Local assault allegation might play into Trump deportation plan

President-elect pledges to use military for deportation round-up, start with criminals

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - An illegal immigrant charged in the assault of an Ottawa woman last month on the Prairie Spirit trail is due in Anderson County District Court next week, as president-elect Donald Trump's pledge to use the U.S. Military to begin mass deportations of illegals beginning with criminals takes center stage in the national conversation.

Porfirio De La Cruz-Cantu is currently being held in the Anderson County Jail in lieu of $150,000 bond in connection with the attack that occurred October 10th in which a female Ottawa bicyclist told law officers he knocked her from her bicycle as she passed him on the trail near Scipio and attempted to rape her, stuffing leaves in her mouth as she struggled on the ground screaming for help. The woman said she was able to fight De La Cruz off and escape to a nearby residence. De La Cruz was apprehended a short time later riding his bicycle on U.S. 59 Highway after officers sent his photo to other officers tending the victim.

The incident brings a local focus to national headlines and the public's demand leading up to the recent presidential election that federal action be taken to curtail a Biden Administration surge in illegal immigration into the U.S., following

Cruz-Cantu

Trump-era border policies rescinded on President Biden's first day in office that critics say resulted in as many as 8 million illegals entering the country since 2021.

Details about when De La Cruz-Cantu entered the country and the circumstances of his arrival have not come to light so far, though his wife told authorities they were Mexican citizens and were in the country illegally. The two worked at a Garnett Mexican restaurant located on North Maple Street.

Though there's conflicting research on whether illegal immigrants commit crimes at a higher rate than native-born populations, most studies don't include data of the most recent illegal immigration surge since 2021. What is known is that high-profile incidents like the murder of Georgia college student Lakin Riley and the Tuesday conviction of Jose Ibarra in that case, as well as the alleged takeover of Colorado apartment complexes by immigrant gangs has brought the issue to the forefront of American discourse.

Last Friday night's "Beaver Moon" emerges over a treeline in Monroe Township. It was the last supermoon of the calendar year, when the moon appears bigger and brighter because it's on its closest approach to the Earth. The last event of the year is called a Beaver Moon because November is when beavers prepare for winter by strengthening their dams and storing more food.

LGGPR ramrod named parade Grand Marshall

Nighttime parade will circle Garnett Square ushering in the season 6:30 p.m. Nov. 30

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Lake Garnett Grand Prix Revival stalwart Tracy Modlin was selected as Grand Marshall of the 54th Annual Garnett Area Chamber of Commerce Christmas Parade Nov. 30 as "Toy Trains and Candy Canes," hits the downtown thoroughfares with lighted splendor for the nighttime event.

Modlin has been an integral fixture of the annual sports car revival, based on the 1960s-70s Lake Garnett Grand Prix races, working behind the scenes with vintage sports car enthusiasts and other high performance motor fans to turn the auto and track exhibition into one of the area's most popular events. The Lake Garnett Park Road where the driving exhibition is held underwent a major asphalt overlay in time for the October 2024 event.

The nighttime parade arrives in downtown Garnett at 6:30 p.m. Judged floats should line up at Ray Meyer Gym at 5:15 p.m. with judging beginning at 5:30 p.m. Non-judged floats line up at the gym at 5:45 p.m. and entries will move out at 6:15 p.m. Float awards are made in Chamber Bucks negotiable at any GACC merchant member, $100, $50 and $25 for first through third prizes. Richmond man waives preliminary hearing, arraignment set Dec. 23

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

OTTAWA - A Richmond man awaits arraignment on first degree murder and child abuse charges Christmas week in connection with the death of his infant son last February.

Jason Marnell, 25 of Richmond, waived his preliminary hearing Nov. 12 in Franklin County District Court and is set for arraignment on the charges Dec. 23.

Marnell

Marnell was arrested February 14 on charges that injuries he inflicted due to the abuse of his infant son, Waylon S. Marnell, in a January 14 incident resulted in the boy's death two weeks later.

Franklin County Sheriff's deputies responded to a medical call on January 14th at a Richmond residence and upon arrival found the infant unresponsive.

Life-saving measures were attempted and the baby was transported to an Ottawa Hospital and later transferred to Children's Mercy Hospital in Kansas City in critical condition. KBI officers were asked to assist in the investigation on January 17th. The baby was born December 13, 2023.

In a January 16th Facebook post, the child's mother, Marie Leitner, recounted to friends that Waylon had choked on milk when she was away and aspirated into his lung, at which time Marnell allegedly started CPR before a deputy took over the process upon his arrival. Leitner said she then arrived at the home but the child had apparently been some 20 minutes without oxygen to the brain.

Defendants can waive their preliminary hearing, which is an initial court review of evidence and testimony to determine whether enough evidence exists to justify formal arraignment, for any number of reasons. Preliminary

Fake pastor could get 40 years for sex crime

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - A former Kincaid man may face some 40 years in prison as a repeat sexual offender after a conviction handed down this week in Anderson County District Court.

Anderson County Attorney Elizabeth Oliver said in a statement she anticipated Kevin LaBelle could be sentenced for as much as four decades when his sentencing is concluded January 13.

Oliver charged LaBelle in February with a number of offenses including felony sodomy with a 14 year-old boy.

LaBelle portrayed himself on social media as the head of a prison ministry from his location in Kincaid, although Kansas City's Christian Bible College and Seminary, where he took instruction, said he never completed his degree program.

LaBelle was adjudicated as a juvenile in 1988 for indecent liberties with a child and had a subsequent conviction as an adult in 2017 which landed him on the Kansas sex offender registry. He won a partial appeal of his sentence in 2010 after arguing court officials included his juvenile adjudication when considering extending his sentence on the 2017 case.

Oliver commended the work of Anderson County Sheriff's Office Detective Bob Ward along with other members of the department who assisted in the investigation, as well as the courage of the victim for his testimony in the case.

LaBelle will be sentenced on January 13, 2025.

Reid-Harelson

Reid-Harelson, a senior majoring in Health and Human Performance, competes in track for ESU.

For decades, Earl W. Sauder's commitment to philanthropic giving has aided and encouraged the students of Emporia State University. The scholarship program he established in 2004 with a substantial gift of more than $1 million has supported hundreds of student-athletes who wear Hornet black and gold.

After Earl Sauder's death in 2006, his son, ESU alumnus Steve Sauder, and Steve's wife, Bobbi, committed to carry on the tradition Earl started. Today, supporting the scholarships Earl started involves every generation of the Sauder family.

The Sauder family further strengthened their financial commitment to ESU in May 2022 with a legacy gift that ensures the scholarship will support Hornet student-athletes for future generations.

More than 450 ESU student-athletes have earned Sauder scholarships since 2004.

Vikings XC coach has built a top-notch program

BY KEVIN GAINES THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

RICHMOND - The Central Heights Vikings cross country team is on an unprecedented run the past few years as its just a continuation of a dynasty which has seen the team win back-to-back titles that past two years, including a record breaking performance at the 2024 2A state championship in Wamego on November 2nd.

The record the Vikings broke was their overall team score of 34 which outpaced Hutchison Trinity's score of 66. The previous record was held by Stanton County. In 2019 they tallied a score of 40 which interestingly enough squandered the Vikings first chance at back-to-back titles as they finished in 2nd place after winning the 2018 state title.

What head coach Troy Prosser has done since taking over the Vikings is nothing short of spectacular. It isn't often that a head coach is successful in his first head coaching job from day one but it appears every button he has pushed has been right on point.

Looking back to when Coach Prosser joined the program in 2016, the team had just 5 runners on the high school squad and 9 more in middle school. Last year's team had 38 runners, including middle school and high school. This is an obvious sign that students not only want to be a part of what Coach Prosser has built, but they also believe in him as a coach and mentor.

Back in 2015 during the first weeks of practice Coach Prosser said, "The strength so far has been excellent work ethic. When the runners see success it breeds confidence, which in turn instills excitement."

A look back at that statement and it couldn't have been any more true.

In his first season they had one lone state qualifier, Kyle Cardin, but since that time the boys have qualified for state the past 9 years with 3 state championships and 2 runner-up finishes in that span.

The girl's program has been building as well, albeit at a slower pace.

In Prosser's 4th season, 2018, the Lady Vikings sent two qualifiers, Lily Meyer and Madison Bridges, to state which was the first time in over 20 years a girl qualified.

The girls have qualified someone every year since then and also have finished with a 3rd, 4th and 5th place team finish during that run.

The accolades just go on and on over the past decade.

Athletes have won an incredible 1,424 medals with 98 of them being at the state meet. They broke 13 school records and Cody Hammond was the first ever Viking to win a state championship in cross country this year.

As a team they have won 47 team trophies including 9 regional championships and 3 regional runner-up finishes.

As a sign of the commitment the middle schoolers have shown, the middle school boys won 6 consecutive league championships at one point.

Coach Prosser is losing a super talented and driven group of seniors that the returning runners will be hard pressed to duplicate the success, but I'm sure the talented underclassmen feel like it is their time to shine.

Five of the top six runners on this year's team were comprised of seniors Connor Burkdoll, Cody Hammond, Christian McCord, Jotham Meyer and Owen Miller.

Burkdoll and Hammond normally finished 1st and 2nd as Hammond broke both the Vikings school record and course record this year with a time of 15:34 at their regional meet which they hosted.

On the season, the Vikings were a perfect 187-0 as they won every invitational they competed in this year in dominating fashion.

Coach Prosser stated of this group, "There simply aren't enough words to explain how proud and honored I am to have watched these boys grow over the past seven years, not only as runners but as young men."

It is obvious this talented group will be missed but at this point the Vikings are just expected to have a new wave of runners step up.

The Viking's coach is a firm believer to be successful on the course you have to work hard in every aspect off the course as well.

Coach Prosser said before the season, "Being a great teammate, representing the school with class, good sportsmanship and improving as a runner are always the priority."

It isn't just the top runners that are important to the program.

"Every single kid in the program is important. They all bring something to the team that the team needs and everyone can learn from each other on a daily basis," Coach Prosser stated.

The new wave of runners from the junior varsity team had a perfect score in every meet this season as they quite often occupied the top 7-8 spots in a meet.

It looks like the dynasty is in solid hands moving forward.

Colony Christian Church reminds to be thankful everyday

Pastor Chase Riebel gave a Thanksgiving sermon on being thankful for the Kingdom of God from Psalm 145. God wants every person to come to Him but He also wants the nations to seek Him. There is and has always been only one Kingdom that will last forever. Be thankful that you belong to that Kingdom. On Monday evenings in December there will be a small group for the study of the book Come Home For Christmas by Matthew West.

Lexy Langworthy led worship accompanied by Ben

Prasko on the Peruvian Cajon. They played "Great Are You Lord," "10,000 Reasons," "The Old Rugged Cross" and "Great Are You Lord."

Brant McGhee gave the communion meditation. True Thanksgiving is sitting at the Lord's table and being in communion with our Savior. Thanksgiving is a lifestyle. What can we do other than praise the Lord constantly when Jesus is in our life. Thanksgiving is every day.

Happy Thanksgiving!

They lost the book of the law!

In 2 Kings chapters 22 and 23 we read the account of Hilkiah the priest finding the Book of the Law in the temple of the LORD and the response of Josiah the king when it is presented to him. The Book of the Law or Book of the Covenant was a name given for the code of laws in Exodus 20 and 23 given to Moses at Mount Sinai immediately after the Ten Commandments. To get an idea how important this book was when Joshua was assuming leadership after the death of Moses God's specific instructions to him concerning this book were. "Do not let this Book of the Law depart from your mouth, meditate on it day and night, so that you may be careful to do everything written in it." Such an important book that had vanished from the lives of the people. Here we see God's hand at work. He brings an eight year old boy to kingship after one of the darkest times in Judah's history. The Book of the Law had been left in the temple and not only had been misplaced but there was such a gap in the knowledge of the people they didn't even know it existed. Hilkiah's words to Shaphan the secretary were, "I have found the Book of the Law." When Josiah heard the words of the Book he promptly sought God and began to renew the covenant. I believe it is safe to say that the people had lost their way without the Book of the Law.

WEEKLY DEVOTIONAL

Today we have pushed the Bible away from school, business and government and yes even the church. Without the Bible the only form of law we have is criminal, civil and administrative no moral law exists. Without any kind of moral compass we have lost our way just as the people in Judah did. So what can we do now? Well God told Joshua, "Do not let this Book depart from your mouth." Seems like good advise. Take it with you, live your life accordingly to it and most importantly love God. If you never return the love God gives you why should he give you more and how is anyone ever going to be able to see God through you.

How Trump can save women's sports

The Biden-Harris administration has done more damage to women's sports and privacy than you realize. On Day 1, President Joe Biden signed an executive order directing the entire government to infuse gender ideology throughout the nation.

"Children should be able to learn without worrying about whether they will be denied access to the restroom, the locker room, or school sports," he said, which, translated into regular English, means "Boys, including 18-year-old seniors, must access girls' locker rooms and sports, if it agrees with their internal sense of self."

He directed every agency to implement regulations to carry out this policy, and they did. Today, schools cannot even qualify for school lunch money unless they implement radical policies that treat men as women, including in the locker room. (This is all illegal, obviously, and court challenges have blunted the effect in some states.)

Unwinding will take some time, and President-elect Donald Trump has committed himself to it. He vowed his administration would use Title IX to prohibit men from participating in women's sports. That's a good start. I was an attorney for the first Trump White House. I have traveled the country with Paula Scanlan, who was forced to strip before Lia Thomas 18 times per week. I got to know Payton McNabb who was partially paralyzed by a man spiking a ball at her head. Here's my take on what can and should be done immediately.

During Trump's first administration, the Department of Justice found that a Connecticut policy permitting men in women's sports cuts against Title IX's core purpose, to ensure women have an equal opportunity to participate in educational programs, including sports.

That was correct, which multiple courts have now agreed with when enjoining Biden's Title IX rewrite (which requires schools to allow men in women's locker rooms). The Supreme Court has indicated it unanimously agrees Title IX cannot sustain a gender ideology mandate.

The Department of Education Office of Civil Rights should immediately announce an investigation into a school that fails to protect women's sports, like San Jose State University, which continues to permit a male to take the roster spot of women, endanger women during practices and matches and silence women from speaking out. SJSU is only one option. Several schools in New Hampshire, for example, are directly violating their state law that protects women's sports, claiming Biden's illegal Title IX rewrite gives them cover.

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

Title IX is a 1972 law designed to stop schools from discriminating against women — discrimination that included offering them zero athletic opportunities, except occasionally field hockey. The Biden-Harris administration seemed to miss that memo, and says Title IX prohibits discrimination on the basis of "gender identity," in document after document. That argument is illegal. The Department of Education has absolutely no statutory authority to impose a gender ideology mandate on our nation's female athletes. Delete all this guidance.

My ideal end solution is to get the federal government out of the school business and return it to the states. But that's going to take a while. In the meantime, a new Title IX regulation should explicitly protect women's sports.

The longstanding regulation says that schools "shall provide equal athletic opportunity for members of both sexes." As if that needed clarification, Trump's Department of Education should add that equal opportunity requires a reasonable number of female-only teams and private spaces (which is how the statute has been understood for decades). And as if that needed clarification, the regulation should define female to mean an individual belonging to the sex that has the reproductive role of producing ova.

The NCAA is a multi-billion-dollar organization that strips women of opportunities by permitting post-pubescent males in the female category. Before supporting any NCAA wish list items, which might include name-image-likeness (NIL) legislation, an exemption from Title IX for NIL payments (which go predominantly to men), or breathing room from antitrust investigation,

It's the unions, dummy

Voters soundly rejected the Democratic Party this month, not just in swing states or red states. In the bluest of blue communities, in the nation's largest and most liberal cities, voters moved noticeably to the right. President-elect Donald Trump did not, of course, win San Francisco, Chicago, or New York City, but he did better in those cities than any Republican candidate has done in decades...

Soft-on-crime district attorneys funded by Democratic megadonor George Soros are partly to blame... However, the Democratic Party's inability to govern goes deeper than that. There is cancer within the party that makes it incapable of governing effectively, except in deep-red states.

The problem preventing Democrats from governing effectively is public sector unions — Big Labor.

... When private sector unions suck too much value out of a private company, and that company can no longer deliver a good product at a competitive price, the business loses market share and must negotiate a better deal with its union employees or go out of business.

... Until the stranglehold public sector unions have on California and other states run by Democrats is broken, the party of the Left will fail to deliver good services at reasonable prices, cities will continue to lose population, and Democrats will lose elections.

Trump may finally succeed in de-federalizing U.S. education

It might come as a surprise to most Americans that the U.S. Department of Education did not exist until 1977, and it was created by Jimmy Carter.

Since that time, the United States has slowly slipped into the abyss of international academia, falling from one of the best systems in the world to mediocrity.

The U.S. ranks 39th among industrialized nations in math and 25th in science, both categories that the U.S. led prior to the federalization of education.

Surely it must be because education is underfunded in America, right?

According to a study by Newsweek, the United States spent $11,319 per grade school pupil in 2018 and $13,776 per high school student. Only Switzerland spent more for a grade school student and only France spent more for a high school student.

When factoring in college and technical education, the U.S. spent $16,268 per student, eclipsing the rest of the developed world who spent an average of $10,759, according to Newsweek.

Clearly education is not underfunded in Kansas or the rest of the country nor does it correlate with results in the classroom since we have been on a downward slope since the creation of the U.S. Department of Education.

Donald Trump has made it a priority of his incoming administration to do away with the bureaucratic nightmare that has become the federalization of education.

While this has some worried about how we would fund classrooms state by state, there is a bigger concern — if we don't do something different, how will we be competitive with the rest of the world?

KANSAS COMMENTARY

EARL WATT, THE LEADER & TIMES

The biggest issue with the federalization of education is the same problem that happens any time government injects itself into society — conformity and lagging standards.

President George W. Bush tried to address the descent with his program called No Child Left Behind.

But the problem was trying to nationalize standards in a way that created the same student from the East Coast to the High Plains.

It also required a ton of paperwork and increased administrative oversight.

As with all government mandates, the size of government expanded, and with it the cost, but the dollars were not spent in the classroom but on the administration of the programs.

Before the Carter Administration injected the federal government into education, the focus was much more on the classroom and the ability of the educator to provide the necessary knowledge and skills to the students.

Without multiple programs or even the technological tools of today, the educator was a professional in their field of study, and they developed their own style and ability to react to the various students in their classrooms.

Educators were given a specific skill set that was to be gained by the students, and then they set out to achieve those goals.

During that time, elementary schools had a principal, and junior high and high schools might had a principal and an assistant.

Today the administrative staff has bloated, various programs have directors, and teachers have coaches to help them navigate not through teaching, but through the paperwork and red tape.

Educators controlled their own discipline, and parents backed them up.

But today, the multiple programs that have nothing to do with academic achievement have lowered the bar and distracted from intellectual advancement.

The first step back to academic excellence starts by getting Washington out of the classrooms and allowing states to focus on what is

Black, Latino, degreeless Whites – demography isn't destiny for Trump

It turns out that everyone underestimated how a proposal for mass deportations could bring Americans together. Donald Trump assembled the biggest, most diverse GOP coalition in decades while running further to the right on immigration, crime and culture than perhaps any major-party presidential candidate in U.S. history.

Trump inveighed against unchecked illegal immigration in harsh and lurid terms -- and picked up Hispanic voters. Trump pledged to reverse "a brutal plague of bloodshed, crime, chaos, misery and death in our land" -- and won more young voters.

Trump famously dethroned the Republican establishment in 2016, and now has crushed its theory of how to forge a GOP future in an increasingly diverse country. Trump may win the most electoral votes of a Republican since George H.W. Bush in 1988. In the 1980s, America was roughly 80% white, and Hispanics and Asians were less than 7% and 2% of the population respectively. Now, Hispanics and Asians are 19.5% and 6.4%, while whites have declined to 75% of the population.

We've long been told these changes are a herald of doom for the Republican Party, and the GOP can only survive by softening its edges. This was the admonition of the famous "autopsy" commissioned by the Republican National Committee after Mitt Romney's loss to Barack Obama in 2012. According to the report, the divisive policies and tone of Romney's GOP -- yes, the resolutely polite, earnest and scrupulous Mitt Romney -- were sentencing the party to demographic extinction.

To win Hispanics, the autopsy insisted, Republicans "must embrace and champion comprehensive immigration reform," the establishment's favorite euphemism for a mass amnesty. "It does not matter," it maintained, "what we say about education, jobs or the economy; if Hispanics think we do not want them here, they will close their ears to our policies."

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

RICH LOWRY, King Features Syndicate

And the party's tone had to change. The autopsy intoned that "we must emphasize during candidate trainings, retreats, etc., the importance of a welcoming, inclusive message."

The same applied to young voters: "The RNC must more effectively highlight our young leaders and fundamentally change the tone we use to talk about issues and the way we are communicating with voters."

Given what we now know, the autopsy could have said, "To thrive in the future, the party needs to find a forceful, charismatic leader in his late 70s who often speaks in vivid, crude terms, and sounds a lot like Pat Buchanan on the issues."

According to the exit polls, Trump won Latino men and males ages 18-29, while also gaining among Asians and black men, and holding his big edge among whites without college degrees.

Once Trump established working-class credibility on economics, the door was open to gains among Latino and African-American men who are patriotic, culturally conservative and uninterested in being considered members of a victim group. These voters aren't easily offended, so Trump's mode of communication doesn't bother them.

As for young men, many of them are disaffected from a progressive elite that considers them inherently hateful and privileged and favors policies to disadvantage them.

The Biden-Harris border policies, the progressive tolerance for urban disorder, the push to implement a radical trans agenda and the priorities of woke identity politics struck so many voters as so completely mad that Trump had permission to say or do anything in opposition. It wasn't so much Trump who made the idea of mass deportation mainstream as the Biden-Harris insistence on creating a border crisis and denying that it was happening.

Also, a crucial backdrop for Trump's success was the broader economic discontent, as well as Joe Biden's sheer unpopularity.

All is flux, so perhaps 2024 won't be replicable, but, for now, Trump has shown that demographics isn't destiny. His right-wing populism has made inroads among a broad range of voter groups, while Kamala Harris -- an emblem of progressivism's cultural obessions -- picked up among college-educated whites and among seniors.

Who looks like the future now?

the NCAA should comply with Title IX's purpose of protecting women's sports.

Three states (Idaho, West Virginia and Arizona) are currently unable to protect women's sports due to rogue court interpretations that the 14th Amendment and Title IX require men in women's sports. Ask the Supreme Court to review and overturn these unhinged decisions.

Health department warns of sponsor scam

IOLA – The local public health department is warning about sponsor scam approaching local businesses.

Becky Johnson with the Southeast Kansas Multi-County Health Department notified area press last week the illegitimate scheme had already approached some area businesses.

"If you or your business have been contacted by Promotional Specialties International requesting donations on behalf of the SEK Multi-County Health Department or "Bourbon County Health Department," please be aware that this is not a legitimate request," Johnson said. "They have falsely claimed that we are seeking sponsorships for t-shirts and now calendars, which is not the case. This group has previously engaged in similar activities, successfully obtaining funds from several businesses under the pretense of supporting our local health department. We strongly advise against making any donations to this organization."

Numerous complaints are noted in the Better Business Bureau for the same issues in other states, Johnson said.

Cost sharing continues to be offered for soil tests in Anderson County

By Carol Engle, Frontier Extension District Communications and Marketing Manager

GARNETT — As the 2024 crops are now harvested, it's a good time to consider soil tests for the 2025 planting season. As announced earlier this year, Anderson County producers have the opportunity to test soil samples at reduced costs thanks to a joint partnership between the Anderson County Conservation District, the Anderson County Commissioners and the Frontier Extension District. The full prices for soil tests conducted through Kansas State University begin at $13.50 for a package Number 1 that tests pH, buffer pH, Phosphorus and Potassium. With the cost sharing arrangement that began mid-2024, the price for that test is only $3.50, with a limit of 10 tests per producer per year.

To receive the reduced prices, the producer must fill out the paperwork at the Extension office when shipping the sample(s). The $10 cost share is also offered for other test packages offered by K-State.

"One of the biggest benefits to this program continues to be to help ensure good water quality," said Ryan Schaub, Frontier District agent specializing in crop production and farm management. "With this program, we can better track where nutrients are being applied and at what amounts they are being applied. In turn, this information helps us know where these nutrients could potentially end up in an erosion event."

Anyone with questions about soil testing can contact the Frontier District office in Garnett at 785.448.6826.

Garnett Lions Club enjoyed Thanksgiving dinner on 11/18

Garnett Lions Club members met for their annual Thanksgiving dinner Monday night at the VFW Hall at the club's regular meeting time at 6 PM

After a short business meeting to discuss the clubs coming projects, breakfast with Santa, kids Christmas party and the clubs entry in the Garnett Area, Chamber of Commerce Christmas parade, club members, and some of their spouses enjoyed several rounds of bingo.

Caller and club president Skip Landis donned his bright green St. Patrick's Day tie and starch white shirt to add ambience to the bingo festivities.

Among the winners of the bingo matches, prizes, for which were large and small chocolate turkeys, were Alice Canavan, Mike Canavan, Alan Highberger, Richard Kinder, Chelsey D'Albini and Katrina Fisher.

The Garnett Lions Club meets the second and fourth Mondays of the month at 6 PM at the guard at VFW Hall in Crystal Lake Park.

Hyatt Club met 11/14

Hyatt Club met on Nov. 14th, 2024 at the First Christian Church, hostesses were Marilyn Benjamin and Linda Miller.

They had fixed soups and members brought sides to go with the menu. They were decorated for fall and for Veteran's Day. Marilyn said the prayer and we enjoyed our meal. Mystery gifts were passed around while we ate and Patty Mosher guessed a pair of stockings and Becky King won the other one with the guess of a night light. Hostess gifts were won by the member with the most grandkids and that was Sandra Hamilton and the other one was Shirley Benjamin guessing the #15. Our keepsake for each one of us was a cute clutch that had sticky notes and we all read a little note about dads and grandpas with fond memories remembering our veterans.

Dues were collected and drawing for new secret pals for 2025. Sign up sheet was passed around for next year's hostesses. Birthday girls for the month of November were Sherry Benjamin, Hilda Lankard, Sandra Hamilton and Erin Miller. They all received their gifts from secret pals. Kathy Waring received a 'Just because' gift from her secret pal. It was good to see members we have not seen for awhile. Diane read the minutes and gave the treasurer's report. Prayers are needed for our Hyatt Club families and remembering them with a card. Our December meeting is yet to be announced. As always we cherish our time together and happiness and laughter is good for the soul.

Secretary, Becky King
