Are you killing your own road?

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Rural drivers often gripe about washboard ripples, deep ruts and potholes that jar their vehicles and chew up suspensions. But county officials and engineers who study gravel road maintenance say much of that damage starts behind the wheel — not just with grading or gravel supply.

County commissioners and Anderson County Road Department Foreman Ethan Lickteig review road complaints almost every Monday morning — most recently lamenting a three-day soaking rain that turned roads to rutted mush, then sun-dried and packed them into near concrete consistency to the chagrin of drivers and road crews alike. More rain expected Friday means the mush may be back, but there's a lot drivers can do to help, the experts say. "If they'd slow down it would help a lot," Lickteig said. "People speeding up to a stop sign and they hit that washboarding that's already there and get to bouncing, and that magnifies the problem."

County staff and commissioners have admitted problems keeping experienced grader drivers on the county's road crews the past few years, as inflating wages made the grass greener on numerous other construction crews. But road construction experts say road building going all the way back to the Roman Empire functions by some basic rules. When water, vehicle weight and speed conflict, the outcome is a mess.

Gravel roads are built differently than paved ones. Unlike

Crypto project needs juice, zoning permit

Yoder crypto mining endeavor wouldn't fall under solar ban since power wouldn't be sold

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — A Garnett man has filed an application for a special use permit with Anderson County to authorize his cryptocurrency mining facility located on Northwest Missouri Road along the county's zoning parameters.

Milton Yoder filed the application for the permit to allow the commercial business location on land zoned A1 agriculture which is owned by his father, Alvin Yoder of Welda. He told the Review his operation had been running about three weeks, with installation of a stand-alone solar power source partially completed.

Yoder's application specifies the addition of 72-74 solar panels which would provide off-grid power to run the computers and cool the facilities used for the digital mining operation — which instead of breaking actual ground "mines" for digital "coins" by executing a continual and extensive mathematical barrage of computations seeking to unlock a strongbox location that only exists in computational ethereal terms.

"Cryptocurrency mining involves using specialized computers to solve complex mathematical problems that secure and verify transactions on blockchain networks, like the one for Dogecoin, earning digital coins as rewards," Yoder explained in his application. "Essentially it's computational work that maintains a decentralized digital currency system."

The solar panels would power the operation during the day with surplus electricity being stored in batteries which would continue to provide power after the sun went down so the operation could run 24/7 off grid without relying on utility power, Yoder told the Review Wednesday.

For all the headlines cryptocurrencies generate—from wild price swings to giant mining farms landing in rural communities like Anderson County—the basics of how they work remain a mystery to most people. Strip away the technical jargon, though, and

Church sends gifts, Gospel, to kids around the world

BY DANE HICKS THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW

GARNETT — Garnett's Dunkard Brethren Church is once again this year partnering with Operation Christmas Child on a project that sends Christmas gifts and the words of the gospel to children in need worldwide.

Organizer Karen Edgcomb said the church last year collected 216 shoe boxes and was looking forward to increasing that mark this year.

"We have three new churches that are packing as a group,"

Edgcomb said. "We're excited to see that number rise."

Churches in more than 100 countries participate, distributing gift filled shoe boxes to kids in remote locations during community outreach events. Along with the gifts comes the message of Jesus Christ. Edgcomb said most of the kids have never heard Gospel before. Worldwide, Operation Christmas Child has distributed 232 million shoebox gifts since 1993. The organization collected 11.9 million gift boxes from participating churches last year, which were distributed at over 134,000 outreach events by trained local church leaders. The races were City of Kincaid Councilmember between James Kiefer & Mark Hunziger with 1 vote each, and City of Lone Elm Councilmember Lorrie Morrison, Kendra Louk, and Austin Louk with 1 vote each. Kiefer and Kendra Louk won their respective draws.

asphalt or concrete, these surfaces rely on a well-shaped crown and packed aggregate that shed water, endure traffic — and they remain stable only when driving behaviour supports them. According to the Federal Highway Administration (FHWA), proper maintenance elements for stable gravel roads include “a crowned driving surface” and reliable shoulders.

But what do you do when you've got to get to town on a wet day? If you want your road to last longer, experts say, find a route to hard pavement — even if it takes you longer to get to your destination. If you can't get to pavement — just slow down. They say simple driver habits can dramatically reduce damage and maintenance costs — and shortcut the wait for your grader operator to get to your road.

Slow Down
High speeds can scatter gravel, flatten the crown (the raised center of the road that sheds water) and create vibrations that lead to washboarding. Research has shown that washboard patterns form more quickly when traffic speeds are higher on granular surfaces.

Brake and Accelerate Gently
Hard stops and quick launches dig out soft sections of the road and leave loose rock. A German road study on gravel pavement recently dynamics found that road surface deformation under accelerating/decelerating loads contributes to surface defects.

Avoid Deepening the Ruts
When tires repeatedly follow the same groove, ruts deepen, drainage is impaired, and regular maintenance loses effectiveness. The Maine Roads group reports that even one heavy truck trip on a wet gravel road can cause damage equivalent to hundreds of cars.

Stay Off the Edges
The soft shoulder area of a gravel road is not meant for regular travel. Driving too close to the edge weakens the crown that channels water off-road, says the FHA causing edge erosion.

sion and pothole formation. FHWA guidelines emphasize maintaining slope and shape for drainage.

Keep Heavy Loads for Dry Days

Heavy vehicles traveling over wet or thawing gravel crush the aggregate and destroy crown geometry. The same Maine Roads commentary shows that heavy vehicle trips on wet surfaces accelerate deterioration significantly.

Don't Spin Your Tires on Hills

Tire spin digs out material, creates soft spots and invites washout when rain follows. Laboratory studies of washboarding confirm that vehicle dynamics — such as wheel hop and slip — correlate with surface corrugation development.

Respect the Road Crown

Gravel roads are constructed with a slight ridge in the middle so water drains off. Flattening that crown by repeated driving in the same track blocks drainage; resulting standing water causes potholes and soft spots.

Take It Easy After Grading

After the road has been freshly graded, the surface needs time to settle and pack. Heavy or fast traffic too soon scatters new material and undoes the work. The FHWA manual outlines how traffic patterns following grading impact life-cycle cost.

Avoid Muddy or Thawing Roads

During spring thaw or after heavy rain, the underlying base weakens. Traffic under those conditions often causes permanent deformations that turn into potholes or washboard. Studies of gravel pavement deterioration note that moisture plus traffic equals quicker failure.

Report Problems Instead of "Fixing" Them

Blocked ditches, collapsed culverts or bad crown shape should be flagged with the county road department — not patched by individuals with a mini-grader. Improper adjustments to drainage or shape can backfire. Road construction manuals used by the Federal Highway Administration stress drainage and correct aggregate preparation as foundational.

The search for the narrow road

WEEKLY DEVOTIONAL

BY DAVID BILDERBACK

Sometimes when writing a weekly article it is difficult to know what to emphasize. A text which has become one of my favorites is Matthew 7:13-14 which reads, “Enter through the narrow gate. For wide is the gate and broad is the road that leads to destruction, and many enter through it. But small is the gate and narrow the road that leads to life, and only a few find it. I have often wondered where the narrow road leads? I have pieced together the following scriptures that I believe will offer us a glimpse of heaven, the ultimate destination of the narrow road.

In Revelation 21:21 we read the following description of the streets in heaven. The great street of the city was pure gold, like transparent glass.” This text reveals to us that gold will have no value in heaven. Revelation 22:1-2 reads, “Then the angel showed me the river of the water of life, as clear as crystal, flowing from the throne of God and the lamb down the middle of the great street of the city. On each side of the river stood the tree of life bearing twelve crops of fruit, yielding its fruit every month. And the leaves of the tree are for the healing of the nations.” Ultimately I believe the narrow road will lead us face to face with Jesus.

In Revelation 21:5 God says, “I am making everything new!” For us that means a new body, a resurrection body. A body that no longer will be subject to death, mourning or crying or pain for the old order of things has passed away. When we come to the end of the narrow road we will be at the Holy City, the New Jerusalem where we shall dwell with God forever. Paul in 2 Corinthians 4:17 explains it well when he says, “For our light and momentary troubles are achieving for us an eternal glory that far outweighs them all. So we fix our eyes not on what was seen but on what is unseen. For what is seen is temporal, but what is unseen is eternal.” Good reason to find the narrow road.

crypto is a simple idea: a form of digital value that no one controls, created and maintained by the people who use it.

Dogecoin, the target of Yoder's operation, and the more broadly familiar Bitcoin, are broadly different. Bitcoin is more like digital gold, while Dogecoin was developed as a joke by programmers lapooning the overstated seriousness of other crypto currencies. But Dogecoin began to build its own following among gamers and developed a use and value separate from Bigcoin.

Only 21 million Bitcoin will ever exist and their scarcity forms a base of value among those who transact them. Dogecoin is an inflationary meme-coin. It's unlimited supply is less valuable and used mainly for tipping, fun, and speculation. They run on different rules, have different goals, and behave differently economically.

At their core, cryptos exist as massive public record books—called the blockchain—that are shared across thousands of computers worldwide. This description aligns with the way Blockchain.com explains the system: a “public, decentralized ledger” that acts as a global accounting book, visible to everyone. In practical terms, it functions like a global checking register that no bank or government can secretly alter.

Scarcity drives Bitcoin's value. The Brookings Institution notes that this fixed supply is a central reason many investors compare Bitcoin to gold and believe it has long-term value. In a world where governments can print currency at will, Bitcoin's predetermined supply appeals to those looking for an inflation-resistant asset.

Keeping this decentralized system honest is the job of “miners” who operate specialized computers that validate transactions and secure the system by competing to solve complex mathematical problems. Their machines act like security guards and accountants for the network, ensuring each transaction follows the rules and that no one can spend the same crypto twice.

Mining also serves as Bitcoin's defense system. The mathematics miners perform require enormous amounts of electricity, which Bankrate and Investopedia say is intentional: the energy cost makes it prohibitively expensive for criminals to forge transactions or alter the blockchain. In return for this work, miners receive newly created bitcoins—a process Coinbase describes as the way new coins enter circulation, similar to how gold is introduced into the market only after miners extract it.

Cryptocurrencies are worth money for the same reason gold, cattle, or even U.S. dollars have value: people “agree” it has value. According to Fidelity Investments' digital assets research, Bitcoin's value comes from four main drivers—scarcity, security, global usefulness, and market demand. Millions of people worldwide use or hold Bitcoin, and as adoption grows, so does its price. The network itself has never been hacked at its core, a fact frequently highlighted in industry research, contributing further to public trust.

The price, however, is notoriously volatile. Because supply is fixed, even small changes in global demand can send prices soaring or tumbling. Investopedia notes that speculation, halving cycles, and the relatively young age of the asset class all contribute to Bitcoin's dramatic price swings.

Mining operations continue to appear across the U.S.—including rural regions of Kansas—for one simple reason: mining converts electricity into money.

The solar connection for Yoder's project doesn't qualify as an industrial solar operation because its power will be user consumed and not resold. Industrial solar is presently banned in Anderson County by the execution of a previous moratorium, although commissioners said Monday that moratorium had recently expired.

HUETTENMUELLER

OCTOBER 25, 1959 — NOVEMBER 11, 2025

John Huettenmueller, age 66, of Shawnee, Kansas, passed away on Tuesday, November 11, 2025, at his home.

A rosary will be recited on Thursday, November 20, 2025, at 1:00 P.M. at St. John's Catholic Church in Greeley, Kansas with visitation following. Mass of Christian Burial will begin at 2:00 P.M. at St. John's Catholic Church. Burial will take place at St. John's Catholic Cemetery, Greeley.

PSRT decorates before November 12 meeting

Prairie Spirit Rail Trail members decorated the Harris Park and the Santa Fe Depot on Wednesday afternoon, November 12, 2025.

They held their November trail meeting at the depot once the decorating was done. It was announced that the PSRT 30th anniversary celebration would be June 6, 2026. Denise Weber will be the committee chairman. The Golf Cart rides will be held again next year on June 10, 2026.

President Ruth Theis thanked Susan Wettstein for her good job organizing the Walking Club this year.

There will not be a December meeting. The next regular meeting will be January 14, 2026. After the meeting the members enjoyed a Pre-Christmas meal together.

Colony Christian Church packed shoeboxes for Christmas project

Steve Green and Speed Elsasser led worship singing accompanied by Ben Prasko on keyboard. Songs were "How Great is Our God," "What a Friend We Have in Jesus" and "Jesus Paid it All."

Vicki Smart, Mary Parrot, Shirley McGhee, Carrie Riebel and Jan Elsasser presented the elders with quilts made by their sewing and quilting group Seams of Love.

In the Communion Meditation Bruce Symes described the polar opposite way Jesus and Satan are both referred to as lions in scripture. Jesus is the mighty Lion of Judah who protects us from Satan. Satan prowls like a lion looking for someone to devour.

Flint Riebel read Psalm 100 as a prelude to Pastor Chase Riebel's sermon about Thanksgiving. Paul and Silas were beaten and imprisoned for their apostolic work. Still they were singing praises to God with joy filled hearts in their prison cells. God sent an earthquake which freed all the prisoners but rather than go free Paul ministered to the prison guard resulting in the guard and his whole family being baptized.

Following the service a potluck dinner was held and shoeboxes were packed for Samaritan's Purse Operation Christmas Child project.

From all of us at Farmers State Bank, we wish you and your family a Happy Thanksgiving.

We will not be open for business Thursday, November 27.
We will close at 3 p.m. Friday, November 28.

To save the planet, we've got to pave the planet

Who'da thunk it... unless you're familiar with the ironic twist in Seinfeld, Season 2, Episode 9, "The Deal"...that climate activists would determine they had to cut 100,000 Amazonian rainforest trees in order to pave a road to their upcoming climate summit in Belem, Brazil.

Yes, the irony is delicious. (Footnote: For our readers under age 50, "Seinfeld" was a comedy series on something known as "television," back in the 1990s, when entertainment programming was still actually entertaining. Google it.)

But I digress...yes, cutting down nearly 100,000 Amazonian trees to build a four-lane highway to their own climate summit; climate kooks have managed to bulldoze their own message along with the landscape.

The activists and Brazilian officials always ready to exploit the world's climate carping for their own benefit explain that this clear-cut was "necessary," and planned all the way back to 2020 and initially unrelated to tomorrow's conference. Recent defenders of the 2025 sky-is-falling gig maintain it's a small sacrifice for the greater good of planetary salvation. With dour-faced celebrities burning tons of jet fuel flying chartered jets to these conferences instead of flying coach like us unwashed, the echoes of "do as we say, not as we do" comes through again loud and clear. It's just rare to see it expressed in asphalt.

Let's be honest: if an American corporation proposed mowing down 100,000 rainforest trees for a highway project, the outcry would register on the Richter scale. David Muir would have a nervous breakdown. Social media would collapse into a slurry of meme hashtags. Protesters would chain themselves to bulldozers faster than you could say "eco-catastrophe" and Greta Thunberg would beat the bushes looking for someone to detain her.

But when the cause is "The Movement" itself? Suddenly, the chainsaws are powered by moral purity.

This is the uncomfortable truth environmental leaders can't confront: when ideals collide with logistics, ideals tend to lose. Moving thousands of delegates, media, researchers, and dignitaries through dense jungle terrain doesn't happen with good intentions and hemp tote bags. It happens with machinery, fuel, and—apparently—a highway carved straight through the rainforest.

The global climate movement has spent decades portraying modern infrastructure as the enemy instead of the byproduct of a dominant species. But when activists need the convenience of four lanes of pavement to reach their own summit, the bulldozers roar to life without hesitation.

Pragmatic folks have long argued that environmental policy must be grounded in realism rather than utopian fantasy. The world still needs roads, energy, and functioning economies. We can debate the smartest ways to manage resources, but denying basic human infrastructure needs or abandoning practical, proven energy production has never been a serious plan. This highway fiasco is a case study in what happens when activism collides with the realities of the modern world. It's easy to preach carbon-free living from a conference hall with air-conditioning, Wi-Fi, and catered meals.

If climate leaders want to be taken seriously, they might start by applying to themselves the same standards they demand of everyone else. ###

It looks like our pharmacy is no longer going to accept TCare and Express Scripts as of January 1st, which means all active and retired military and veterans will have to find another pharmacy, which the closest one is 26 miles in each direction. Maybe it's a good time to look for a different physician if you're going to have to drive there just to get your pills, after you go to the doctor.

There's other insurances that they're not going to accept as well, according to Facebook. Folks might check on that before they come out of the doctors in January.

I want to take a few minutes to say thank you to all those who helped an old lady in the wheelchair. I did not get their names. A lady from Colony stopped and helped me get my trash out in the trash cans.

And then the few days later, I had a gentleman that lives about three miles outside of Garnett help me with trash and to put things in my car. Also wanted to thank all those who helped me get the Laundromat and to unload my wheelchair and clothes and to help afterwards. I wanted to thank those back at the nursing home on North Pine for their help and helping me with my wheelchair each time I visit my husband.

Also want to take a few minutes to say thank you to the Phone Forum, to allow us to have these comments to be made. And

A very expensive lesson for Marion County, Ks

Justice, it seems, some days is served.

In a dramatic move unforeseen by many, Marion County officials have agreed to pay more than $3 million to settle their part of a federal-court lawsuit brought by The Marion County Record and others after a surprise police raid on homes and the newspaper.

As part of the settlement, the Kansas county, its sheriff and officials agreed to publish a formal apology to the newspaper, its owners, Eric Meyer and his mother, the late Joan Meyer, and a City Council member and her husband.

The settlement also includes two reporters with the newspaper during the raid, conducted Aug. 11, 2023, at the newspaper; at the home shared by the Meyers and his mother; and the home of former Vice Mayor Ruth Herbel and her husband Ron.

The lawsuit remains pending against the City of Marion, former Mayor David Mayfield, former Police Chief Gideon Cody and former officer Zach Hudlin, in federal district court for the District of Kansas, the "read bad guys" of the raid, one lawyer called them.

The payments include:

- $200,000 personally to Eric Meyer, whose cell phone and two computers were seized, his house and desk searched.
- $250,000 to former reporter Deb Gruver, who left town after the raid citing stress.
- $300,000 to the Record, which had its operations disrupted, and three computers and a file server unlawfully seized.

• $600,000 to reporter Phyllis Zorn, who saw her cell phone seized and suffered aggravation of a previous medical disorder. She quit the paper after the settlement, citing continued stress working in the county.

• $650,000 to Herbel and her husband, whose dementia was aggravated by the raid on his home.

• $1 million to the estate of Joan Meyer, who suffered a fatal cardiac arrest the day after the raid. Video showed it greatly aggravated her. At one point, she shouted: "Get out of my house."

• Earlier, a $50,000 settlement was paid to the newspaper's business manager, who suffered aggravation of health problems. Meyer and his lawyers considered the apology a key part of the settlement. Out-of-court settlements generally involve a statement that the defendants do not admit doing anything wrong.

It reads, "The Sheriff's Office wishes to express its sincere regrets to Eric and Joan Meyer and Ruth and Ronald Herbel for its participation in the drafting and execution of the Marion Police Department's search warrants on their homes and The Marion County Record. This likely would not have happened if established law had been reviewed and applied prior to the execution of the warrants."

One thing the paper thought was important was that the statement made clear that state and federal laws restrict attempts to search newspapers and other media.

The Record reported that the county's insurance will cover $3 million of the settlement, leaving $50,000 to be paid from county funds. Meyer said he had no wish to see the county broke, but was glad the commissioners will have to come up with money from their budget, in addition to legal fees. The settlements cover part of the plaintiffs' legal fees.

"Every police officer should know that they can't punish someone for their political speech," the Herbels' lawyer, Jared McClain of the Institute for Justice, told the Record, "and every police officer should know that they need probable cause to enter someone's home and search their phone and computer."

"Yet the ... sheriff's office helped draft bogus warrants designed to retaliate against Ruth Herbel for her work as

Trump deal makes Ozempic available to more of us

Americans are going to get a little healthier. President Trump cut deals with the drugmakers Eli Lilly and Novo Nordisk to increase access to obesity drugs in a major benefit to American public health.

The agreements are a win-win-win -- good for consumers, good for the companies and good for Trump.

One of the most irrational superstitions of our time is that Big Pharma, which has long been routinely delivering near-miraculous therapeutics to extend and improve our lives, is a public enemy. Its latest breakthrough is a class of so-called GLP-1 drugs that make it easier to lose weight and to avoid associated serious health problems, from Type 2 diabetes to heart disease.

The basic dynamic of the Trump deals is that the companies will, through lower prices, expand their market share, thus generating more revenue. The companies also get tariff relief and expedited review for select drugs.

Health and Human Services Secretary Robert F. Kennedy Jr., the MAHA leader with a paranoid streak about modern medical advances, has been hostile to GLP-1 drugs, the most famous of which is Ozempic, sold by Novo Nordisk.

If everyone could do as many pushups and pullups as the hyper-fit 71-year-old Kennedy, perhaps we could turn our back on GLP-1s.

NATIONAL COMMENTARY

RICH LOWRY, King Features Syndicate

Certainly, RFK Jr. is correct that Americans should eat better and work out more. But our body mass index has been increasing for about 150 years, as we've made calories cheaper and more abundant over time. As it happens, the things that we like to eat or drink that are bad for us -- fast food, soda, chips, cookies -- are cheap, convenient and taste good.

Even if we manage to convince people that they should eat more fruit, vegetables and legumes, while taking a Peloton class every day, not everyone is going to do it as a matter of lifestyle constraints, individual preference or simple lack of willpower.

There's also the fact that once you put on weight, physiological changes make it more difficult to shed it.

About 40% of Americans are obese. Wouldn't it be great for them -- and for American society at large, which spends roughly $170 billion a year on obesity-related medical costs -- if there were a safe, relatively convenient way for them to slim down?

Lo and behold, here it is. The GLP-1s started out as a treatment for diabetes and have exploded in popularity as weight-loss drugs.

Trump's reflex to make it easier for people to obtain Ozempic and the like -- while, not incidentally, boosting his reputation as the nation's foremost deal-maker -- is the correct one. Drug pricing is complicated, but by expanding the sale of the drugs direct to consumers, the companies can reduce prices. Meanwhile, Medicare will do more to cover the drugs, also bringing down their cost.

According to Gallup, about 12% of Americans report having used a GLP-1 drug at some point for weight loss, a stunning increase from about 6% in early 2024. Not coincidentally, Gallup is also now showing a slight dip in obesity. From 2008 -- when the polling organization regularly began asking about weight -- to 2022, the percentage of obese Americans increased by 14 percentage points, to nearly 40%.

Button identified for my nephew

Well, I'm in the identification business once again. This time it's my nephew from Manhattan. I'm not sure where he found this button while metal detecting, but it sure cleaned up magnificently.

During my research I found it to be a button from a mail carrier's coat.

P.O.D. stands for: Post Office Dept. These brass buttons with the "P.O.D." insignia on them were the standard mail carriers coat buttons from around 1893-

Where any number of fashionable diets and continual government exhortations for more physical exertion have failed (before RFK Jr., Michelle Obama was urging, "Let's Move!"), drugs to slow digestion and reduce the urge to eat are working.

The percentage of Americans using GLP-1s will inevitably keep growing, especially if prices continue to go down, if more oral GLP-1s come online in addition to injectables, and if other medical benefits of the drugs emerge. GLP-1s could easily match the saturation level of statins, the cholesterol-reducing drugs.

By all means, we should all eat more arugula. Until then, we have found a pharmaceutical path to alleviating an ongoing health crisis. President Trump and the drug companies are to be congratulated for their creative cooperation to make it available to more Americans.

110 years ago...Thanksgiving game expected to have largest crowd in school history

THAT WAS THEN

PAULA SCOTT - REVIEW HISTORY COLUMNIST

Historical gleanings from past local newspapers.

1885 - 140 years ago

November 20 - Sheriff Marshall went west on the 10 a.m. train. As he never tells anybody his business we don't know where he went nor what for. He is one of these quiet fellows whom reporters cannot tap. He simply smiles blandly and that is all.

November 20 - Workmen carelessly left a bucket of coals on the roof of the unfinished Mellen building, a day last week, when the wind blew a coal out of the bucket which lodged in a crack and was soon fanned into a blaze by the strong wind. One of the gas men saw the blaze, gave the alarm and the fire was extinguished.

1895 - 130 years ago

November 22 - The water in the city lake is still going down. If the lake should freeze up at the present stage, the water supply is settled so far as that source of supply is concerned.

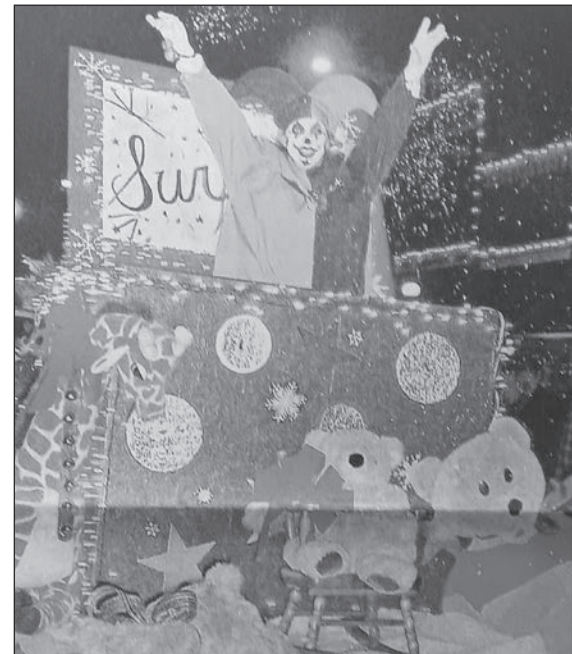

1915 - 110 years ago

November 25 - The annual Thanksgiving football game is to be played this year between the Garnett High School and Osawatomie. This will probably be witnessed by the largest crowd of any game in the history of the school.

1925 - 100 years ago

November 26 - Last Sunday evening, as Sam P. Davis, who lives south of Garnett was returning from a trip west of town, he was met by a party of three boys on the Wardell bridge who angled their car across the bridge and forced Davis to stop. Two of the young chaps, produced revolvers, and he was forced to give up what money he had in his pockets. They also took out a spark plug to cripple his car. but Davis was game. He had an extra spark plug and came on to town and procured a revolver. He then took the back track and overtook the young robbers near Mont Ida. He got the drop on them and forced them to give back the money they had taken and let them go, without identification. No doubt the young hold-ups are "local talent." The proper thing for Mr. Davis to have done was to take an officer along with him when he went back in search of the guys and arrest them and bring them to town for identification. By turning them loose, there was nothing to prevent them from holding up somebody else. They should have been arrested and punished.

THE ANDERSON COUNTY REVIEW 11-20-2025 / ARCHIVE

Circa November 2005 - Terry Singer jumps out of the jack-in-the-box on a float sponsored by the Prairie Spirit Trail. "Surprise of Christmas" won the award for best open-class float in the Garnett Christmas Parade on Saturday, Nov. 26.

1935 - 90 years ago

November 21 - A union Thanksgiving service sponsored by the Ministerial Alliance will be held at the Christian church on Wednesday evening November 27, at 7:30. The community is invited to attend and take part in this service.

1955 - 70 years ago

November 25 - Representatives of the majority of Garnett's clubs will meet at 8:00 o'clock Monday evening, Nov. 28, in the basement of the United Presbyterian church, immediately following the Lions club, to organize a council, dedicated to carry forward community projects. Probably the first major effort of the new group will be furnishing of the armory with expectation of working for the establishment of a Capper Memorial Museum here. It was felt that greater unity would be obtained if all organizations were represented and broader contacts could be made.

1975 - 50 years ago

November 20 - After writing words to western songs since she was ten years old, Shirley Carter, Garnett, finally got up the nerve to submit one for publication and to her surprise, it has been accepted. Mrs. Carter received word from Columbine Records that her song, "There's A House On The Corner" will be released in an album entitled "The Now Sounds of Today." Mrs. Carter is a native of Ozark, Ark., and has lived in Garnett about five years. She said she began performing with her mother at churches when she was quite young.

again, thank you for all those who helped me in the past.

So the school district is promoting on Facebook their listening sessions. When they say they want to listen to your opinion it usually means they're greasing us up for a bond issue and a tax increase at least if the past is any example. I want them to listen to me about this 19 percent budget increase. Four million dollars ought to buy a lot of listening. Thank you.

Thank you to the Garnett Fire Department, I was sorry to take you away from your family briefly on Sunday night to confirm all is well when my carbon monoxide alarm was chirping. I was fairly certain all was good, but appreciate your quick response to confirm that. Thank you also to those whom the call took them away from. We appreciate the sacrifice that they have given to our community. Thank you.

Sure is nice in the west central part of Anderson County we have no rock on the gravel roads. We have rock on the blacktop roads trying to fill in the bridges that's falling out, and oh, by the way, you need to come over and check them again because they're getting bad.

And the minimal maintenance roads have got six inch ruts cut down from people going down them muddin'. My suggestion is at the county lines, we need to put up minimum maintenance signs instead of slow signs. Thank you.

Okay Mr. Locke, you've got your money. Now do us all a favor and leave Garnett.

vice mayor. What they put Ruth and Ronald through is inexcusable.”

Cody, who allegedly left his previous job as a captain with the Kansas City, Missouri, police department just ahead of an investigation, was suspended and later resigned after it came out that he had tried to cover up messages he exchanged with Kari Newell, a Marion restaurant owner who was the alleged victim in the “case” police were working.

The ex-chief was charged this fall with interfering with judicial process. Last seen, he reportedly had become a mail carrier in a western state, but he faces a state court trial in Kansas on Feb. 2.

At this point, no one expects the city to give in for its part in the case.

“Everybody involved in this is 100 percent convinced we are going to go to trial with the city,” Meyer told the Kansas Recorder. “This will make that easier in some regard.”

Veteran Kansas editor-in-chief Steve Haynes sends his column, “Along the Sappa,” from his perch in Oberlin, on the banks of that often-dry western Kansas creek.
