenexa oncologist Prasanth Reddy is the latest to file with the Federal Election Commission contenders in the August 2024 primary. Reddy and his family immigrated to the U.S. from Chermnai, India. He completed his undergraduate degree in microbiology and psychology from Kansas State University and his medical degree from the University of Kansas Medical Center. An Air Force Reservist, Reddy said Davids has sold out the values of her district in order to support the most extreme elements of the Democrat party.

Garnett: More spending, less taxes - thanks utility customers

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Garnett utility customers will once again fund the mainstay of the city's annual operating budget for the coming year according to a budget proposal set for a public hearing August 8, while the state's "revenue neutral" mandate and continued unprecedented increases in local property values net an overall tax decrease for local home and business owners.

Surging property values fueled by continued hot home sales have jacked the city's assessed valuation over recent years - 17 percent from 2022-2023 to 28.6 million and another 12 percent for the coming year to a little over $32 million city wide. With the state tax lid in place that forces a special notification process should commissioners raise more overall tax money than last year, the valuation increase will actually net property owner about $1,000 in tax savings - a decrease in the mill level from 41.166 to 36.829.

Affirmative Action ruling won't affect Kansas colleges, regents say

BY PATRICK RICHARDSON THE SENTINEL

TOPEKA - A Supreme Court decision in late June will have little effect on college admissions in Kansas according to the Kansas Board of Regents.

On June 27, 2023, an historic decision by the United States Supreme Court effectively ended decades of race-conscious admissions at colleges and universities across the country.

However, where those standards made the most differences were at highly-selective universities such as Harvard - where one of the cases originated.

The Regents system in Kansas, on the other hand, are "qualified admissions" schools.

"Because Kansas uses qualified admissions, the Supreme Court's ruling will likely have minimal impact on our system," KBOR Chair Jon Rolph said in an emailed statement. "Through qualified admissions, applicants to state universities in Kansas must meet minimum GPA or ACT requirements. If they do, they are guaranteed admission regardless of other factors."

Harvard, as an example, rejects most applicants, and its admissions process was found to unfairly advantage African Americans and Hispanics, while disadvantaging white and Asian students.

A study, included in court documents as part of the case, found that as non-profit education news site "The74million.org reported: "The acceptance gaps between categories are largest around the middle of the spectrum for academic qualifications, with African Americans applying to Harvard being accepted at a rate double that of Hispanics - and 12 times greater than Asian Americans - at the fifth decile (i.e., between the 41st and 50th percentile of qualifications). For out-of-state applicants to UNC, African Americans at the fifth decile were almost 33 times more likely to be accepted than Asian Americans and 14 times more likely than whites."

Rolph said, while Kansas Universities remain committed to diversity, the difference in the admissions process

John the Baptist set the example

WEEKLY DEVOTIONAL

BY DAVID BILDERBACK

In the 3rd chapter of John's gospel the apostle relates the story of John the Baptist concerning Jesus. John the Baptist is the one who Isaiah the prophet identifies in Isaiah 40:3 as follows. "A voice of one calling: 'In the desert prepare the way for the LORD; make straight in the wilderness a highway for our God.'" John could actually be called an Old Testament prophet. John brought the first word the Jews had heard from God in 400 years, referred to as the silent years when God did not speak through prophets or act in any manner.

John seems to walk onto the pages of scripture right out of the Old Testament. His dress, food and mannerisms were befitting of an Old Testament prophet. People who place themselves in the service of God have no guarantee to their length of service or what God might be using them for. John came and went rather quickly but not without accomplishing the task God wanted him to perform. He was to prepare the way for Jesus. John did that introducing the Jews to two New Testament concepts; Repentance "Repent for the kingdom of heaven is near." (Matt. 3:2) And baptism. "People went out to him from Jerusalem and all Judea and the whole region of the Jordan, confessing their sins they were baptized by him in the Jordan River."

Both of these concepts were foreign to the Jews and it took time for John to introduce them. What John did allowed Jesus to immediately start his ministry of the coming kingdom. John exhibits for us the type of people who Jesus chooses to work through. God had prepared John in a unique way and while no one today will be presented the opportunity John had his service provides us a glimpse of what it is like to serve God to our fullest. John was selfless, completely oblivious to his self. In John 3:27-30, John says. "A man can receive only what is given him from heaven ..... That joy is mine and it is now complete. He (Jesus) must become greater; I must become less." John lived in a different time, however, other than Jesus no man delivered a more dramatic message than John. He stared down the Pharisees and the teachers of the law, as well as the entire Roman Empire. He was executed by Herod because Herod was afraid his popularity would cause a revolt.

What did Jesus say of John? "Among those born of a woman there has not risen one greater than John the Baptist." (Mat. 11:11) If you want to serve Jesus you must like John become less and Jesus must become greater or in Jesus' own words, "You must take up your cross and follow me."

BROWNBACK

FEBRUARY 3, 1931 - JULY 11, 2023

Glen Robert "Bob" Brownback, age 92, of Garnett, Kansas, formerly of Parker, Kansas, passed away on Tuesday, July 11, 2023, at the Rock Creek Care Home in Ottawa, Kansas.

Brownback

Bob was born on February 3, 1931, on a farm near Harris, Kansas. He was the third of four children born to Orville Glen and Leora M. (Ellington) Brownback. Bob's family moved to a farm near Centerville in 1932. Bob graduated from Parker High School in 1948. The official records may not have a picture of Bob as "the" Kansas farmer, but that may be appropriate if it did. He may have struggled to remember a birthday, but he could always recount the crop they raised in whatever year was being discussed. According to family records, Bob first drove a tractor at the age of nine. Visitors to the Parker Museum can search for a newspaper article telling of the Brownback boys (Bob and Billy) breaking a tractor in half. On October 1, 1950, Bob was united in marriage to Nancy Cowden at the First Presbyterian Church in Osawatimie, Kansas. Their union was blessed with four children, Mary, Alan, Sam, and Jim. Bob and Nancy made their home on their farm east of Parker in 1953. Bob was a lifelong farmer and he only left the farm under duress when he was no longer able to get on to the tractor or the combine. They moved to Garnett in 2019 and Bob found joy in watching the birds and squirrels in the yard in town. In his free time Bob enjoyed watching any John Wayne movie or every single episode of Gunsmoke. On the farm he loved his John Deere tractors, even though he thought the green paint was too expensive. Bob was generous with his time away from the farm, serving on local boards, including the Parker and Prairie View School Boards, and the American State Bank board, Osawatimie. He loved their opportunities to travel. He especially enjoyed Las Vegas, cruises, and their trips traveling to Russia, Australia, New Zealand, England, Ireland, Iceland, and Egypt. Bob instilled the value of an education in his family and was proud of the generations of his family that pursued higher education. His work ethic will be remembered by all who knew him, it was said that he would have worked in the nursing home, if they would have allowed it. He took pride in his farming operation, tending to his land and equipment constantly. Throughout his life, he faced many challenges with his health, in spite of the challenges he was always a fighter. In the end Bob's dementia was a challenge for the last few years of his life, but his love of his family and wanting to talk farming still remained.

He was preceded in death by his parents; brother, Bill Brownback, and wife, Charlene; grandson, Scott Hazard; son in law, Ray Bakker; great granddaughter, Amelie Brownback; and two brothers in law, Clayton Hodgson, and Bill Cowden

Bob is survived by his wife of 72 years, Nancy Brownback, of the home; his children and their families, Mary Jewett and husband, Mike of Mesa, Arizona, Alan and wife, Nancy of Lyndon, Kansas, Sam and wife, Mary of Topeka, Kansas, and Jim and wife, Vickie of Parker, Kansas; 19 grandchildren; and 40 great grandchildren (with more on the way).

Memorial services were July 15, 2023, at the Parker United Methodist Church, 403 W. Kimball, Parker, Kansas.

Condolences to the family may be left at www.feuerborn-funeral.com.

Welcome to the Twilight Zone

Beginning in 1959, a TV program called “The Twilight Zone” captured the imagination of millions of Americans. The show opened with co-creator Rod Serling saying this:

“You are about to enter another dimension, a dimension not only of sight and sound but of mind... Next stop, the Twilight Zone!”

Then, after a few commercials, bizarre things took place. The program became legendary.

Now it’s back, in spirit at least, because of American politics. We the people are in the T-zone, no question. Bizarre things happen every day. Some backup...

The President of the United States could not remember his week-long trip to Ireland two weeks after he took it. A ten-year-old visiting the White House had to refresh his memory.

The former President of the United States, running to return to office, says President Biden is using cocaine, and that’s why a bag of blow was found in the West Wing. Perhaps that’s also why Joe Biden couldn’t remember his Irish jaunt.

The Vice President of the United States explained the Russian invasion of Ukraine this way: “So, Ukraine is a country in Europe. It exists next to another country called Russia. Russia is a bigger country. Russia decided to invade a smaller country called Ukraine. So, basically, that’s wrong.”

That’s right! Can we color now?

Last week, Republican presidential candidate Chris Christie, after watching FBI chief Christopher Wray dodge a myriad of questions about Bureau corruption, declared that Wray is doing a good job.

Christie also said he could beat up Donald Trump.

Homeland Security Chief Alejandro Mayorkas continues to opine that the border is secure. Reliable, anonymous sources, the kind The New York Times always uses, say that Mrs. Mayorkas recently told her husband to “give it a rest.”

Democratic presidential candidate Robert Kennedy, Jr. said Covid vaccine mandates in the USA were worse than Third Reich policies because “at least you could escape to Switzerland.”

Whereupon Kamala Harris pointed out that Switzerland is a little country in Europe next to a bigger country Germany. I didn’t actually hear Ms. Harris say that, but reliable sources say she might have.

Republican Congresswoman Marjorie Taylor Greene, angry with former Speaker Nancy Pelosi, accused her of running a “Gazpacho Police” at the Capitol building. Chaos ensued as Mrs. Pelosi was immediately reminded she did not have lunch.

Sensing a political advantage, Kamala Harris once again pointed out that Germany is a big country abutting little Switzerland and that the “Gestapo were wrong.”

Now, I have a hundred more of these Twilight Zone occurrences. The late Rod Serling simply could not fathom what’s happening in this country today. It’s insane.

One more. Last week at the NATO conference, President Joe said: “Putin is clearly losing the war in Iraq.”

Whereupon Saddam Hussein’s relatives immediately hired E. Jean Carroll’s attorney. A defamation action will be forthcoming.

Hey Dane, I sure hope your call for the governor’s impeachment won’t create any bad blood between you two.

If you want people to golf, you need to reduce your prices. It’s too much for a golf cart and it’s too much to golf. Please, reduce your prices.

Howdy, I bet every farmer like me that saw the picture of the corn in last week’s paper with a caption that the rain was just in time and that 86% of the Kansas corn was good to excellent, cussed. We are in the midst of a severe drought and no amount of rain is going to make it good to excellent. I’d like to submit a photo of an office cubicle and report that 86% of analyst salaries are more than enough to pay their bills. My suggestion is you people that don’t farm stick to your stick to your ag science, because you don’t know squat about farming. Thank you.

How can you call yourself a care facility if you allow your patients to lay with bed bugs day and night and you, the administration, won’t do anything about it? That’s pretty poor. Something to look forward to in life. Go lay down with the bugs.

Well Phone Forum, sometimes you need to step back and put things in perspective. We live in the richest, most prosperous, freest time in human history, and in the country that made those things more possible for more of the world than any nation in that history. That is a wonderful gift we’ve all been given.

Yeah, in reponse to the picture that said 86 percent of the corn is excellent or good. Must have been an idiot that wrote that.

Raising the price of gasoline will never get me to buy an electric car. I’d rather buy a donkey and name him Brandon.

Thanks Governor: Kansas now 8th worst tax-friendly state

High income and sales taxes in Kansas, the result of Governor Kelly’s vetoes of two tax relief packages this year and the state legislature’s inability to override the rejections, have landed the state in the #8 position on a list of least tax-friendly states for middle-class families according to Yahoo! Finance.

The only states worse than Kansas are each under Democrat control: California, District of Columbia, Hawaii, Minnesota, New Jersey, Vermont, and Connecticut. Yahoo! treats the District of Columbia as a state for this purpose.

Yahoo! summarizes why it chose to focus on middle-class families: “In recent years, the topic of taxation has taken center stage in the realm of economic discourse, particularly as it pertains to the financial well-being of middle-class families. As these families strive to achieve stability and secure their future, the impact of state-level taxation cannot be overlooked.”

The burden of taxes on the middle class has become a subject of growing concern, prompting us to examine the various factors that contribute to a state’s tax friendliness.

Nine states do not impose a state income tax: Alaska, Florida, Nevada, New Hampshire, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Washington, and Wyoming. Recently, Texas went a step further, providing its taxpayers with the largest property tax cut in state history.

Kansas imposes a top marginal rate of 5.7% on personal income, and has a 6.5% sales tax. Researchers explain its position on the list:

In recent years, the state underwent significant tax reforms that led to increased tax burdens. However, these reforms resulted in budgetary challenges and revenue shortfalls. To address these issues, the state implemented higher taxes across different categories, including income taxes and sales taxes, to generate additional revenue.

As is typical, legislators as a whole have done little to curb expenses.

These tax hikes have contributed to Kansas being perceived as having a relatively high tax burden compared to other states.

That perception of Kansas as a high-tax state is laid at the governor’s door, according to Sen. Caryn Tyson, Chair of the Senate Assessment and Taxation Committee:

“Kansas is supposed to be a conservative state. The legislature is trying to help the Kansas taxpayer but the Governor thinks differently.

“The legislature passed policy this year that would have helped all Kansas taxpayers by cutting property, sales, and income taxes. However, the Governor vetoed the legislation. She has supported corporate tax giveaways but she vetoed personal income tax cuts, expanding a property tax freeze for seniors in need and disabled veterans, property tax relief for all homeowners, a formula to exempt social security from state income tax, removing state sales tax on food in 2024 instead of 2025, and other tax reductions.

“It makes no sense to leave over $3 billion of taxpayer money in the coffers, while blocking tax reductions that would help working Kansans and Kansans in need.”

Why Minor League baseball is still the baseball we remember

The Portland Sea Dogs won, but that’s not why, fundamentally, the fans went home happy.

The Double-A minor league affiliate of the Boston Red Sox, the Sea Dogs play in a cozy ballpark in Portland, Maine, and are having a pretty good year -- their 2-1 victory over the Binghamton Rumble Ponies was their fourth in a row and they’re in first place in the Northeast Division of the Eastern League.

I attended the Sunday afternoon ballgame during a summer stay in Maine, and I, too, went home satisfied, even though I have no rooting interest in the Sea Dogs, the Rumble Ponies, or any other Eastern League team, not even the Akron RubberDucks.

No, I was content to bask in the glow of minor league baseball, one of the glories of an American summer. The mascots loom large, the between-innings entertainment is amusingly inventive, the scores don’t matter (much), and everything is geared to creating warm memories around the game that may not be the national pastime anymore, but still occupies an outsized place in the national consciousness.

At its best, minor league baseball combines the feel of a small-town parade and a meeting of the local Rotary Club, with nine innings of baseball interspersed.

The level of competition is, obviously, nothing like the majors; there’s no Shohei Ohtani on the field. On the other side of the coin, there’s usually no insane traffic and hassle, no highway-robbery prices (a hot dog at a Baltimore Orioles game costs $8.25), and no jerks cursing at the top of their lungs.

Portland Sea Dog games for a whopping $11.

The allure of minor league baseball in the ordinary course of things isn’t a high-stakes series against a bitter rival or a particular star. (The title of one book about the minors is “Where Nobody Knows Your Name.”) Rather, it’s the experience; everything is smaller scale and friendlier.

In Portland, the ballpark staff is so cheerful and solicitous you almost wouldn’t be surprised if they invited you to come by their place for a clambake after the game.

On this afternoon, the team was honoring Special Olympians from Maine. A number of the athletes were part of a group that threw out first pitches, and one sang the national anthem, in a particularly heartfelt and moving rendition.

Meanwhile, the team’s mascot, Slugger, who looks like a dog but is supposed to be a harbor seal, performed in skits between innings, including his tradition of losing a race with a kid around the bases. (His entry in the Mascot Hall of Fame puts his lifetime record in these races at 0-1,928.)

It all happens at Hadlock Field, considered one of the best of the minor league parks. It opened in 1994 but feels like more of a throwback. It is nestled among the city’s streets, the way the classic major league ballparks once were. Railroad tracks run behind left field and an old brick exhibition center abuts the right-field line.

With a capacity of about 7,000, there isn’t a bad seat in the place. Balls fouled back behind home plate routinely leave the facility entirely. In a homage to the Green Monster in Fenway Park, left field has a 37-foot-high green fence topped by a Citgo sign and giant Coke bottle.

On Sundays, the Sea Dogs let kids under age 16 run the bases after games. Given the number of families in attendance, it’s tantamount to inviting half the ballpark to file onto the well-manicured field. Hundreds of kids make the circuit around first and to home -- where just minutes before the professionals were playing -- at top speed. Pure Joy.

And, oh, yeah, Portland starting pitcher Isaac Coffey struck out nine, and catcher Nathan Hickey hit a two-run homer in the victory.

It’s always one, two, three strikes, you’re out, at the old ball game, but the minor leagues offer a particularly charming version of the timeless game.

BUDGET...

million in the city's 2024 expenditures will come from other sources – user fees and primarily city utility revenues from its electric, water and gas departments. Garnett City Manager Travis Wilson said the revenue neutral requirement and the resulting need for tighter budgeting has forced the city to be more efficient in the way it prepares the coming year's spending plan.

"Past budgets have been built off of formulas to come to the desired/anticipated budget needed for operation," Wilson said. "The past two years, I've been pulling data from the last 6 months of the prior year, and the first 6 months of the current year to develop our budget. This has not only trimmed it down, it has given a more accurate representation of what was truly needed to operate."

Wilson said the process has also been streamlined by a more efficient approach by commissioners and staff in assessing expenses.

"In years past, we would discuss the budget line by line, with some meetings spending multiple hours on one department arguing over $10. So I would say efficiency has improved."

At $4.3 million, the city's electric fund is the biggest line item on the annual budget. That cost will go up from $4.1 million estimated this year. The city will return its road budget to more normal funding, projecting $450,000 this year, down from the $650,000 estimated for 2023 due to a number of local projects. Commissioners budgeted $458,000 for roads in 2022.

Other investments will be made in the city's elderly housing projects, with Parkside Place I and II as well as Park Plaza North seeing budget increases totaling some $412,000 for the coming year, with about half that going toward investments at PPI.

The city's largest overall consumer of tax funding is the public safety department – police and fire – at some $455,000. That's about 38 percent of the total tax money Garnett projects to raise in 2024.

Wilson said one of the more noticeable cuts in the 2024 budget may be the reduction of a full time position from the Parks & Recreation Department.

"That may cause some issues with scheduling and getting all things mowed during mowing season," Wilson said, "however there will be more money allocated toward part time salaries which will allow us to hire an additional seasonal employee for the mowing season. Not sure how that is going to play out next year."

The public can comment on the budget at the hearing set for 6 p.m. August 8 at Garnett City Hall. A summary of the budget information is published in today's Review on page 10.

Cornstock gets support by KC area businesses

GARNETT - It's not every day that a "small town" event gets noticed, but Cornstock has captured the attention by some owners of multiple businesses who say it's time to not just go to this event but support it through sponsorship.

"We received a sponsorship form from Osage Resort on Indian Point, located in Branson, Missouri. Their new venture includes total renovation of the resort with new furnishings and a desire to reach a large audience looking for a budget-friendly family vacation," Susan Wettstein, Vice President of the Anderson County Corn Festival, Inc. (Cornstock) recalls. "Then the next thing I know, I receive a phone call from another ACCF board member, Wendy Clark-Ritt, who is very excited, telling me the owner of Osage Resort called her saying three more businesses from the Kansas City area wanting to come on board". For the past eight years, a group of family and friends have been attending Cornstock. Last year they felt so strongly about how much they enjoyed the annual getaway to Cornstock that it was time not just attend, but to support it and allow the perks of their sponsorship to be used as employee appreciation to those employees who wanted to also attend.

The Anderson County Corn Festival welcomes Garrison Plumbing, Total Design, and Garrison Excavating as 2023 Cornstock Music Festival Premier Sponsors. Garrison Plumbing is also a Volunteer Services Partner, and Total Design is also a Corporate Shuttle Sponsor, along with Garrison Excavating as a Cook's Corral Partner. Osage Resort on Indian Point-Branson will be a Corporate VIP Tent/Privileges Partner. Garrison Plumbing itself has more than 100 highly skilled employees. These businesses are located in Olathe and provide products and services in the Kansas City area.

Also joining the longtime Cornstock Music Festival Premier Sponsors, East Kansas Agri-Energy and AuBurn Pharmacies, is locally owned retail establishment, Everything Else. Everything Else is located on Oak Street in Garnett and strives to provide merchandise products that may not be available locally. "We are humbled by the support, both by the enthusiasm and the financial means by these Premier sponsors, as well as every sponsor we have", says Brenda McCain, Sponsorship Chair for the Cornstock Music Festival. "Our board works very hard to put Garnett on the map, and to grow this event. Developing partnerships and long-lasting relationships is our number one priority." Visit "Partners" on the festival's website to view the current list of partners and sponsors for 2023.

Cornstock is a one-day music festival held in Lake Garnett Park that celebrates our agricultural, rural heritage. Annually, this event is held on "The Hill" at Lake Garnett in Garnett's North Lake Park on the fourth Saturday of September. The

Kropf recipient of Midwest Dairy scholarship

In the Missouri-Kansas region within Midwest Dairy, a scholarship is provided for students who are actively involved within the dairy industry. This year, Midwest Dairy recognized ten recipients including Becky Kropf of Westphalia, Kan.

Kropf started working at Sunrise Dairy in 2005 as well as her participation in the exhibition of dairy cattle. She joined the Tip-Top 4-H club where Kropf helped in facilitating dairy projects, served as the junior dairy leader at the local and county level and participated in the 2018 World Dairy Expo Judging Contest.

Her time in the FFA was spent similarly; Kropf was a member of the dairy cattle evaluation team and the national milk quality and products team.

Kropf is a junior studying economics at Brown University in Providence, RI.

The experiences she has gained from being involved in dairy has allowed Kropf to understand how milk pricing has affected the dairy industry in terms of profitability and the number of farms in operation. Kropf is deeply passionate about advocating for farmers and sharing their stories with others.

 dream, and I've spent my life trying to give back to the country that gave me everything," Reddy said.

Reddy joins an early Republican field that includes Karen Crnkovich, a Kansas City Kansas civic leader who owns and operates a heating and air conditioning company in Johnson County. Crnkovich has served as President of the Junior League of Kansas City, MO, and has also been active with the Susan G Komen Foundation, Kansas City Zoo/Kids Jazzoo, Daughters of the American Revolution, Kansas Federation of Republican Women, Women in HVACR, St. Paul Catholic Church/School and St. James Academy.

"We need thoughtful leaders in Congress who truly understand the problems plaguing our families, towns, and nation," Crnkovich said. "It is time to restore common sense and fiscal responsibility to our government. Congress needs leaders who will legislate with vision and integrity, not be held hostage by disingenuous politicians."

Former KCK Police Sergeant Jonathon Westbrook rounds out the Republican field todate. Westbrook served the KCKPD force from 2007 to 2020 before his appointment as a White House Fellow in Washington, D.C. Presently the treasurer of the Kansas Black Republican Council, Westbrook serves as an adjunct professor at Donnelly College from which he graduated in 2013. Former Governor Sam Brownback named Westbrook to the Kansas Human Rights Commission and the Kansas African American Affairs Commission, on which he still serves.

Westbrook has not formally announced his candidacy, but has filed registration papers with the Federal Election Commission to seek the office.

"The KBI cautions against using data to make direct comparisons between jurisdictions. Often these comparisons are not valid as the factors influencing crime vary widely between communities," the report noted.

Overall the 2022 Kansas Crime Index Report indicated that violent crime in Kansas decreased by 4.3% from 2021, showing declines in each of the categories of violent crime. A total of 12,849 violent crimes were reported in Kansas in the categories of murder, rape, robbery, and aggravated assault and battery.

Violent crime in Kansas had been steadily rising each year since 2014, but seems to have started to level off as violent crime offenses declined in 2021 and 2022.

Property crimes also declined overall in 2022 according to the data. Statewide reports showed a 10% decline in 2022 from 2021. Property crime offenses are assumed to be underreported to law enforcement.

san politics and a "far-right, anti-abortion agenda" from House Republicans that sought to "hold support for our military hostage."

In addition to de-authorizing military healthcare coverage from paying for sex reassignment surgeries, hormone replacement and abortions, the bill also eliminated the Pentagon's office of "diversity, equity and inclusion" and its staff. A separate amendment that bars a Defense Department agency which operated the DOD's educational training centers from buying books that contain pornography or those that endorse radical gender ideology was also attached to the bill.

A dependable House vote in favor of abortion, laws giving preference to "trans" men who say they are women and virtually every other legislative initiative undertaken by the Biden Administration, Davids has maintained a voting record in sync with liberals in Johnson and Wyandotte counties and in contrast to conservative majorities in her other district counties of Miami, Franklin and Anderson. The only Democrat elected in congress elected from Kansas, she's frequently the sole Kansas delegation vote in favor of Biden priorities.

Although Davids makes few personal appearances in the conservative areas in her district, she and third party funders have recently engaged an email and direct mail campaign to promote her candidacy. Davids defeated Republican challengers in the past three elections and runs for office again in 2024.

RULING...

makes things much different. "State universities are committed to recruiting and serving students from traditionally underserved populations, but the nature of qualified admissions makes their admissions processes substantially different than highly selective institutions that reject a large percentage of applicants," he said.

Carveout leaves wiggle room

In the majority opinion Chief Justice John Roberts said universities must use colorblind criteria — as Kansas' qualified admission system does.

"Many universities have for too long...concluded, wrongly, that the touchstone of an individual's identity is not challenges bested, skills built, or lessons learned but the color of their skin," he wrote. "Our constitutional history does not tolerate that choice."

However, Roberts also carved out a little room to get around that colorblindness.

"Nothing in this opinion should be construed as prohibiting universities from considering an applicant's discussion of how race affected his or her life, be it through discrimination, inspiration, or otherwise." We will certainly comply with the Court's decision."

A statement from Harvard University read, in part, "The Court ... ruled that colleges and universities may consider in admissions decisions 'an applicant's discussion of how race affected his or her life, be it through discrimination, inspiration, or otherwise.' We will certainly comply with the Court's decision."

The statement reiterated the school's commitment to "diversity."

Harvard's statement went on to note — seemingly to try to discredit the most recent ruling — that two previous federal courts had upheld the university's admissions policies. However that is irrelevant, given the Supreme Court disagreed with those lower courts.

"In the weeks and months ahead, drawing on the talent and expertise of our Harvard community, we will determine how to preserve, consistent with the Court's new precedent, our essential values," the statement read.
