Charge says man freed in Anderson County killed WYCO cop

Without moves by judge and prosecutor, Harris would have been in jail

BY MICHAEL RYAN THE HEARTLANDER

GARNETT - Shawn Harris would have been in prison Saturday, July 26; unable to shoot and kill a Wyandotte County deputy as he's charged, if a prosecutor elsewhere in Kansas had followed through on a case last year, The Heartlander has learned.

The former county attorney in Anderson County southwest of Kansas City had charged Harris, 38, in two separate cases last year: one involving physical abuse of a child, and another alleging he failed to report a change in his status under the Kansas Offender Registration Act, which covers repeat violent offenders.

He was allowed to plead no contest Dec. 17 to two misdemeanor or battery counts in the child abuse case and was put on probation - when he could have been put in prison for over 11 years for the original charges.

"He pled in that case - a case that he was facing 136 months over," says puzzled longtime KC-area bondsman Brian Underwood. "He was allowed to plead to a misdemeanor, was granted probation and then released from custody in Anderson County that same day."

Moreover, while it sounds mundane, the charge involving a Kansas Offender Registration Act violation could've also imprisoned Harris for a long period: he could've received 46 months in prison in that case as well.

But for some reason - perhaps as part of a plea deal in the child abuse case - court records indicate then-County Attorney Elizabeth Oliver simply dismissed the registration act case Dec. 17, the same day Harris pled to lesser charges in the abuse case and was granted probation.

Harris was thus released in both cases - ultimately free to allegedly shoot the deputy on Saturday - even though he already had a "Category A" criminal history, the worst possible under Kansas law.

In fact, Harris had long ago earned his Category A criminal

"Sovereign Citizen" movement poses challenge for cops

GPD officer gets training to enforce law over movement that says most laws aren't legal

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT - Garnett police officers are receiving training on the fringe "Sovereign Citizen" movement as the anti-government extremist cause gains more attention for its run-ins with law enforcement.

Garnett Police Chief Kurt King told city commissioners in a weekly activities report that one of the department officers had recently attended the Small and Rural Law Enforcement Executive Association National Conference in Lawrence and received specific instruction on recognizing symbols of the Sovereign Citizen movement as well as instruction regarding encounters with the group, some members of which don't recognize government or police authority.

King

Rooted in anti-government ideologies dating back to the 1970s and 80s, sovereign citizens claim they are exempt from taxes, driver's licenses, vehicle registration, and even the authority of the courts. The movement is not a centralized organization, but rather a collection of individuals who share the belief that the U.S. government is illegitimate. Their rationale varies, but typically involves pseudo-legal interpretations of the Constitution, the Uniform Commercial Code, or outdated interpretations of maritime law.

Some followers argue that by declaring themselves "sovereign," they can opt out of citizenship responsibilities while still living within U.S. borders. They often file fraudulent documents, such as bogus liens or fake legal notices, to intimidate or retaliate against public officials—a tactic known as "paper terrorism."

Though many sovereign citizens are nonviolent, law enforcement officials have identified the movement as a domestic terrorism concern due to its unpredictable and occasionally deadly confrontations. One of the most tragic examples occurred in 2010, when two West Memphis, Arkansas, police officers were killed during a traffic stop by a father-son sovereign citizen duo armed with assault rifles.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) has labeled sovereign citizens as part of the "anti-government extremist" threat spectrum. Their actions have ranged from courtroom disruptions and identity fraud to armed standoffs. Even mundane interactions—like traffic stops—can escalate quickly when an individual refuses to comply, citing non-recognition of authority.

King said his officer was trained in

Robb found competent

No decision made yet whether to charge as adult in church burning

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

COLONY - Having determined that 17 year-old Kaiden Robb of Colony is competent to stand trial on charges that he assaulted a family member and burned down the Colony Community Church the day after Christmas in 2024, district court officials are now going about the process to determine whether he will be charged as an adult or a juvenile for the crimes.

Robb

Anderson County Attorney Steve Wilson said a review hearing July 29 had been a status check on the case but the court had not yet set a determination of Robb's prosecution status. Court records

Jump in delinquent taxes may show impact of property market

GARNETT - The impact of recent years' higher property values and climbing tax bills associated with them may be showing up in the county's delinquent tax rolls, with a 20% increase in delinquent taxes owed this year compared to last year.

An annual publication of delinquent property tax payers and the amounts they owe is published in today's newspaper in keeping with state law, showing a significant increase in both the amount owed and the number of property owners who haven't yet paid their taxes this year.

For 2025, 501 properties owe $510,028, compared to $423,973 owed last year on 470 separate parcels. A portion of that amount owed, more so on properties that have been delinquent the longest, is interest and fees.

Property taxes are based on the estimated value of a home, business, or agricultural land according to actual sale prices of comparable properties. A hot market for land and homes in recent years spurred those values, resulting in higher tax payments when cities, counties and school districts failed to adjust their mill levies applied to those new higher values in order to keep property taxes minimal. Low interest rates nationwide spurred that demand for existing property. Interest rate increases intended to tamp down post-Covid inflation started in March 2022 and ceased last year, bringing about a leveling of home and property demand and prices. Between 2022 and 2023, Kansas Department of Revenue data shows Anderson County saw a significant increase in total property taxes levied—

LICKTEIG

MAY 16, 1931 — JULY 31, 2025

Arnold Joseph Lickteig, age 94, formerly of Greeley, Kansas, passed away on Thursday, July 31, 2025, at Colonial Oaks Senior Living at Spring Hill in Spring Hill, Kansas.

Arnie was born on May 16, 1931, on a farm east of Greeley, Kansas, he was the third child born to Joseph B. and Mary (Scott) Lickteig. He attended a little school house called Hickory Grove. Arnie later attended Greeley High graduating with the Class of 1950. After graduation he worked for Ben Brummel Construction erecting steel bins until he joined the United States Marine Corps serving from January 11th 1952 to January 7th 1954 during the Korean War Arnie received the National Defense medal, Korean Service medal with two stars and the United Nations Service medal. He then transferred from US Mo SS to Marine Corps Reserve with obligated service until discharged on January 10, 1960. After returning from his time in the service he started his career at Kansas Department of Transportation until retiring on May 17, 1992 as a resident engineer.

Arnie married the love of his life Agnes M. Rockers on October 11, 1954, in Scipio, Kansas. They moved to the family farm in May 1964, raising seven kids that he was so proud of.

Arnie took pride in a life of hard work, balancing his duties at KDOT with the joys and challenges of farm life. He took great pride tending to his farm and cattle daily. He loved to coon hunt, fish and go froggin', or visiting with friends, never knowing a stranger. Those that had the privilege of knowing him also heard his auctioneering skills, maybe at a church auction or maybe at a dance in Greeley selling a brown bag of dandelion seeds. With such a big family grandpa had a hard time remembering names so most of his grandkids he called "Peanut".

It was a tradition to have all the family gatherings at the farm, many special memories were made at Uncle Arnie and Aunt Aggies.

Arnie was a lifetime member of the VFW and St. John's Catholic Church.

He was preceded in death by his parents, Joseph B. and Mary Lickteig; his wife of 66 years, Agnes Lickteig; two grandchildren, Timothy Jared Lickteig and Michelle Dawn Johnson; one great-grandson, Gracien Edward Lickteig; one great-granddaughter, Jordan Ann Lickteig; brothers, Leon Lickteig, Melvin and his wife JoAnn Lickteig, Martin and his wife Pauline Lickteig; sister, Lucille and husband Neil Foger; sister-in-law, Janie Lickteig.

Arnold is survived by seven children, Leon J. Lickteig and wife Cindy of Greeley, Kansas; Donald M. Lickteig and wife Sandy of Hawk Point, Missouri; Brenda M. Johnson and husband Rick of LaCygne,

Don't send our kids to Mamdani

If Kansas taxpayers weren't already outraged that the taxes they pay to fund their school districts goes in part to sending high school student trips to the cesspool of New York City, the prospect of the city electing a bona fide communist as its mayor should be a final wake up call. New York City has been a hellhole, self-described by many of its own residents, for more than a decade, but more so since the COVID pandemic. Crime in New York City is up, sanitation and services are down, criminals walk free with no bail hours after committing violent crimes and thefts. Decent cops who used to keep a reign on the streets of Gotham are now gelded by politicians and they're leaving the New York police force in droves - not just in disgust for what's happened to the city but in many cases out of concern for their own safety. It's an environment in which neither they nor the public are protected.

REVIEW COMMENTARY

in Kansas, who stood against communism post-World War II and during the Cold War, to know that their tax money being spent by public schools in the state will be going to help fund Zohran The Commie's circus. Zo wants to replace cops with unarmed "Mental Health Crisis Response Teams;" he wants the city (which is doing such a fine job in so many other areas) to own grocery stores to lower food prices. He wants child welfare workers in the city to be required to tell guardians of the various ways they can refuse to cooperate with enforcement actions.

Simply put, Mamdani's an idiot; a waterspout among this modern surge of socialism that hates our country and western civilization. If Mamdani's elected, people are going to die. Wealthy New Yorkers are going to pole vault out of the city at lightspeed to avoid his massive taxes, and New York will collapse on itself and eventually demand a federal bailout. It will be even more unsafe for Kansas high school drama clubs who want to attend a Broadway play for kicks, and our funds shouldn't be used to support what is nothing short of an anti-America, criminal endeavor. Kansas school board members: Deny those student trips to New York and send our kids somewhere American. ###

Of course it didn't used to be this way. In the early 1990s when Rudy Giuliani used an iron hand to whip the city back in line from three decades of social decay, New York became a hot spot destination with surging tourism in all classes and with massive business and commercial development. New York was proud, and we were all proud of New York. But those days are gone. NYC is doubling down on its systematic decade of decay by poisoning the plurality of its vote in the upcoming mayoral election for Zohran Mamdani, a new-age communist raised on his parents' silver spoon with a well-documented history of anti-Jewish, anti-police babbling and no executive administrative experience whatsoever. Barack Obama famously had been a 'community organizer' before his limited political experience and his skin color vaulted him into the presidency. Mamdani makes the 2006 Obama look like Douglas MacArthur. No doubt it's a great kick for former members of the U.S. military now living

Can someone explained to me why we learned more about the New York City shooter in four hours than we've learned about the Trump shooter in the entire year? Thank you.

Well, I see Anderson County made the Kansas City news. The man who killed the policeman last weekend was actually up on charges in Anderson County. But through plea bargains was allowed to plead his way out of jail. Mr. Hicks, perhaps you can investigate that.

I just got the Review and I seen the front page about paying for buses. I'm about 70 years old, retired, I have no children, and I pay my taxes. So I don't think you ought to be telling somebody else what to do with their money? I think those kids, they can use my money to ride the bus. And also that's prejudice - religious prejudice. Thank you for your time. Bye.

My suggestion for the Trump Presidential Library would be an outhouse with a note pinned to the door, which reads bring your home book.

I really have to wonder how Anderson County could let a man go free after facing such horrible charges just weeks away from the changeover to the new attorney. You have to wonder if maybe it's because they just gave up and didn't care about fighting for Anderson County, and now we're paying the price by watching a Wyandotte County Sheriff family grieve. Should someone be facing disbarment?

Russiagate: Dems lied, and half the country believed them

The United States of America has now spent almost a decade embroiled in "Russiagate," and its citizens have been bombarded from both sides with theories, names, and anonymous quotes. But it all really comes down to one thing: Democrats lied, and half the country believed them. In the 24 pages of never-before-seen declassified files released Thursday, we saw in cold, calculated black and white exactly how the Clinton campaign crafted the lie that Donald Trump was colluding with Russia to influence the 2016 election.

COMMENTARY

the Russian play a U.S. domestic issue," adding, "In absence of direct evidence, CrowdStrike and ThreatConnect will supply the media..." This all leads to a gem in the annex to John Durham's Russia hoax probe, released Thursday, which concluded, "During the first stage of the campaign, due to lack of direct evidence, it was decided to disseminate the necessary information through the FBI-affiliated 'attic-based' technical structures that are involved in cybersecurity...from where the information would then be disseminated through leading US publications." The Clinton campaign knew all too well that their lackeys in the media would eat up this half-baked nonsense with a spoon, and probably win awards for it, which is exactly what happened. What the media wasn't told at the time was that field officers in the CIA objected to the lies and were run over because, according to their then-Director John Brennan "it rings true." This ludicrous legal standard of "rings true," was used to convince the FISA court to renew warrants on Trump officials, which was not only a free federal law enforcement fishing expedition, but created smoke and the appearance of fire. In December of 2016, in the dying days of the Barack Obama administration, intel reports were massaged to once again create the illusion that Trump was a traitor who became president only through Russian assistance. Thus was launched Robert Mueller's investigation, which would last for years at a cost of more than $30 million, but ultimately exonerate Trump. Perhaps worst of all, in the midst of this Kafkaesque trial by media and secret courts, people's lives were destroyed, crushed by false allegations, legal bills and a process that was the punishment. One of them is Michael Caputo, a long-time member of Trump's orbit who I talked to on Friday. "It is precious little comfort knowing

No one but Hamas is to blame for Gaza's woes

Hamas started a war, rejected a ceasefire and stole and profited from humanitarian aid, and we are supposed to believe that it's all Israel's fault. International attention is focused on food shortages in Gaza, with the blame and the pressure -- as always -- on Israel to do something about it. It is always difficult to get to the ground truth in Gaza, which is shrouded in the fog of war, of Hamas propaganda and of slanted media coverage, but there appears indeed to be a brewing humanitarian crisis.

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

Financial and Administrative Crisis as Revenue Dries Up") have run reports on the squeeze felt by Hamas. The Journal article back in April noted that the cash crunch with the cut off in aid was "making it harder for Hamas to bring in new recruits and maintain cohesion." The Washington Post reported about a week ago: "With its coffers depleted, Hamas's military wing can no longer adequately pay the salaries of its fighters, though it is still able to recruit teenage boys for missions like keeping lookout or placing explosives along Israeli military routes." Making it harder for your enemy to pay its fighters and secure new ones is an important and legitimate military goal. The problem is the potential cost to people in Gaza who aren't combatants. The shortages are just another consequence of how deeply embedded Hamas is in Gaza society. This isn't a group of terrorists who moved into territory adjacent to Israel to launch the Oct. 7 attacks and could be quickly extricated by an intense military operation. Hamas has been the government of Gaza for a couple of decades, and has used every instrument of political and social influence at its disposal -- including the distribution of food -- to build its military capacity. It's important to remember that Israel didn't start this war, that it'd much rather be fighting a conventional military force that abided by the rules of war, and that Hamas still holds Israeli hostages and has taken a rejectionist attitude to ceasefire talks. Even Emperor Hirohito thought his people had suffered enough at the conclusion of World War II, but Hamas considers the agony of Gazans a useful weapon in the narrative war. From this perverted point of view, a famine would be welcome news, perhaps forcing Israel to stay its hand and leave Hamas to fight another day. Clearly, Israel needs to find better ways to get aid into Gaza. The GHF hasn't gotten the support that it needed from the U.N. and other agencies (they are too invested in the corrupt status quo), while the distribution points for aid are chaotic and dangerous. The best thing that could happen would be an end to the war with a decent political authority -- more invested in the general welfare than in tunnels and rockets-- finally in charge of Gaza. But Hamas would rather see the population starve than give up on the war, or its grip on power.

Attended an artifact presentation at Washburn

I bet you thought I was all thru writing about this year's KATP. So did I.

I had completely forgotten about Kay and my trip back up to LeCompton on the evening of June 26th.

We drove up through a thunderstorm to attend the Washburn University student BBQ and artifact presentation. Both events were great.

Everything was held in the LeCompton Pride Building, which at one time was their high school. This is the very same building that was our headquarters and laboratory during KATP.

After eating and enjoying a delicious BBQ dinner we toured thru all the wonderful student artifact displays. Each student that participated in this year's KATP had made up their

A big "Thank You" goes out to Dr. Laura Murphy and her WU students, for a beautiful and educational evening.

PAULA SCOTT - REVIEW HISTORY COLUMNIST

Historical gleanings from past newspapers.

1895 - 130 years ago

August 9 - Last Saturday City Attorney D. L. Jones swore out a search warrant before Police Judge Houston and City Marshall Douthett raided an upstairs room in the Albright building and captured a lot of liquors. There were some kegs and a lot of cases, the latter marked "Hop Tea" but looked very much like plain "lager." The goods were taken in charge and stored away in the rear of the council rooms under the guard of T. M. Hamilton to await the trial set for August 14. The owner will probably show up and resist the destruction that awaits them if his Honor, Judge Houston, is not convinced that they have a legal right to still live in his bailiwick.

1905 - 120 years ago

August 11 - Fritz Lewis was fined $5.00 and costs in police court Tuesday morning, having been run in the night before for wearing skates in the good old summertime.

August 12 - Garnett is freer today from joints than for several years, but booze is still to be had.

1915 - 110 years ago

August 13 - The new 150-horse-power boiler for the city is being unloaded today and taken to the powerhouse, at Crystal Lake. It is so large and heavy that they have to roll it there. It came from Dayton, Ohio. C. C. Ream and A. W. Merkle have charge of the work.

als at the home of Mrs. Blanche Frisbie, about three miles northeast of Garnett, Saturday night, resulted in a fine of $100 as well as an assessment of $31.50 when she was found guilty of maintaining a nuisance. The officials, Sheriff Fred M. Smith, Undersheriff Arthur Huskey, and Merle Loughridge, county attorney, seized three bottles of home brew, and 1 1/2 pints of alcohol. There were a number of frequenters at the place when the officials paid their unannounced visit. Mrs. Frisbie is now at the county jail awaiting the start of her term at the state reformatory.

August 9 - Kansas Highway Patrol troopers from surrounding counties were called here last night after a gathering of 50 to 60 youths--most of them from Garnett--sparked fear of rioting. It was the third Sunday in a row in which police here had watched and worried as youngsters gathered. The gathering, described by one Garnett city official as a "rumble," began around 8:30 p.m. when a group of youths, congregated on the west side of the courthouse square began shooting fireworks.

Between 8:30 and 9 o'clock lights throughout downtown Garnett were turned out, apparently by the youths. Police turned the lights on shortly after 9. By 9:30, a group of between 50 and 60 youngsters had gathered near the Burgeteria and Duds N' Suds laundry on north Maple. More fireworks were exploded and field corn strewn over the parking lot of the Pence food center on north Maple. Law officers began stopping cars, issuing tickets for various traffic offenses, around 10:30 p.m. and the youngsters began to disperse. Noting minor disorders in the past two weeks, City Manager Howard M. Rubin had commented before last night's incidents, "It will probably get worse before it gets better. "I think they're on a kick to show this community that they voted out the races, but not the riots," he said.

2005 - 20 years ago

August 9 - The Anderson County Commission Monday instructed its auditor to delete $75,000 designated for payments on the Garnett Church Furnishings factory from the 2005 county budget. The deletion will mean the mill levy for 2006 would be about a half-mill lower than in 2005.

Robb underwent a psychological examination this spring, the results of which were reviewed by District Magistrate Judge Kara Reynolds in June. A charging document said Robb had apparently become involved in a domestic altercation hours before he was pulled by an officer from the smoking interior of the church. Firefighters initially controlled the fire, but it rekindled overnight and eventually destroyed the structure.

Kansas Statute 38-23-47 outlines when and how a juvenile may be transferred from juvenile court to district (adult) court. According to the law the juvenile has to be at least 14 years old and alleged to have committed an offense that would be considered a felony if committed by an adult. Allegations of serious crimes like first and second degree murder, aggravated kidnapping or rape carry statutory exclusion and mandatory adult prosecution. The hearing process for juvenile to be tried as an adult, even if not required, is also outlined in the statute.

Legal analysts say a variety of factors come into play and an optional transfer to adult prosecution, including whether the offense was committed in an aggressive, violent, premeditated, or willful manner; the maturity, emotional attitude, and mental capacity of the juvenile any prior juvenile crime record and or failed attempts at previous rehabilitation and the likelihood of successful rehabilitation before the age of 21. While suitability for adult court is presumed by the law in mandatory waiver cases, the prosecution has to make the burden of proof to show that adult charges serve the interest of justice in discretionary cases.

Kansas law also allows a reverse waiver in some cases—where a juvenile initially charged as an adult can request to return to juvenile court. The district court must conduct a hearing and apply similar factors to those above.

A follow up hearing in the case had not been scheduled as of this week on the court docket through early September.

recognizing some of the symbolism of those followers, such as the "Title 4 Flag" or the upside down American Flag – a universal signal of distress, often used by protestors of U.S. government core policy, as well as verbiage used on fake license plates and driver's licenses.

"It also discussed the language and terminology they use from selected sentences out of various laws, Uniform Commercial Codes, Marine Law, and Diplomatic Treaties with other nations," King told commissioners in the report. "The class offered responses to those assertions made by the Sovereign Citizens when contacted by law enforcement."

Agencies have adopted a multifaceted approach to deal with sovereign citizens, focused on safety, education, and legal preparedness. Many departments now include sovereign citizen awareness in their academy and in-service training. Officers learn to recognize common phrases ("I do not consent to this stop," "I am a free inhabitant," etc.), indicators (homemade license plates, anti-government literature), and behavioral red flags. Given the movement's ideological rigidity, officers are trained to avoid argumentative exchanges and instead proceed with calm, firm communication. The goal is to minimize confrontation while maintaining lawful authority and safety.

Sovereign citizens rely on distorted readings of the law to justify their actions, analysts of the movement say. They often cite obscure language from old court cases, claim that the U.S. government became illegitimate after the Civil War or creation of the Federal Reserve, or argue that gold fringe on courtroom flags invalidates proceedings. These arguments have been repeatedly dismissed by courts as legally baseless, yet the ideology persists through social media, YouTube videos, and online message boards.

Their core belief that individual sovereignty supersedes public law—conflicts directly with the foundational principles of civil society, say constitutional academics. While they often see themselves as patriots or freedom fighters, their refusal to accept the rule of law has consequences for public order and officer safety.

Fusion centers – collaborative efforts involving multiple agencies like law enforcement, public safety and private sector partners that share information and intelligence to combat crime and terrorism – as well as federal task forces help track known sovereign citizens, especially those with a history of violence or paper terrorism. Cross-jurisdictional cooperation ensures local agencies are not caught off guard by frequent filers or known agitators.

history – even before his 2013 sentence of nearly 11 years in a 2012 armed robbery. He was released from state prison sometime before February 2024.

The Heartlander reached out to Oliver to ask why the two cases she filed turned out the way they did. She replied via email that she is working on memory alone, now that she's out of office and no longer has access to Harris' files.

On the abuse case, Oliver writes that a judge threw out the abuse charge after a Sept. 17 preliminary hearing, leaving only two counts of battery.

"Despite the minor child ... reenacting how Mr. Harris hit her, and identifying Mr. Harris, Judge Kara Reynolds did not bind Mr. Harris over on the felony count of child abuse," Oliver writes, adding that Harris was sentenced to 208 days time served.

"It is highly unusual to put minor children that are under 12 on the stand at a preliminary hearing," she writes. "In this case, I put the two minor children on and [one] testified and reenacted the event out, and Judge Reynolds found the state had not met the burden of probable cause for the felony count of child abuse. ...

"I simply cannot [comment] on Judge Reynolds' ruling."

On the registration act case, Oliver writes that a deal on it was actually reached before the abuse case.

"Mr. Harris was to get compliant on his registration offense and the case would be dismissed, but the state reserved the right to refile the case," she writes. "My recollection in this case is that Mr. Harris made a good impression on the officer and the officer approved of the offer. It would have been unusual for me to dismiss this type of case without an officer's approval.

"Judge Kara Reynolds had not bound over a previous case with the exact same charge at a preliminary hearing and that ruling dismissed that case at that stage. ...

"Her ruling in the other case was a significant consideration for me in making the decision in this case. It is difficult to say what would have happened had this case progressed. Sentencing is ultimately the Judge's decision, and defense may make arguments for a departure to probation. I cannot commit to what could have been."

"Don't give him the plea deal!"

With that criminal history, it's likely Harris would have been sentenced in the case to 46 months in prison – making it impossible for him to kill Wyandotte County Sheriff's Deputy Elijah Ming, for which he's been charged with capital murder.

"He faced up to 46 months in prison" on the registration act violation alone, notes James Spies, a defense attorney and former prosecutor in Kansas City. "He would have been what's called 'presumptive imprisonment' on that, meaning the law says he's supposed to go to prison."

Spies is baffled as to why a prosecutor would let a Category-A criminal skate on a registration act violation.

After Harris pled to two misdemeanor batteries in the child abuse case, he says, "why do you then also dismiss the offender registration? Generally, those are slam dunk cases. So, if you were so inclined to give a misdemeanor on the child abuse case, why not also hammer him for the offender registration?"

What if not dismissing the registration act charge would've blown up the plea deal in the child abuse case?

"Well, then don't give him the plea deal!" says Spies.

"Not a case of herding cats"

It's not as if Harris deserved

"I've done the math," Underwood says, "and it looks to me like this guy has spent just over two-thirds of his adult life incarcerated."

Nonetheless, Harris is now accused of shooting at Ming and a Kansas City, Kansas, police officer from inside a house Saturday, killing Ming, who leaves a wife and son. News reports say a woman there had requested police protection after she said a man had threatened her with a gun while friends were helping her move out.

Both Underwood and Spies fault former prosecutor Oliver more for the failure to prosecute Harris on the registration act charge, owing to how difficult it is to win convictions in abuse cases – particularly if a victim or witness is uncooperative, frightened or recants.

"This case of violation of the Offender Registration Act is a drastically different case," Underwood says. "Your witnesses are law enforcement officers that you can get into court with nothing more than a text message, telephone call or an e-mail."

"It's not a case of herding cats to successfully prosecute a case like the violation of the Offender Registration Act."

Why walk away from "a monster"?

Even if there was a prior agreement to dismiss the registration case, Underwood says, "The minute the file crossed her desk alleging child abuse, all bets were off," and there should have been no deal.

Underwood also argues that Oliver's attitude on the registration act charge – that this particular judge doesn't tend to convict in such cases, so why pursue it – is a strikingly defeatist attitude for a prosecutor.

"Your job as a prosecutor is to vigorously prosecute the cases that you have," he argues. "Vigorous prosecution [was] Ms. Oliver's J-O-B. And she did not vigorously prosecute someone who is obviously a monster. She had him. She knew he was a monster, and she did not vigorously prosecute him."

That prosecution in the pre-existing offender registration case should have been all the more vigorous, Underwood says, after the child abuse case popped up. And the case certainly shouldn't have been dismissed for someone she believed was guilty of physically abusing a child, he says.

"The fact that she put kids on the stand at a preliminary hearing speaks to the degree to which she did, in fact, believe that child abuse had occurred."

Criminal history A is currently the worst category in Kansas. But what if there was an even higher category of criminal?

"If only there was like an A+ or AA or AAA, then this guy Shawn Harris – he would have been at least an AA, or an A+, whatever you call it," Spies says.

"If the Legislature were to create something higher than criminal history A," Underwood says, "Shawn Harris – at the time that he was being prosecuted for this child abuse case – would have fit into that next higher category."

Prosecutor courted controversy

Oliver writes on her LinkedIn page, "I am an experienced trial lawyer." But she was a controversial figure during her time as Anderson County attorney from January 2021 to this past January.

KOFO radio reported in April 2024 that the county denied her a cost of living increase "because county commissioners take issue with how she runs her office" – specifically about it being "closed or unattended" during normal business hours.

According to the station, then-Sheriff Vern Valentine also complained in an email "about the office being vacant during regular work days. ...

"Commissioners told the Anderson County Review they did take issue with Oliver's office hours, and that withholding Oliver's COLA was a move to exert that pressure."

"It amounted to three days," Oliver writes about the office being poorly manned. "One day was a part-day holiday and I allowed my employee to work remote from home. One day I was at the office alone and a sign was up advising people to knock on the door. And there was one day where the office was closed and no one was there. My recollection was the issue arose during the holidays in November/December."

Oliver was nonetheless confident enough in herself that in 2022 she was one of four applicants for a judgeship in Lyon County – outside of Anderson County's judicial district – just a year and a half into her tenure as county attorney.

"One of these applicants is from out-of-county. She's widely traveled," a member of the judicial nominating commission was quoted as saying of Oliver at the time. "I would question whether she's going to use this as a steppingstone for something else, or whether or not she is a viable candidate for the judgeship."

Indeed, about a week later Oliver was the lone applicant passed over by the commission.

Oliver left office in January after she was defeated for re-election in the Republican primary last August by a landslide vote of 783 to 334, KOFO reported.

"I filed more cases than my predecessor during my time as the Anderson County Attorney (my predecessor was there for 8 years; I was there for 4)," Oliver writes in her defense, "and I took more than double the amount of cases my predecessor did to jury trial. I was the first female Anderson County Attorney."

Math says Harris should've been in prison

If Oliver had prosecuted Harris on the offender registration case rather than dismissing it last December, what's the likelihood that he would've been in a state prison last Saturday and unable to shoot deputy Ming as charged?

"It's not a theoretical debate," says Underwood. "It's addition and subtraction."

tion. If she would have hammered him on the [registration] case that was a slam dunk, it was an open-and-shut case. Again, it's not a case of herding cats that's going to be difficult to prove in front of a jury.

"If she would have hammered him on the offender registration case, he would have absolutely, positively been sitting in the Kansas State Penitentiary on the day that he shot and killed deputy Ming in Wyandotte County.

"It's just a matter of math. And you don't have to take my word on it. You just look at her complaint, the charging document from when she filed that in March of 2024. She alleges, right on the face of the document, right on the complaint, that the potential penalty range on the low end is from 17 months. On the high end, it's 46 months."

Cherry Mound 4-H met in July

The monthly meeting of the Cherry Mound 4-H club was called to order on July 6, 2025 at Westphalia Elementary School by President Chance Witherspoon.

Jaron Ludolph led the club in the Pledge of Allegiance and 4-H motto. Songs were by Jaron and the club sang, "Row, Row, Row Your Boat." Roll call was, "What is your favorite activity?" Six members and one leader answered this.

Secretary Myah Martin read the minutes from the June meeting, and it was approved as written. Reported Myah Martin reported that the minutes were sent to the paper last week. Treasurer Max Jimenez reported that the club had a total of $2893.41 Max also made a motion to pay Gina Witherspoon $65.49 for the purchase of the banner for the club. Motion was seconded by Myah Martin motion passed. Gina Witherspoon gave the leader's report. She reminded the club to be enrolled in all projects for the fair by the 11th, also have born and raised forms along with the 4-H Fashion Revue script must be turned in on that day. about 7.2%, from approximately $17.86 M to $19.14 M. A market level analysis for appraisal year 2025 (as of January 1) suggests real estate values rose rapidly in prior years, then began moderating more recently. Public policy analysts say when valuations increase sharply, tax bills can outpace household budgets, especially if wages or incomes don't keep up—resulting in more unpaid taxes.

In 2023 (tax year 2022), Anderson County had 461 parcels with delinquent taxes totaling $388,095. That figure increased 9% between 2023 and 2024.

were right, we need accountability, but even accountability doesn't feed the bulldog," he told me, which was to say the damage to him and his family cannot be undone. Accountability comes in many forms. Caputo may never get the perp walks by former Democrat officials that he understandably desires, but this dastardly lie concocted by Democrats to smear Trump and maintain power has at least been exposed.

According to a Suffolk poll in December of 2018, "Forty-six percent are convinced that there was collusion between the Trump campaign and the Russians, while 29 percent said there was no such coordination, and 19 percent weren't sure."

Every serious person, whether Democrat or Republican, now admits that this simply was not true. What they must also then admit is that half of Americans believed the lie only because Democrats told it so deceitfully.

It was Walter Scott who wrote in his 1808 poem 'Marmion', "What a tangled web we weave, when first we practice to deceive." But in this case, Democrats wanted the web, a web so dense with so many loose ends and round corners that the truth would be forever hidden.

It was Shakespeare who wrote "the truth will out," and so it has come out, albeit not before shaking a country to its core and crushing innocent lives.

Whatever else comes from the current investigation of Russiagate, one thing is now clear, ready to be etched in the stone of history: The Democrats invented the Russian collusion lie, they did it intentionally, and they suckered their voters into buying it.

To everyone involved in this hoax, the message must be clear: This is your legacy, your attempt to deceive the American people and destroy the man they elected to lead them. That is who you are.
