Side-by-Side riders want Swank Park to stay public

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

BUSH CITY - Local outdoor vehicle enthusiasts made their case Monday morning to the Anderson County Commissioners for the county to retain ownership of Swank Park, the only public property in the area which allows recreation opportunities for ATVs. Chris Titman and Seth Black met with commissioners to request a reversal of the county's present plan to find a living heir to give the property back to, after it was donated to the county in the mid-1980s and the estate of Margie Swank. Conditions of the donation required the 160 acre property be used as a public recreational park.

Since then, commissioners said they have feared liability issues surrounding its unmonitored, mostly unpatrolled use

Bond reduced for migrant in assault case

Immigration & Customs
"hold" still prevents man's release even if he meets bond

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

SCIPIO - An illegal immigrant charged with an attack on an Ottawa bicyclist two weeks ago is still being held in the Anderson County Jail after his bond was reduced at a hearing Tuesday in district court.

DeLaCruz

Anderson County Sheriff Vern Valentine said a traditional jail bond has little effect in the case of a detained illegal immigrant subject to a "hold" from U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE), since the federal hold order would mandate the individual's detention for 48 hours before any local jurisdiction release.

Local veterans post to celebrate belated birthdays

BY CHELSEY D'ALBINI THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - This weekend, the Garnett VFW Building will host many celebrations. Some might say the party has been coming for years, and others might say it's overdue, but American Legion Post No. 48 Commander Clarence Hermann says, "It might be late, but it's also never too late to celebrate."

Like many others in Kansas, the Fuller-Thompson American Legion Post No. 48 began at the roots of providing a space for veterans of World War I with a place to gather and find the same kind of brotherhood they had experienced during the great war. At the time of its chartering on 1 August 1920, the American Legion Post was named the Harry A. Fuller Memorial American Legion Post. Corporal Fuller was the first reported casualty from the Great War from the Anderson County area and likely had been friends with most of the charter members of the post. Fuller's mother, Charlotte, and his sister, Flora, also attended that charter night. That night began a century-long mission to serve other veterans and the community of Garnett. The name of the post would remain the same until another young man was killed in the Second Great War aboard the U.S.S. Houston, Seaman 2nd Class Eldro Thompson. After that loss, the membership renamed the American

Having a "Centennial" Club is a big deal in the civic organizational community because it comes at a high-cost today. Enrollment in civic organizations has been declining for many years. When the country mobilized for war in both 1917 and 1941, scores of men enlisted for service. Veterans organizations reaped the benefit of having so many eligible members available to belong to their groups to serve each other and their communities. However, with fewer and fewer people choosing to enlist in peacetime, the possibility and eligibility have produced fewer and fewer members. These veteran organizations have faced a decline in membership, heroically and silently, while trying to maintain the programs that had been a part of the community for many years. Due to a decrease in active members, they were forced to cancel the Veterans Day Ceremony last November for the first time in at least two decades.

In communities similar to Garnett, those clubs did not make the centennial mark but were faced with combining with other clubs nearby or simply folding. In the last two decades, the Garnett Memorial Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 6397 underwent the process of absorbing members from the VFW Posts in Kincaid and Greeley when they were forced into the exact situation. Using the time to welcome the many lifelong members into the Garnett post, it was aptly renamed for a local man who was killed in Afghanistan, Sgt Jeffery S Mersman.

County appraiser: After this courtesy letter, it's all up to you

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Anderson County Appraiser Adam Michel will be sending a letter to county taxpayers letting them know a new state law does away with the requirement for personal property notices to be mailed to taxpayers annually - and that changes to those property holdings are now up to the property owner to report to the county appraiser's office.

The new law was part of the 2024 Kansas Legislature's tax relief revisions which reduced penalties for failure to file statements of personal property or for oil and gas leases in the state.

Individual personal property includes items like aircraft, ATVs, boats, farm machinery and equipment, golf carts, manufactured housing, non-highway vehicles, trailers and others which are not licensed but

Wilson wants to cut his salary, re-mix budget to hire assistant prosecutor

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Anderson County's presumptive county attorney elect received tentative approval from county commissioners Monday for a plan that would staff an assistant attorney in his office to handle busier prosecution loads.

Steve Wilson, who won the Republican primary for the post in August defeating incumbent Elizabeth Oliver and who faces no opposition in the general election, proposed that commissioners reduce his salary by approximately $20,000 and combine those funds with an estimated $20,000 previously spent by the office for special prosecutors to fund the hourly position for another attorney with prosecutorial experience with whom Wilson said he had discussed the proposal. Wilson, a retired civil law attorney, told commissioners he would need prosecutorial assistance

Anderson County EMS Director and paramedic Troy Armstrong (on left) and EMT Wyatt Westhoff recently returning from their deployment to Greenville, South Carolina to provide essential emergency medical services in regions impacted by hurricanes Helene and Milton.

Anderson County EMS crews return home after hurricane deployment

GARNETT – After a vital 20-day deployment in regions impacted by hurricanes Helene and Milton, Anderson County Hospital welcomed home its EMS crews this week. Anderson County EMS played a crucial role under American Medical Response's (AMR) Office of Emergency Management FEMA contract, providing essential emergency medical services in response to the disaster.

On September 26, Anderson County EMS Director and Paramedic Troy Armstrong and EMT Wyatt Westhoff deployed to Greenville, South Carolina, along with a department Advanced Life Support (ALS) ambulance.

"When we arrived in Greenville, there were about 50 ambulances," said Armstrong. "By that afternoon, there were 300 ambulances staged, and 100 more arrived overnight. Our drive was long. However, it was tremendous to see crews from places even further away like Colorado, Wyoming, and Arizona. It was a true reflection of teamwork and dedication."

Their strike team assignment took the crew from South Carolina to North Carolina before the impending arrival of a second hurricane diverted efforts to Florida to support Hurricane Milton's relief operations.

The Anderson County EMS crew assisted with the evacuating of multiple healthcare facilities, providing emergency services at a refugee shelter, and supplementing local 911 emergency response efforts in North Carolina and Florida.

"I'm proud that our Anderson County EMS department not only has the skills and equipment but also the support that allowed us to serve this critical need miles away while continuing to provide EMS response to our home community without disruption," said Armstrong.

"We received so much encouragement and support from our EMS team back home, the hospital, local partnering agencies, our friends and family, and even some special notes from area students. That's what kept us going."

Armstrong and Westhoff were relieved from their extended deployment by Paramedic Ashli Gavel and EMT Maralee Clark, who both work on-call for Anderson County EMS. Gavel and Clark completed the assignment and returned with the department ambulance earlier this week.

These EMS professionals all played a vital role in the disaster response, providing life-saving care in devastated areas, and we are glad to have them all back home safely.

NOVEMBER 17, 1957 — OCTOBER 17, 2024

Margie Tastove, age 66, of Westphalia, Kansas, peacefully passed away on Thursday, October 17, 2024, at the St. Luke's Hospice House in Kansas City, Missouri.

Tastove

Marjorie Elaine Mader was born on November 17, 1957, in Garnett, Kansas, the fifth of fifteen children of Joseph Anthony and Juliana Elaine (Lickteig) Mader. She first attended grade school at East Scipio School until it closed. Margie then attended Irving Junior High, and graduated Garnett High School with the class of 1975.

Growing up in a large family on the family farm, Margie's special love and bond for children was unmistakable. She remained a child at heart throughout her life. In her younger years, she loved dances, get-togethers and later attending class reunions.

On May 1, 1982, Margie was united in marriage to Robert Allen Tastove, in the St. Boniface Catholic Church, Scipio, Kansas. Their union was blessed with five children, Ryan, Holly, Crystal, Elaine, and Eric.

Margie worked as a teller at the Westphalia Bank for many years. She loved getting to see her friends and family in the community while she was doing her job. Since she loved children, Margie was a great bus driver. She transported countless children to school trips and activities for 21 years. Margie treasured the many family trips that they were able to enjoy together. She loved planning for them and she knew they were making lasting memories. Some of her most memorable trips were to Rome with Robert for their anniversary and her last family trip to Branson. Her family was her pride and joy and they were everything to her. She was always there and was just a phone call away with a lending hand to help with anything. Margie's Catholic faith was a pillar in her life. She was a dedicated and active member of St. Teresa Catholic Church, Westphalia, where she participated in religious education, served as a sacristan, and was a dedicated member of the Altar Society. Her generous nature extended to volunteering at the Veterans memorial and the Westphalia Christmas Parade. She was always eager to contribute to her community. After being transplanted to Westphalia her roots grew deep in the community and she loved her life there.

Margie instilled the values and importance of faith in her children and grandchildren. Because she was a kid at heart she always loved Christmas. Going shopping for that special gift and then the joy of giving was her passion. She would often hear Robert ask "Is it necessary?", and to her it absolutely was. She always made a point to spend one-on-one time with each grandchild to make their birthday a special day. As she faced her health challenges, she hated missing any events or family functions. Margie was the matriarch and decision maker of her family. She will be truly missed by all who knew and loved her.

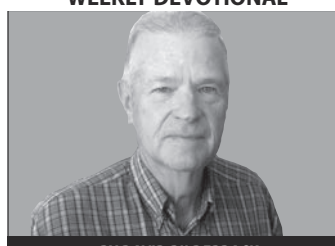

She was preceded in death by her father, Joe Mader; two brothers, Ed and Greg Mader; five brothers-in-law, Dale Milner, Dave Hermreck, Rod Lutz, Steve Hess, and Ronnie Tastove; sister-in-law, Glenda Tastove.

The benefits of being a good listener

WEEKLY DEVOTIONAL

BY DAVID BILDERBACK

One thing all of us could do better is to become good listeners. Most of the time people have more to offer than they initially present. Most of us are in such a hurry to unload the important knowledge we have we can't wait to jump in. Many people only use the noise of conversation to drown out some worry or concern they have. Left by themselves people often rely on television or some other media to keep them company. We are so intent on this distraction we can miss the voice of God speaking to us.

God's voice is not dead. His Spirit still invites us into an ongoing conversational relationship. In Psalm 46:10 the Psalmist speaking the word of God, says, "Be still, and know that I am God." If we never hear the voice of God that means we are hearing another voice, the voice of the world. The world takes the emphasis away from God and places it on self, that is each of us. This is not all bad, we are important to our families, our jobs and others as well. What is sad is we fail to recognize how important we are to God and to his kingdom. We set our goals and plan our lives most often leaving God only our spare moments. In Jeremiah 29:11 the prophet speaking God's word to the exiles in Babylon says. "For I know the plans I have for you" declares the LORD, plans to prosper you and not to harm you, plans to give you hope and a future."

Since God is unchangeable and incapable of sinning or lying, in this instance, this is a guarantee for our future. Being a good listener has its benefits. If you are willing to listen people will tell you their story. Jesus was a good listener in many of his encounters with people. It was this trait that allowed him to gain the confidence and trust of people. It is within these opportunities where we can become more than a sounding board for others, turning them away from self to Jesus who has a plan for their life as well as ours.

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

BETH BRELJE - THE FEDERALIST

Yuck. Run, Kamala! You don't want that job. It is hard to believe that Jackson, herself a woman, felt comfortable pressing on these questions. Has she not been in the work world long enough to understand the male-female dynamic is usually comfortable, rewarding, and an opportunity to bring many perspectives to the table?

Has she not cracked open a history book and read about the many female leaders? Queen Elizabeth; Margaret Thatcher; Jeannette Rankin, the first woman elected to Congress in 1916; Nellie Tayloe Ross, the first elected female governor in 1925; Hattie Caraway, the first woman elected to the Senate in 1932. The list is so much longer.

Jackson is not interviewing here; she is building a narrative.

Harris never has to cry sexism, the media does it for her. Story after story for months, sexism has been pushed as the reason Harris may not win.

Please, stop degrading women and our boundless potential with this tired pity party. In the United States, opportunity is there for all. But you have to work for it.

Maybe Harris doesn't know how. We are dealing with a woman who has been given so much. A privileged, upper-middle-class upbringing, two educated parents, a college education. It is more than many have had, even if she tries to play it as a near-hard luck story. Harris was gifted the vice presidency because President Biden was looking for a woman of color to fill the role. That's pretty sexist.

The candidacy for the presidency was also handed to her with little effort. The trick now is to offer something the American people want.

But if it doesn't work out, don't blame sexism.

To the caller that thanked Joe Biden for keeping us steady and on the road to recovery. Wow, I almost have no words. You're just so very wrong on everything you said. Kudos to being a die hard Democrat but shame on you for being a crappy American. Vote for change my fellow Americans.

Kamala Harris has accused my industry, the beef industry, of price gouging. I know that beef is very expensive but it would be wonderful if she would put forth a little effort to determine why it's so expensive rather than pronouncing it is price gouging. For those of you who are unaware we and many of others cut our herds and didn't replace them because feed and other supplies were limited. Inflation drought and interest rates being high are all factors.

The Biden/Harris war on fossil fuels, massive wasteful government spending and regulations caused soaring inflation and devalued the dollar by 30%, effectively stealing from your wages and savings, especially seniors on fixed incomes. Democrats bragging about recent slowing of the inflation rate and further evaluation does not reverse the damage they did. It is like someone bashing you in the head and expecting praise when they pause. Democratic gas lighting depends on the stupidity and ignorance of Democrat voters.

Democrat fascists pose a mortal threat to our democracy. They trash all common sense, voter integrity safeguards such as in person voting and IDs. Try getting license plates for a new car without showing up in person at the DMV with ID and proof of residency. They promise to pack the Supreme Court and add phony Democrat States like Washington, D.C. and Puerto Rico. They flood the country with tens of millions of illegals and use government agencies to censor and target political opponents. If the Democrat fascists win they promised to establish a one-party dictatorship.

To the caller in their rose colored glasses. Nearly a quarter of car owners owe more on their car now than it's worth. Yes, thank you very much Joe Biden you've done great things.

It's interesting how Sharice Davids could make it to the Franklin County Democrats lunch but she couldn't make it to our forum.

Twenty dollars for one steak is ridiculous. I put it back. If you're not smart enough to know Sharice Davids helped Joe and Kamala do this to us, you're too dumb to vote in the first place.

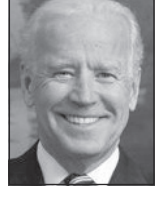

All across the country small rural towns the size of Garnett are suddenly swamped by thousands of Haitians with no job skills, dumped by taxpayer-funded Democrat NGOs as hundreds of thousands are flown in with no screening possible by Biden/Harris, directly from Haiti,

Feckless Kansas BOE dawdles while schools are failing

KANSAS COMMENTARY

DAVID DORSEY, KANSAS POLICY INSTITUTE

ment, these scores are cause for celebration.

Watson's reaction to these limp scores was essentially the same as the members of the board: "Ho hum...Next." He spent barely five minutes on the continuing crisis that approximately one-third of Kansas students are below grade level in reading and math. He paid lip service by stating: "A third of the kids in Level 1 is way too much. Our hair out to be on fire."

Hmmm...I'm trying to picture a celebration that includes self-immolation.

I guess that's what you do when you want things both ways, as Watson so cleverly presented the results. He continued by stating "while the numbers are getting better, that number [% scoring in Level 1] needs to drop into the teens... for me to be doing cartwheels."

Well, commissioner, it looks like you've got plenty of time to hone your gymnastics skills if this "trend" continues. If the rate of improvement from 2022 continues, it's gonna be awhile until you don your sweats and find a grassy patch. Using your definition of trend, ten years from now that number will be 27% of students scoring in Level 1, not quite halfway to a cartwheel. That's more like a few jumping jacks territory.

Of course, if you changed the starting date of your analysis from 2022 to 2015 – the initial year of the current state assessment, you could leave your workout gear in the drawer because the comprehensive "trend" is toward higher percentages in Level 1, not lower.

Commissioner Watson's solution? Train teachers.

"Tell me why a teacher should have to take the training [science of reading] in literacy? Because a third of our students can't read well enough to go execute every post-secondary option they want," he says. The training Watson refers to is included in some literacy goals the board has set.

What about math? Indeed, Commissioner Watson and the board appear to have such little interest in math to the point that they don't even discuss it. What is the board's solution to the dismal math scores? As Watson put it: "Again, we're working on that. You've [the board] put money into that." I have no idea what that is supposed to mean. I guess it's his version of 'let's is the equivalent of saying you might want a white, gray or black car (currently accounting for about two-thirds of cars), but in a few years, more than half of all cars are going to be green or red (together less than 10% of the market).

Yes, Kamala Harris wants you out of your gas-powered car

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

Or, saying that you might want to buy a Toyota, Ford, Chevrolet or Honda (the four most popular brands by sales), but sometime soon the market is going to be flooded with Mazdas, Volkswagens and Audis (which don't crack the top 10).

Electric vehicles are a little under 10% of sales now, so going to more than half over the next seven years is almost surely unachievable. Soviet five-year plans were less sure.

Among other deficiencies, the charging network for all these new electric cars doesn't exist and isn't in the offering anytime soon.

This is another issue where the Kamala Harris of a few years ago is completely at odds with the moderate Kamala Harris newly minted for the 2024 campaign. As a headline in the Sacramento Bee put it in 2019, "Ending sales of new gas-powered cars is part of Kamala Harris' climate change plan."

A bill sponsored by Oregon Sen. Jeff Merkley and co-sponsored by Harris when she was a senator would have mandated that so-called zero-emissions vehicles constitute 100% of new passenger vehicles by 2040. In her short-lived 2020 presidential campaign, Harris went further and issued a climate plan proposing "an accelerated model" to phase out gas-powered cars by 2035.

When you are talking about a ridiculously arbitrary objective, what's five years, give or take?

In light of her past proposals, Harris should have said in Michigan, "I will never again tell you what kind of car you have to drive."

As with so many of Harris' reversals, a once seemingly deep-held policy conviction has been cast aside without explanation.

There are good reasons that people prefer gas-powered cars, from convenience to reliability to cost. It may be that, over time, they come to embrace electric cars at the level the Biden-Harris administration deems appropriate, but that should be for the market to decide free of government impositions.

Instead, the EPA is hoping to get people out of what the Biden-Harris administration considers their retrograde gas-powered cars. Kamala Harris has a funny way of honoring automotive choice.

Rich Lowry is editor of the National Review.

Kamala Harris is an automotive libertarian, or so she maintains.

"Contrary to what my opponent is suggesting, I will never tell you what kind of car you have to drive," the vice president said at a campaign stop in Michigan the other day.

She will, however, favor regulations to drastically change the mix of gas-powered and electric cars that are manufactured in the United States, regardless of what consumers want.

The Biden-Harris administration has been working to regulate the American car market more to its liking. In 2023, the Environmental Protection Agency proposed rules to make electric vehicles as much as 67% of new light vehicles sold by 2032. The agency then backed off a little, to electric vehicles constituting 56% of such cars in 2032 (another 13% would be hybrids, leaving purely gas-powered cars at less than 30%).

Why we allow a government agency, on its own say-so, to mandate the share of electric vehicles down to the percentage point years from now is a story for another day.

The mechanism that the EPA is using to impose its will is emission limits on carmakers; the limits can be calibrated to ensure that companies squeeze out gas cars to reach the goals.

To be clear, none of this is voluntary. Carmakers that don't comply will face penalties. The preferences of the companies or the consumers aren't driving the change -- government edict is.

Whatever Harris is saying to Michiganders, the Biden-Harris administration is indeed telling you that your choice in cars is going to be artificially constrained. The Harris policy

Mystery Trip continues, days 3 & 4

Day 3 of our Mystery Tour continues. It was lunch time and we stopped at the "The Cellar District Restaurant" to eat. The concrete and limestone walls of this building began to take shape in 1913, but wouldn't be completed until 1930 for the original home of the Immanuel Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church. This large church has a steeply pitched gable roof with parapets. They are filled with beautiful stained glass windows on the side walls. In 2002 the congregation voted in favor of building a new church at a different site. Several different tenants made this vast building their home until July of 2021 when it became known as the beautiful restaurant known today as the "Cellar District".

After lunch we visited the Kristmas Kringle Shoppe where they celebrate Christmas 365 days a year. Where one can enjoy the sights, sounds and scents of the holidays all year long. While here, I couldn't help but notice the life sized Nativity Scene on sale for a mere $21,000. When we got back to our bus, everyone found a small Christmas package on our seats. They were small cut out wooden winter scenes. (Beautiful). After looking and shopping for an hour, we were on our way to our next stop. At 2:50 p.m. we arrived at the Ziegler Winery. The present owners had for years dreamed of one day owning a vineyard. Today they have that beautiful vineyard located along the east shore of Lake Winnebago. They are located in a region where the area's temperate climate rivals that of some of the best wine-growing regions on earth. Their vineyard has over 7,000 vines growing on 12 acres. While here everyone was invited to participate in a wine and cheese tasting party. Both red and white, wet and dry wines were sampled.

Our last stop of the day was at LaClare Farms. It is a true farmstead operation established in 1978 by Larry and Clara Hedrich. They originally bought this property as a hobby farm in the Heart of America's Dairyland. Along with their homestead, they inherited two goats, a dozen chickens and a pair of peacocks. Little did they realize that the goats would soon be the focal point of the lives of their growing family. Today they have 7,400 goats producing some 1,400 gallons of milk per day. (automatic milking machines). Their company makes a variety of goat milk cheeses raw and pasteurized cheddar, jack, fresh chèvre and various Evalon cheeses in both wheels and blocks. Also where can you go and pick out you a baby goat to snuggle. Believe you me they love it.

Tonight we enjoyed a 4-course meal here as well. Their goat milk ice cream is delicious.

After a very long and wonderful day we returned to our motel in Fond De Lac, Wisconsin.

Day 4 of our Mystery trip. Up at 6:00 a.m. for breakfast and on the road for the day at 8:10 a.m.

Our very first sight of the day was seeing hundreds upon hundreds of sand hill cranes out in the fields on both sides of our bus. We were told that they were starting to gather in flocks getting ready for their flight south.

This morning I learned why their corn is planted so thick and still was so green. I forgot we were in the dairy country and they plant their corn for silage.

It wasn't long until we arrived at the great Horicon Marsh area. This marsh area is 13 miles long and 3-4 miles wide, covering 38,000 acres. Millions of cattails. Soon we boarded a pontoon craft for a serene journey through the largest freshwater cattail marsh in the United States. It is one of Wisconsin's premier bird-watching sanctuaries. This journey on Rock Creek also took us by parts of the city of Horicon, including the world famous John Deere Horicon Works Plant. This is where John Deere lawn mowers and "Gators" are manufactured.

After our cruise we visited the Horicon Marsh Visitor & Educational Center. The history of the Horicon Marsh is amazing and to see it today is incredible. While here we ate box lunches and enjoyed a film all about the marsh. After lunch we traveled to the far north end of the marsh. The Northern Marsh is a National Preserve and the Southern end is Wisconsin State managed. While at the north end we visited the Marsh Haven Nature Center. It was here we seen a live 3-bird demonstration of Birds of Prey, the Falcon, Owl & Hawk. After this great adventure our next stop was at the Kelly Country Creamery. The Creamery's old fashioned sun porch was a perfect spot to experience Wisconsin's countryside while viewing their working farm. The Kelley Country Creamery offers a large selection of premium farmstead ice cream with 22 flavors available daily. While there we were treated to a double dip cone or cup of our choice. Oh my! After a short rest back at the hotel, the day wasn't over, we headed to the Red Cabin at Green Acres on Lake Winnebago for a family style dinner. A long day, but a wonderful day.

Change in seasons may affect gardener's mental health

By Pat Melgares, K-State Research and Extension news service

MANHATTAN - For most people, putting summer's hot temperatures in the rearview mirror is a welcome transition.

But as temperatures cool, it also signals the end of the traditional outdoor gardening season. It can lead to a condition known as seasonal affective disorder, or SAD, a type of depression in which the symptoms correspond with the seasons.

"Fall and winter can bring feelings of lethargy and moodiness to affected individuals," Kansas State University horticulture expert Cynthia Domenghini said. "The reduction in hours of sunlight is suspected to be one factor influencing SAD. Other influences may be less time spent outdoors due to colder temperatures, resulting in more isolation and less socialization."

Domenghini suggests season extension tools to continue growing crops outdoors.

Season extension tools provide insulation, making it possible for plants to live beyond the typical growing season for the climate.

Some options include:

1. Low tunnels. This is a row of plastic or wire hoops to support fabric that blankets the crops. The fabric is commonly made of spun-bonded polyester or polypropylene. Thicker fabrics are used to provide protection at lower temperatures.

2. Cold frame. This resembles a small greenhouse and is often made of wood with framed windows. The small size makes the cold frame portable, so it can be placed of winter plantings, as needed. The top of the cold frame is often built at an angle to allow more light to enter when it's positioned toward the sun.

3. Milk jugs. Cut the bottom out of the jug and place the jug over plants. Secure the jug to the ground. There are any number of decorative options, if the gardener doesn't like the sight of milk jugs across the garden.

"Cool season crops - including, but not limited to, radishes, lettuce and spinach - are great options for growing beneath a season extender," Domenghini said.

For mental health, Domenghini also suggests maintaining a healthy diet and exercising (gardening counts!). However, she also recommends seeking professional help for diagnosis and treatment if you believe you are suffering from SAD.

Domenghini and her colleagues in K-State's Department of Horticulture and Natural Resources produce a weekly Horticulture Newsletter with tips for maintaining home landscapes and gardens.

Interested persons can subscribe to the newsletter, as well as send their garden and yard-related questions to hort-support@ksu.edu, or contact your local K-State Research and Extension office.

by side-by-side riders and other users, and recently engaged plan to search out heirs with hopes of conveying the property back to them. If unable to find heirs, commissioners plan to eventually foreclose on the property for back taxes and sell it at a county tax sale.

Titman told commissioners the property was widely used and was the only public park in the area for outdoor motorized vehicles. He noted the popularity of those vehicles in the area and their widespread growth for outdoor recreation.

"I want to do whatever we've got to do to keep it there," Titman told commissioners. "Why are we gonna take it away because of this?"

Commissioners said they were open to some avenue of retaining the park if Anderson County could be legally be absolved of liability. The county is protected by a state prohibition against tort claims for recreational facilities, but commissioners have said they still fear a civil lawsuit from an accident or other issue there.

"This is a time that people are sue-happy," said 2nd District Commissioner Anthony Mersman. "If something happens, they're gonna come after the big dog, and that's us."

Titman said he would research how other public parks handle liability issues and planned to meet with commissioners again with possible alternatives.

USD 365 will also have Trunk or Treat at the Bulldog home football game Thursday night Oct. 31 at the first round of post-season district play.

The Anderson County Review will be taking little spook photos Halloween night from 5 p.m.-9 p.m. to be published in our November 7 Spook Spectacular. Participation is free.

While Halloween has taken on a commercialized costume and horror motif in recent decades in Western countries, the event marks the eve of the Western Christian feast of All Hallows Day at the beginning of Allhallowtide, the period in the liturgical year designated to remember dead saints and martyrs and other faithful departed.

Also being celebrated this weekend is the fact that Sgt Mersman's 40th Birthday fell this past May. "It felt like a good time just to throw a belated birthday party for Jeff. We should celebrate his birthday to keep his memory alive," Commander Hermann said. Sgt Mersman's contribution to the country has extended past his lifetime as new members of the VFW post find his picture on the wall at entry into the building and can see a face that was young and of their generation. The Veterans of Foreign Wars also has a storied and heroic past; initially formed for the veterans of the Spanish-American War, it existed long before the American Legion and this year celebrates its 125th Birthday.

The Belated Birthday Party will be held at the Veterans of Foreign Wars building on Saturday, October 26, with a dinner starting at 7:00 PM. Dinner for $15 a plate will be served, and cake and punch will be served afterward. The Fuller-Thompson American Legion Post No. 48 and Sgt Jeffery S Mersman Veterans of Foreign Wars Post No. 6397 would love to see as many faces from the community as they can because, with community support and continued attendance to events, we can ensure that young veterans can find their place in those walls for another hundred years.

"I have been up front from the beginning with everyone through my campaign and everyone who I asked to vote for me that I have no experience as a prosecutor," Wilson told commissioners. "I was a civil trial attorney "I think it's important that folks here have excellent representation."

Wilson said he hoped to negotiate an arrangement where his assistant would be non-salaried and instead bill hourly work to the county up to a figure of $40,000 a year. He said if the workload demanded more, he would be willing to further reduce his own salary to cover the cost.

Oliver's annual salary is $63,600 after she was finally awarded a cost of living adjustment previously suspended by county commissioners last year. The county's 2025 budget was approved in August.

move on, there's nothing to see here.'

Here's how Watson and the board look at state assessment results: (1) test scores are getting better to the point of celebration, even though they are not (2) too many kids are still in Level 1, (3) the board is doing everything it can to set policy to improve the scores (4) it's the individual school's and teachers' fault scores are not better.

At the end of his presentation Watson said to the board "I'd be happy to answer a few questions before lunch." Nada. Nothing. Crickets. Not a single inquiry. That's how concerned the board is regarding state assessment scores.

And we wonder why student achievement is so unacceptably low.

Of course, what little interest there was in the state assessment scores was showered in COVID excuses, the new go-to excuse that has replaced the not-enough-money whine the education establishment has used for decades.

But COVID can't be blamed on this: 2024 marks the first year in which students testing in the initial grade – 3rd – were not old enough to be in school when schools were shut down by Governor Kelly. You might think that means the third graders in the 2024 cohort would score much better than the third graders a year ago, those who missed kindergarten because of the governor. You'd be wrong. And it goes without saying that test scores overall were falling prior to forced school closures.

This is getting old. Each year Commissioner Watson gets in front of the board and touts a teardrop of success in the ocean of failure. Students continue to drown academically in a sea of mediocrity. Yawn. And nothing changes.

Let's face it. These scores aren't going to get better. Not next year, nor the year after, nor...History tells us that. The song remains the same.

Commissioner Watson likes to pepper his presentations with sports analogies. Here's one: if Watson were a football coach, basketball coach, or baseball manager he would have been fired years ago. But he persists, fat and happy like the rest of the education establishment, while tens of thousands of Kansas students are underserved by a calcified system.

And nothing changes.

Hyatt Club met Oct. 14

Kathy Waring and her sister Teresa Taylor hosted Hyatt Club Monday Oct. 14th 2024. It was held at the Waring's home. They had it decorated so it was festive for fall. The members brought their favorite appetizer and they were all delicious.

The mystery gift was won by Becky King. I guessed a small bale of straw with a scarecrow. It is so cute, glad I won. Sherry Benjamin won the hostess gift, oven mitt, scarecrow and recipe board with Lois Miller's recipe for friendship. 3 phone calls a week, 2 cups of kindness, 1 letter a month, 4 Saturdays of shopping. Mix ingredients carefully, take turns stirring. Heap with hugs and lace with laughter. Sweeten to taste and sprinkle with smiles. Bake until memories turn golden. Serves 2.

Angela's secret pal gave her a hanging towel. Diane Hastert received her birthday gift, part one homemade dill pickles, sweet relish and part 2 she received in the mail a gift card. Diane gave the treasurer's report and read the minutes of the last meeting.

Our next meeting is scheduled for Nov.14, 2024 hosting Marilyn Benjamin and Linda Miller. Noon at the First Christian Church. Tidbit from Oct. 1995. Marge Worthington had a Hyatt Club at her home. Marge, Shirley, Donna and Rose received their birthday gifts from secret pals. Roberta Tush guessed the mystery gift of a bag of candy corn. Rose will have the November 1995 meeting. Our thoughts and prayers go out to the Gettler family in the passing of Jerry Jr. Gettler. He will be missed. Prayers for members and families of our Hyatt club family that are dealing with health issues. As always we cherish our time, laughter and friendship.

Viking boys XC still perfect on the season

RICHMOND – The most dominant stretch in Central Heights' history is at an all-time high as this year the Viking boys' cross country team has remained undefeated by finishing with another perfect score at the Three Rivers League meet.

The varsity boys swept the top seven places in their inaugural season of the TRL.

Connor Burkdoll, Cody Hammond and Owen Miller ran a near three way tie for first place.

Burkdoll finished with a time of 17:31.56, Hammond finished in 17:31.58 and Miller's time was 17:31.73. Only 17 hundredths of a second separated the trio.

The rest of the varsity runners finished not far behind.

Stetson Miller (4th, 17:52), Christian McCord (5th, 18:04), Jotham Meyer (6th, 18:07.23) and Josiah Meyer (7th, 18:07.40) rounded out the Vikings perfect day.

"If there was any way to outshine that, however, the JV boys did it," Viking head coach Troy Prosser stated.

The JV squad had 12 members and they finished 1-12.

"In 19 years of coaching and 35 years of participating in running sports, I have never witnessed or even heard of this being done anywhere else. They completed the season with a perfect score in every single meet. It's a record, I would guess, will never be duplicated again at CH and to even think about it and look back just a few years ago, when we barely had enough runners then to even have a JV squad," Prosser stated. "They are a stellar group to work with."

The girls team, had there been a 5-runner scoring system that the team is accustomed to, would have easily won the championship but the 4-runner limit used in the 1A competitions pushed the Vikings to 2nd by only five points to last year's 1A State Runner-up team.

"Lily Burkdoll, Ebony Hughes and Melaney Chrisjohn all ran very smart races and made sure they fine tuned a few things and prevented any mishaps before we host Regionals on our home course next Saturday," Prosser stated.

The trio finished 3rd-5th respectively. Caitlynn Detwiler finished team points with Maya Acebrun, Arabella Dunbar and Faith Coons just a few places back.

Prosser added, "The middle school race was bitter sweet. It's always tough to know that their season in Vikings uniforms is over but the results were great for a few like Emery (Hughes), Kamden (Moon) and Rodney (Macy) with medals and a personal record while it was kind of emotional for the rest since illness took a major toll on most of our girls."

"At any rate, I'm incredibly proud of them all for fighting through the conditions they were in and for all of the joy and personality they brought to the program this year. They are such a fun group, it's going to be different without seeing them every day," Prosser concluded.

MADISON – The Crest Lancers held serve and advanced to substate after entering regionals with the #4 seed and winning 2 of their 3 matches to qualify.

Anderson County played tough against Humboldt but fell just short of the much needed upset, losing in 2 sets, 26-24 and 25-21.

Galena downed the Bulldogs 25-14 and 25-18 in their second match of the day.

In their third and final match of the season, the Bulldogs ended the season on a winning note by knocking off Cherryvale 25-21 and 25-10.

Marmaton Valley scored their 60 points on just 25 offensive plays, which accounted for 350 yards of offense on the night.

The Bulldogs cut the deficit to 20-6 just before halftime on a 24 yard pass from Landon Schillig to Christian Barnett.

The Bulldogs would again capitalize through the air, this time on a Schillig to Christian Barnett pass for a touchdown from 12 yards out to make the score 33-14 after a successful 2-point conversion.
